More Than $4,000,000,000 Indicated for the Loan

Dispatches to THE TIMES last night gave unofficial estimates at a late hour of the loan subscriptions from all but three Federal Reserve districts. These indicate that the total loan subscription of the country at the present time probably exceeds $4,000,000,000. The figures in the outside districts with the amounts of increase over the official figures given out at Washington are as follows:

District.	Unofficial Total.	Increase
St. Louis........	$207,500,000	$12,278,300

New York City went past its quota of $1,000,561,800 in the Victory Loan yesterday, while the entire Second Federal District indicated that it would not only fill its quota, but help the country over the top, if any other districts are found behind when the final figures are counted. Subscriptions in New York City which had gone to the Federal Reserve Bank amounted to $979,996,350, or 97.9 per cent. of the quota.

When $20,545,250 more is received at the bank the city will have officially passed its quota, and sales made yesterday and Thursday night, which have not yet been listed by the Government are considerably more than $20,545,250. This puts the city far in the lead in the district.

Outside of the city the District was behind its quota by $125,059,500, according to the Federal Reserve Bank figures, so that a total of $145,624,750 is needed before the District will have officially filled its quota of $1,350,000,000. Liberty Loan officials are confident the allotment and more will be subscribed when the final returns are in, but the drive will be kept up at top speed on the final day.

Brooklyn in Lead.

Brooklyn entered the home stretch leading all boroughs with its quota already oversubscribed, but a big effort in Manhattan may carry it out in front on the last day. Brooklyn had sent to the Federal Reserve Bank yesterday a total of $60,309,900 in Victory note subscriptions, against its quota of $59,857,400, thus entering the last day of the campaign with an oversubscription of seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

The official figure for the district was $234,231,850, of which Manhattan's share amounted to $199,094,200. The Federal Reserve Bank's report follows:

President Appeals for Loan as a Great Thank Offering

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary Glass today received this cable message from President Wilson:

> Through you I appeal to my fellow-citizens, on the eve of the consummation of a victorious peace, to sustain the honor and credit of our country and to pay tribute to the valor and sacrifices of our fighting men by making this last Liberty Loan not only a financial success—for that it must be—but a great popular thank offering, in which every American will share according to his ability.

JIM EUROPE KILLED IN BOSTON QUARREL

WON FAME BY "JAZZ" MUSIC

BOSTON, May 9.—Lieutenant James Reese (Jim Europe) of New York died at a hospital here tonight as a result of a wound in the neck alleged to have been inflicted by Herbert Wright, also of New York, and a drummer in the "Hell Fighters" (369th Infantry) band, of which Europe was leader. The two engaged in an altercation at Mechanics' Hall, where the band has been giving a series of concerts.

Europe, who was standing in the wings while the band was playing a selection, called out to Wright to "put more pep in the sticks." Wright left his drum and walked hastily over to Europe, who retreated to his dressing room. Wright followed him, and after some words the police allege that he drew a knife and slashed Europe in the neck.

Wright was arrested.

"Jim" Europe was unknown as a musician about 1910, when he came to New York from Mobile, Ala., with a strong pair of lungs to "jazz" the trombone and some ideas about syncopation that other musicians refused to accept. He impressed the Vernon Castles with the possibilities in his "jazz music," however, and they engaged him as their musical director. Both ascribed much of their success as dancers to "Jimmy" Europe.

When the 15th Regiment was organized Colonel William Hayward asked "Jimmy" Europe to become the band leader with the rank of Lieutenant. He accepted, but was not able to get together a band of negro "jazz artists" in this city, and was about to give up the plan when Daniel G. Reid offered $10,000 for a national canvass for negroes who fitted Europe's ideas of syncopation. One hundred men were recruited in a few months, many of them coming from the Hampton Institute.

After "Jimmy" Europe got this band to France with the 369th Infantry he found that the French clarion could put more "jazz" into his music, and the combination of these horns with trombones and syncopation made the negro band so popular among the soldiers that they were kept traveling all the time. They played for President Poincaré and General Pershing time and again, and had a request for a concert for the Prince of Wales when they left. It was said that General Gouraud would risk defeat to travel a hundred miles to hear Jimmy's "jazz band." The band found equal favor upon its return to this country and a tour of the principal cities resulted.

BANDITS RAID CANANEA, KILL POLICE, ROB BANK

DOUGLAS, Ariz., May 9.—Twenty-two mounted bandits last night raided the town of Cananea, Sonora, robbed a bank, killed five police officers and the city jailer, and released all prisoners. The Chief of Police was among the killed. The bandits stole a number of horses and escaped to the mountains.

NACO, Ariz., May 9.—American customs officials here received a report this afternoon that Mayor Rocha of Cananea was kidnapped by bandits when they raided the mining town last night and he was held for ransom.

Cananea, Sonora, is one of the most famous copper mining camps in Mexico. It is credited with having been the "cradle of the revolution," as the riots there in June, 1906, were claimed to have been the forerunner of the revolutions which swept over the republic later. The camp is considered an American camp, as a majority of the copper properties of any size are owned by American companies.

MOSS'S QUESTIONS ENRAGE WHITMAN AT BRIBE HEARING

MANY QUESTIONS BARRED

HAD NOT GOT CHECK

Tells on Stand He Saw Senator Before He Considered He Was "Retained" by Traction Interests.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman was a witness under cross-examination yesterday at the stormiest session yet held by the Senate Judiciary Committee in its investigation of the $500,000 bribe fund, alleged by Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara to have been put up for the purpose of putting through in the Legislature the Carson-Martin Increased Fare bill.

The ex-Governor was asked many searching questions regarding his retainer by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and his talk with Senator Thompson over luncheon in the St. Regis on March 29. At that time, according to the Senator, Mr. Whitman tried to win his support for the Carson-Martin bill by holding out to him the prospect of a big law practice in this city and support for the Governorship.

Mr. Whitman, when he appeared before the Judiciary Committee as a witness at his own request in April, denied all these statements, and under cross-examination yesterday he declared again that he had not sought to influence the Senator.

Mr. Whitman from the time he took the stand asked the protection of the committee against the aggressive cross-questioning of Frank Moss, counsel for Senator Thompson, and asked for himself the privilege of cross-examining Senator Thompson through counsel of his own selection. Mr. Whitman acted yesterday as his own counsel, frequently objecting to questions asked by Mr. Moss and making speeches from the witness chair in support of his objections. Almost invariably he was sustained by Senator Alvah W. Burlingame, Jr., of Kings, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who presided, while Mr. Moss was called to order and had lively tilts with Mr. Burlingame.

Moss's Questions Provoke Storm.

Mr. Moss sought in vain to elicit from Mr. Whitman testimony which would make it appear that his firm was retained by the Interborough on account of his political connections; that the retainer was, among other things, for the purpose of having Mr. Whitman exert his influence on the Republican Legislature to procure the passage of the Carson-Martin bill, and that his talk with Senator Thompson over luncheon the day after the amount of his retainer had been fixed proved this.

Mr. Moss provoked a storm when he hurled a series of questions at Mr. Whitman carrying the insinuation that Mr. Whitman, while Governor, had exerted undue influence on the Legislature to obtain the confirmation of George W. Perkins for State Food Commissioner and among other things had promised to grant a pardon in which Senator Salvatore A. Cotillo of this city was interested, on condition that Mr.

Troops Occupy the House of Dublin's Sinn Fein Mayor

DUBLIN, May 9.—The military authorities have taken possession of Mansion House, the official residence of the Lord Mayor.

Michael F. Ryan and former Governor Edward Dunne, representatives of Irish societies in the United States, returned to Dublin yesterday after having received the freedom of the City of Limerick. They were greeted at the station by a big crowd, which escorted them over the three-mile route to their temporary residence.

Mr. Dunne in speeches to the crowd said he was convinced that Ireland "was aflame for a republic." Mr. Ryan said that the delegates might leave Ireland next week, and if they did, Ireland "should keep up the battle and victory was certain."

The Lord Mayor of Dublin is Laurence O'Neill, who has been prominent in the leadership of the Sinn Fein movement. The Mansion House has been used as a meeting place for the Sinn Fein.

NAVY FLIERS LEAVE HALIFAX TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 9.—Tonight the people of Halifax witnessed a most unusual sight, when the NC-3, one of the gigantic American hydroplanes which arrived here from Rockaway yesterday on the initial lap of their transatlantic flight, circled above the city. The machine glittered with lights and against the greenish pallor of the evening sky seemed like a magic constellation of stars traveling a cyclonic orbit.

The roaring of the mighty engines brought hundreds of wondering watchers to the streets and roof tops of the town, who gazed at the sky long after silence had stolen away the throbbing of the machinery. It was a vision to be long remembered.

The seaplane left the moorings in Eastern Passage a few minutes after 9 o'clock, sped up the harbor at a high elevation, rounded the Citadel and glided back to the water again, passing close to the spire of St. Mary's Cathedral. Here the plane was so near to earth that the figures of the aviators were discernible in the moonlight. She carried five powerful lights, red and green globes at the port and starboard extremities of the broad wings and three yellow ones.

If weather conditions are favorable the NC-3 and the NC-1 will embark upon the second stage of their journey to Europe at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. Eleven o'clock is the latest hour that they can depart in order to reach the Newfoundland coast by nightfall, as it would be dangerous to fly over unknown territory in the darkness.

If a strong wind is blowing the flight will be postponed, for experienced aviators recognize the foolhardiness of ascending in the face of a gale, unless under stringent necessity. After all, in this flight, it is not so much the time that counts as the successful consummation.

The two planes expect to reach Trepassey Bay in eight hours. The United States cruiser Aroostook awaits them there as a base ship, and four cruisers are stationed in the interval between Trepassey and Halifax.

The planes will leave Trepassey as

LONDON, May 9.—A Russian Government wireless message received today says that an Afghan mission has arrived at Moscow to establish relations between Aghanistan and Russia.

This is in violation of the treaty between Afghanistan and Great Britain, under which Afghanistan is not allowed to enter into relations with any foreign country except Great Britain.

General Sir A. A. Barrett, in command in Northern India, has begun operations against the Afghan tribesmen who crossed the Afghan border and occupied positions on the Indian side. Reuter's Limited learns that the advance of British mobile columns in the neighborhood of the Northwest frontier is having a reassuring effect.

The latest news from Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, is dated April 30, and says that members of the escort party of the British agent, who is an Indian, had left Kabul. At that time Kabul was the scene of great excitement and there were considerable troop movements in the surrounding country. It was said, however, that there was to be nothing in the nature of a general advance, owing to the absence of direct orders from the Amir.

It is understood here that a band of 400 Afghans with several guns has occupied one Indian frontier position, and that a somewhat larger force is at another point.

The Indian Office in London Thursday received information that Afghan tribesmen, aided by Afghan regular troops, had occupied positions east of the Afghan-Indian border. It was said the British Government had addressed a vigorous note to the new Amir, who, it was added, had adopted an unfriendly attitude toward the British.

BIG FOUR DISCUSS AUSTRIA

EXPECT DELEGATES MAY 12

Divided on Annexation to Germany—Assembly Said to Have Renounced the Idea.

PARIS, May 9, (Associated Press.)—Both the Council of Four and the Council of Foreign Ministers resumed their sessions this morning. The former is giving special attention to the impending negotiations between the Allies and Austria, and the latter is discussing reports on the boundaries of former Austro-Hungarian territories.

The naval terms of the treaty to be presented to Austria, as they have been completed, entirely wipe out the Austrian Navy. All the ships of that navy, large and small, are to be surrendered. Their disposition among the Allies is to be adjusted later.

The Drafting Committee this afternoon began work on the treaty as a whole.

The Austrian peace delegation, numbering from forty to fifty persons, is expected to arrive at St. Germain on May 12. Information received from French sources is that the delegation has not as yet left Vienna, owing to difficulties encountered in selecting its members because of differences of opinion regarding the proposed incorporation of German Austria in Germany.

Dispatches received here today indicate that while Franz Klein, President of the delegation, favors annexation, Professor Lammasch, another influential member, opposes it, and that sentiment against the proposal is growing. The rest of the delegation is said to be divided on the question.

Union with Germany Renounced?

BASLE, May 9.—The majority faction in the Austrian National Assembly, according to a report from Vienna, has decided to renounce the idea of the union of German Austria and Germany in the interests of Austrian and world peace.

The Austrian peace delegation, advices from Vienna say, will leave the Austrian capital for Paris on May 11.

DANES PLEASED WITH TERMS.

Belgians, Poles, and Czechs Express Their Satisfaction.

PARIS, May 8.—Interviews with representatives of countries whose territories are affected by the peace treaty are published in the Temps.

Paul Hymans of Belgium declares he is generally satisfied, and the Polish delegates also express satisfaction, although the solution of the Danzig problem does not give them all they expected, and they are uncertain whether they will be allowed to fortify the coast of internationalized territory.

Danish representatives express deep satisfaction with the disposition of Schleswig-Holstein, but vent their surprise that the boundaries of territories which will be called upon to decide their own destiny were fixed, according to a summary of the treaty, considerably further south than either the Danish Government's Parliamentary delegates or the delegates of the Schleswig Danes had proposed at the Peace Conference.

Dr. Benes, the Czechoslovak Foreign Minister, also voiced his satisfaction with the arrangements which have been made, with some minor reservation.

TO RECOGNIZE SWISS RIGHTS.

BERNE, May 8.—The Swiss Political (Foreign Affairs) Department announces that as a result of an exchange of notes and conversations between the Swiss and French Governments agreement has been reached on the text of an article to be inserted in the peace treaty whereby the guarantees of Swiss neutrality are recognized as constituting international obligations for the maintenance of peace.

The guarantees to be recognized are stipulated in the treaties of 1815, especially that of Nov. 20, which assures perpetual neutrality and inviolability to Swiss territory.

Pledge to France Supplementary, Says Wilson; Will Go to League of Nations for Approval

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary Tumulty late this afternoon made public this cablegram from President Wilson regarding the proposed pledge to France:

> Happily there is no mystery or privacy about what I have promised the Government here.
> I have promised to propose to the Senate a supplement in which we shall agree, subject to the approval of the Council of the League of Nations, to come immediately to the assistance of France in case of unprovoked attack by Germany, thus merely hastening the action to which we should be bound by the covenant of the League of Nations.

The President thus makes it plain that action by the United States under the pledge, if approved by the Senate, will be subject to approval by the League of Nations. It also indicates that the pledge is for the purpose of enabling this country to act in case of an emergency.

Senators Borah and Norris have already declared themselves opposed to any alliance with France, and in an interview earlier today the latter declared against the proposed Anglo-American agreement for the protection of France on the ground, among others, that he thought it contrary to the theory of the League of Nations.

There is a growing feeling here, however, that the pledge to France will be adopted by the American Senate as a supplement to the Peace Treaty. There is a feeling also that the League of Nations covenant will be adopted by the Senate, and that the treaty, the covenant, and the supplementary pledge will stand or fall together.

DECISION ON FIUME SEEMS NO NEARER

French Press Says That Wilson Has Not Assented to the Mandatory Plan.

DIDN'T CALL ORLANDO BACK

PARIS, May 9, (Associated Press.)—The Italian difficulty is as far from settlement as ever, according to the French press, which asserts that President Wilson maintains his position, and it is not believed he will depart from it in the slightest. It is also asserted that he has not accepted the proposed compromise by which Italy would administer Fiume as mandatary of the League of Nations until 1923, after which Fiume would revert to Italian sovereignty, the Jugoslavs receiving a port a few miles lower down the Adriatic coast.

The impression in French Conference circles is that Italy is temporarily abandoning her claim to Fiume and will exact full execution of the treaty of London, which, as it involves not only Dalmatia, but the Dodecanese Islands, will raise the whole Greek problem and singularly complicate the situation.

No Change in Wilson's Views.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 6.—All interest today centres in the return of the Italian plenipotentiaries to the Peace Conference. In delegations other than the American the strongest impression prevails that Orlando by his return has virtually agreed to discuss some compromise proposal. Of course, the character of this proposal is known to some of the leading plenipotentiaries, but they are keeping their own counsel, and what is here recorded is founded on hints conveyed by their associates, who have apparently received a guarded intimation of what the situation is.

Among the American officials connected with our Peace Commission it is emphatically denied that President Wilson has entered into any compromise engagement with Italy, or even suggested that America would be willing to modify its attitude on the Fiume issue. One of the American Peace Commission said positively that the President did not know that Clemenceau and Lloyd George had invited Orlando to come back to Paris. That the invitation was extended there seems to be no doubt.

Among the British the understanding prevails that through the intermediation of various allied representatives in Rome Orlando was persuaded that he would be wise to return here for a discussion of the proposal that Fiume be made an open port for a period of years—probably ten—under trusteeship of the League of Nations, at the end of which time there would be a plébiscite to determine whether the people of Fiume preferred Italian or Jugoslav rule.

Italians here believe that some such arrangement has been suggested. This compromise would follow the lines of the arrangement for the administration of the Sarre Basin during the fifteen years of control by the League of Nations. President Wilson assented to the Sarre settlement, and it is being said that he would have a

Each Nation Whose Claims Are Denied Dwells Chiefly on Its Disappointment.

PARIS, May 7.—Although it is somewhat extreme, a statement by Senhor Costa, the Portuguese plenipotentiary, in today's Matin indicates the condition of mental disgruntlement among the representatives of the minor allied nations on hearing the digest of the peace treaty. After enumerating the economic losses of Portugal because of the war, Senhor Costa says:

"I want to say to all the world that this treaty, so far as reparations are concerned, is the most fearful example of injustice that could be produced."

Similar statements, no doubt, could be obtained from scores of other delegates concerning the treaty; but in their complaints these men speak only of their own local grievances. Each is inclined to think that all the others have fared remarkably well. Each nation thinks it is a mighty good treaty so far as every other nation is concerned. The Poles wonder why the Jugoslavs are still complaining as they are because they have not got Trieste. On the other hand, the Jugoslavs are amazed because Poland is not entirely satisfied. The French are sorry to see Orlando treated in a manner so out of keeping with the old-style diplomacy, but nevertheless think that Italy now has ample compensation for entering the war; while Italy thinks France, with Alsace-Lorraine restored, is most unreasonable to want the left bank of the Rhine. And so it goes through the list of nations, big and little, new and old.

For the moment, but probably for the moment only, there are many who seem to have no time to spare from their own grievances to be jubilant over the fact that we have entered all together into the last short phase of bringing the world peace, or to remember that what everybody has been praying and longing for for five years is about to be realized. Paris would surely be a happy city of light today if to this final process of making peace could be applied that wonderful spirit of fraternity and cheerful confidence which characterized the darkest days of making war a year ago.

Conditions That Please France.

After all, France is much happier over this peace about to be signed than she has given indications during the last five months that she would be, if a member of the French Foreign Office, who talked to me about it this morning, truly reflects the feeling of his nation. He says that it is neither a good nor a bad peace in itself, but may be made of great benefit to the world under careful statesmanship.

"Only three countries," he said, "will be fully satisfied. They are the United States, Japan, and England. But are not the results for the rest of us something to be thankful for? For the French nation as a whole I think I can predict satisfaction. First of all, we gain our main point of Alsace-Lorraine. The settlement of that ques-

Versailles Delegation Sees Dictated Peace, but Moves for Negotiations.

BERLIN, May 8.—The peace terms have struck the population of Berlin almost with the effect of a physical blow.

Hard terms were expected, say Berliners, but not these terms. The people are almost stunned by the announcement, and business is practically at a standstill.

From Versailles, too, comes news of the German delegates, which cannot but add to the gloom of the Berliners, the press correspondents there reporting that extreme pessimism prevails among the members of the Peace Mission.

The popular mind has seized most upon the terms relating to the destination of Upper Silesia and the surrender of the former Kaiser. The importance of Upper Silesia for Germany has been so strongly insisted upon lately by all sections of the German press that its compulsory cession to Poland strikes the people here all the more forcibly, while the demand for the surrender of the former Kaiser stirs up again all those sentiments which were bred into the very bones of Germans.

But there is one man who can still talk recklessly of the Allies' terms, and that is Ludendorff. He declined to give me an interview today, but sent back this message:

"If these are the peace terms, then America can go to hell!"

Call to Suspend Amusements.

BERLIN, May 8, (Associated Press.)—The people, though fairly stricken dumb by the peace terms, are now recovering sufficiently to declare that Germany cannot and will not sign the compact, no matter what comes.

Strikes are increasing and Bolshevism and the Spartacide uprisings of the last two months have, if anything, made Germans immune to the possible horrors which are to be anticipated if they are again plunged into war, according to the best opinion here.

The President of the Imperial Ministry has sent the following telegram to the Governments of the free States:

"In deep distress and weighed down by cares, the German people have waited through the months of the armistice for the peace conditions. Their publication has brought the bitterest disappointment and unspeakable grief to the entire people. A public expression ought to be given these feelings by all Germans.

"The Imperial Government requests that the free States have public amusements suspended for a week and allow in the theatres only such productions as correspond to the seriousness of these grievous days."

There exists a small group of Germans, chiefly conservatives, who would rather see the Entente occupy the whole country than to have it Bolshevist, but they are in the dwindling minority.

To Avoid Hasty Decision.

Reports from the Versailles correspondents emphasize the feeling of amazement and excitement which prevailed on the reading of the terms of the treaty, all the correspondents agreeing that no hasty decision will be reached. A fortnight is allowed the Germans for the return of an answer, and this time will be used for careful consideration of the demands and the preparation of countersuggestions, the correspondents say.

There is much speculation in Berlin as to whether the terms represent maximum demands which may be reduced, or whether they are minimum and irreducible.

According to the Berliner Zeitung am Mittag, the delegation at Versailles will carefully avoid any bargaining, but will present definite, clear-cut counter propositions, which in part have already been prepared.

"These counterproposals," the newspaper says editorially, "will be based on the fourteen points so disgracefully abandoned by President Wilson. If the German people had to vote on these terms as a whole there would not be in the whole empire a single 'Yes.' Force without measure or limit—that used to be a Wilson phrase, and the Wilson peace offered us falls in this category instead of his fourteen points."

The Parliamentary leaders of all factions who are in Berlin to attend committee meetings admit that they were stunned by the severity of the terms. Beyond casual comment, however, they declined to discuss the Entente's conditions or to forecast the Assembly's probable attitude.

A leading member of the Independent Socialists declared that the peace offered was wholly dictatorial, and that its revision was possible only through a world revolution.

Berlin Press Sees Ruin in Terms.

Condemnation of the peace terms is expressed by all the newspapers here, those of the extreme right referring to the conditions as "unfulfillable," and to the treaty as "an instrument of robbery."

The Tageszeitung says:

"One thing is certain, there can be no question of this being a peace of justice. What a peace of justice after the Entente pattern and in accordance with French desires looks like is shown by the conditions, which leave nothing of Germany but a torn and tattered territory."

The Freiheit says that, compared with the policy Germany pursued at Brest-Litovsk, the Entente peace "must be termed quite moderate," but it argues that the terms are in sharp contradiction to President Wilson's fourteen points, and that if peace is to be built on this compromise it assuredly can have no firm and lasting foundation.

"A peace of annihilation," is the caption used by Vorwärts, which says that there is "a ruthless desire to lay Germany permanently low by force. * * * If we sign this peace it is because we are bound by force, but in our hearts we resolutely reject it. Such a peace is an attempt to exterminate a nation, not by force of arms, but by a means more brutal, economic slavery."

Asserts Wilson Policy Is Ignored.

The Frankfurter Zeitung says:

"We are at the graveside of right. The only doubt is whether it also means the graveside of the German nation. Never has murder been committed in more courteous form or with more cynical equanimity. The German reply will have to consider that the draft deviates from Mr. Wilson's fourteen points as far as the east is from the west."

Premier Hirsch of Prussia, speaking in the Prussian National Assembly today, characterized the terms as representing a purely "mailed fist" peace, which "would mean slavery for the Fatherland and fresh bloodshed for Europe."

"The Government appeals to you," he continued, "to close your ranks, preserve your calm, and avoid indiscretion in case of dissensions. We are faced by the question of to be or not to be.

"The entire nation must stand behind the Government to convert this projected peace of violence into a peace of right. That is possible only if the nation, which is expected to sign its own death warrant, firmly supports the Government. This, the most mournful day in our history, must find us strong."

Death Sentence, Says Scheidemann.

BERNE, May 9.—The Peace Committee of the German National Assembly, at a meeting on Thursday, discussed the peace terms. President Fehrenbach of the Assembly said that the terms were more drastic than the most pessimistic forecasts had indicated, and that they meant the perpetual enslavement of the German people. He declared that the treaty was dictated by hate.

Chancellor Scheidemann, Berlin dispatches add, pointed out what he called the contradictions between President Wilson's principles and the peace terms. He described the terms as being a death sentence for the German people.

The committee adjourned after approving the announced intention of the Government to obtain "an acceptable peace" by negotiation.

Chancellor Asks for Soberness.

LONDON, May 9.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Berlin says that after a five-hour session of the German Cabinet on Thursday, Philipp Scheidemann, the Chancellor, delivered a speech to the committee appointed to consider the treaty in which he said that the Government "must discuss this document of hatred and madness with sobriety."

The Chancellor indicated that the German delegation at Versailles had been instructed to hand a note to the Allies showing difference between the treaty terms and President Wilson's fourteen points and to submit counterproposals and endeavor to start an oral discussion. He expressed the hope that the peace conditions would be considered with good-will by both parties and that a satisfactory result would be reached.

Talk of Preferring Anarchy.

LONDON, May 9.—In a review of German opinion on the terms of peace, telegraphed here, Reuter's Berlin correspondent says that a remark heard on all sides in Berlin is "Rather anarchy than such slavery," and that all of the people are discussing the consequences of a refusal by Germany to sign the treaty.

"President Wilson," continues the correspondent, "is particularly the object of criticism, his so-called weakness evoking indignation, although there are still many who base their hopes upon him.

"The President of the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, Franz Mendelssohn, says that the first impression is a crushing one, but he is hopeful that the Entente may be finally convinced that Germany can only discharge her obligations if she remains economically sound.

"Director Guttmann of the Dresden Bank expressed himself as convinced that the peace proposals, unless they are altered, mean Germany's absolute ruin."

Herr Shücking, a member of the German peace delegation, in addressing his colleagues on Tuesday, expressed the opinion that the League of Nations ought to include all the powers signatory to The Hague Convention and the Pope, according to a Reuter dispatch from Paris. He favored The Hague as the seat of the League instead of Geneva, and regarded the system of mandates for German colonies as little else than "disguised annexation."

The dispatch states that Herr Schücking expressed disappointment that nothing would be said in the treaty about the freedom of the seas, and said that he would much prefer a system of maritime police.

BIG DROP IN GERMAN BONDS.

Street Trading in Berlin—Bourse Closed in Hamburg Also.

BERLIN, May 8, (Associated Press.)—Members of the Bourse reached the Exchange today without knowing that the Exchange Committee had resolved to cease trading for three days as a result of the excitement due to the delivery of the peace terms to the German delegates at Versailles. The members at first expressed indignation over the terms of the treaty and then began trading in the streets.

The war loan securities sold far below previous figures, and trading in local loans was feeble. German shipping securities were down in price, while foreign shares, notably Canadian Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio, and English pound notes, rose noticeably.

The financial writers comment exhaustively on economic problems. They say that these problems will be rendered impossible by the peace terms, which will mean the destruction of Germany. The Tageblatt's financial expert says that Germany had hoped, if not in this generation, at least in the next, to be able to recover and live by her own work, but that this belief now has been completely upset.

The Vossische Zeitung estimates that the indemnity will total 180,000,000,000 marks gold, and complains that the Entente has not taken into account the war material and the navy delivered up. The writer declares that a smaller and weaker Germany will be unable to pay.

HAMBURG, May 8.—The Stock Exchange here has decided to close for two days, as a result of the situation created by the publication of the peace treaty.

EXPECTS GERMANY TO SIGN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, May 8.—The pledge given by President Wilson and Lloyd George to propose to their respective Parliaments to make an engagement to assist France in case of unprovoked attack by Germany, is regarded as a necessary supplement to the peace treaty. Such an engagement would furnish practical guarantees in the event of the League of Nations failing to realize all expectations.

Discussion today chiefly turns on the question of Germany's acceptance of the terms. The prevailing opinion is that the German delegates will sign because they must, but under protest, and that every effort will be made later on to evade full execution of the terms by means of several loop-holes which the treaty offers. Outside of convinced leaguers, there are few who believe that the Germany of the future will be content to abide by the decisions of the second Versailles Treaty.

It is pointed out that unless the rest of the world disarms, it is a vain hope to expect a nation of 70,000,000 to remain in a position of punitive inferiority.

The views of the treaty as outlined are expressed in every possible note, between the imperialistic Globe's "We are as far off the millennium as ever," and the radical Star's dithyrambic "Salute to the League of Nations as the redemption and salvation of the world." But, on the whole, the balance of opinion is that the terms are as good as it was humanly possible to make them.

SAY GERMANY MUST PAY.

Belgian Papers Point Out That the Enemy Has Admitted Defeat.

BRUSSELS, May 10.—Some of the Belgian newspapers point out that Germany, by admitting defeat must submit to the consequences. The Etoile Belge is of the opinion that the hard terms do not even indemnify the Allies for their losses. The newspaper expresses surprise that the proposed stipulation regarding British and American support of France in case of attack was not also made for the benefit of Belgium.

The Independence Belge says that it is impossible for Germany to offer further resistance or to refuse equitable reparation.

The Socialist newspaper People says: "Regarding the revision of the treaty of 1839 it is desirable that Belgium apply as soon as possible to the real League of Nations instead of finding herself at the benevolent discretion of the three nations," and considers that the distinction between the principal powers and the others should be removed.

TURNS AGAINST WILSON.

Non-Partisan League Press in Northwest Attacks Peace Treaty.

Special to The New York Times.

FARGO, N. D., May 9.—The Non-Partisan League press today opened a bitter attack on President Wilson and the treaty of peace, which is styled a "ghastly mockery of democracy."

The attack is politically significant because it has for some time been considered probable that the Non-Partisan League forces, in five Northwestern States in which it is a big political factor, and which normally are Republican, would swing to the Democratic ticket.

"President Wilson, instead of the greatest man in all history, will return to America broken and discredited," says The Fargo Courier News, the daily newspaper in Fargo, the editorial policy of which is directed by A. C. Townley, President of the Non-Partisan League.

OPPOSES PEACE TREATY.

Colonel Osterrieth, chief of the Belgian Military Mission to the United States, who recently returned from a visit to Paris and Belgium with 100 Belgian veterans, said in a statement yesterday that he did not understand the attitude of the American delegates at Paris with respect to Belgium and that he was unwilling to credit the cabled news on the subject. He said:

"I have visited every part of the United States—from the north to the south, from the east to the west. I know the sentiment of the American people. Everywhere I have gone your people have said to me, 'Belgium has saved the world from the Prussian hordes, and we American people will not stop fighting until Belgium is completely restored and indemnified.' That has been the spirit of your great, noble, and generous people in all sections of America wherever I have been, and I know that the American people will never be satisfied with any treaty of peace that does not include provisions which will restore Belgium to the place she occupied, as your President said, 'among the respected nations of the earth.'

"I do not understand the present attitude of your delegates in Paris. The cable news must be wrong, as I am sure your delegates will carry out the views and wishes of the great American people, which is full restitution to Belgium and her indemnification."

GERMANS PROPOSE ORAL DISCUSSIONS

SOME GOING BACK TO BERLIN

BERNE, May 9.—The German Government has telegraphed to the delegates at Versailles ordering them to present to the Allied and Associated Powers, within the fifteen days allowed, a proposition demanding verbal discussions, dispatches from Berlin say.

VERSAILLES, May 9, (Associated Press.)—Despite the decision that no oral negotiations shall be permitted, it is expected here that verbal discussions of some phases of the Peace Treaty may take place, and rooms at the Trianon Palace Hotel are being held in readiness for a possible session of Inter-Allied and German commissions.

Six members of the mission have left for Berlin, three of these being newspaper men who are reported to have been commissioned to begin a press campaign at home. Among the latter is Frederick Stampfer, chief editor of the Socialist Vorwärts.

Eight new members of the German delegation have arrived here. Among them is Count Alfred von Oberndorff, a member of the German Armistice Commission. He brought credentials as a Minister Plenipotentiary at the conference and is expected to take an important part in the negotiations.

Many Terms Shock Germans.

It is impossible as yet to gain an indication of the attitude of the German plenipotentiaries, but information coming from German sources goes to show that it is possible that the Ebert-Scheidemann Government is considering its fate if it should accept such a drastic treaty. It may choose to refuse to sign the treaty and go down in a blaze of patriotic glory.

According to this information the greatest shock to the Germans was given by the formula establishing the frontier of Poland, giving, as it did, a great part of West Prussia and a considerable seacoast to Poland, in addition to large coal fields in Upper Silesia. When the German delegates left home they expected to hear rather more moderate proposals regarding the Polish frontier and Danzig.

The delegates question the possibility of Germany paying reparation to the extent laid down by the treaty, and they doubt whether they should sign clauses which they are in fact certain to regard as impossible of fulfillment.

They object also to the surrender of their entire mercantile fleet, arguing that this would force them to pay an additional indemnity to England in freight for every ton of raw material imported, manufactured and exported, under the virtual British monopoly of ocean tonnage which they assume would soon follow the elimination of the German mercantile fleet.

Distrust Independents' Faith.

Due consideration is naturally given to the fact that the declaration that Germany would refuse to sign the peace unless the conditions were greatly modified in her favor may possibly have been put out just now with the object of influencing the negotiations, and that it is not necessarily conclusive. Experts attached to the Interallied Conference who have just returned from Germany, where they endeavored to obtain material for a definite verdict on this subject, believe, however, that refusal by the present Government to sign is not impossible.

They expect that in this case the existing Government would fall immediately and be succeeded by an Independent Socialist Government which would sign any treaty presented without, however, any intention of binding itself by its signature or of observing the conditions if the opportunity arose to disregard them.

Colonel Henry, who was the only link between the Germans and the Allies up to the time of the presentation of the treaty, has declared that the Germans have generally relaxed their rigid routine of the last few days and walked in the park this morning.

Want to Limit Reparation.

PARIS, May 9.—The German delegates to the Peace Conference are considerably divided among themselves in their views on the terms submitted by the Allied and Associated Powers, it was intimated today by a high British authority, a Reuter statement says:

In their answer to the terms, the newspapers say, the Germans will propose especially to assume the burden of making reparation only for damage caused in Northern France and Belgium. The papers state that it is not unlikely the Allies will refuse the proposition. The German delegates, it is added, also intend to give battle over the questions of the Sarre Valley, Danzig, the former German colonies and military occupation.

Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, in a long wireless exchange with Berlin, the newspapers say, expressed a desire to confer with the German-Austrian delegates on their arrival at St. Germain.

One of the Allied delegates told L'Echo de Paris that the attempt by Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau to make other countries beside Germany responsible for the war and his appeal to universal brotherhood, were coolly received by the chiefs of the Allied and Associated Powers, especially Premier Lloyd George and President Wilson.

It is generally believed that the Germans will answer the delivery of the treaty by proposals relative to certain phases of the document. A competent commission will examine the German answer, and if modifications are necessary, the Germans will be notified. It is, therefore, probable that from twenty-five to thirty days will elapse before the treaty is finally signed.

GERMANS SEE DICTATED PEACE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, May 9.—All the German peace delegates agree that the terms had a tremendous effect on the members of the delegation.

Immediately after their presentation, Herr Landsberg, Minister of Justice, according to the Berlin correspondent of the Berlingske Tidende, said to a representative of the Swölf Uhr Blatt that even the most pessimistic forebodings had been more than realized. There was no likelihood of verbal negotiations, he said, and he continued:

"When we have expressed our criticisms in writing they will be answered in similar manner, and then there is the choice only between 'Yes' and 'No.' It is the very quintessence of a dictated peace."

Professor Schücking expressed himself to the effect that even in trifling matters it was obviously France's intention to humiliate Germany.

Herr Giesberts was very outspoken:

"Such a peace," he said, "would mean that German workers were to do forced labor for international imperialism. We must now adopt immediately the only course open, namely, to arrange peace with Russia and invite Russian troops into Germany."

BORAH ASKS FOR SHOWDOWN.

Says if Republicans Favor League He Will Quit Party.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Borah of Idaho in a letter made public today reaffirming his opposition to the League of Nations, asked that the Republican party announce its attitude on the adoption of the League covenant, and intimated that if this attitude were one of approval for that document he would quit the party.

Mr. Borah's letter, which was written to the editor of the Boston (Mass.) Transcript, said:

"It is a matter about which only cowards could have no convictions. Can a partisan under such circumstances [illegible] Can a political party under such circumstances afford to put its Americanism aside—can it jay-hawk between the lines and still expect to hold the confidence and respect of a vigorous and brave people? [illegible] Can a Republican, feeling and smelling ground as a white-livered satellite of base expediency? It would be a thousand times better to stand forth even if defeated with certainty.

"If the Republican party could even through defeat save the sacred traditions of America, preserve American institutions, and maintain unimpaired the independence and untrammeled sovereignty of the republic, it would render a service second even to its heroic service under the leadership of the blessed martyr. But suppose it should be said to such men as myself that the party might be in favor of the proposition? Very well, let it say so. Let it surrender its place, if it wants to, as the defender of American institutions and American ideals. And let those who would abhor such hideous cowardice fumigate themselves and get out.

"Even this would be more honorable than to go skulking through such a fight without views or convictions or even an attitude. I would not ask my party to agree with me, but I should want to know. If I cannot do that I will soon determine my course. I despise a coward and I hate a traitor."

Danes Sweep Schleswig Election.

Fifty-three Danes and twelve Germans were elected as compared with eighteen Danes and forty-six Germans the previous elections.

GERMAN BLUNDER SEEN AT VERSAILLES

OBVIOUSLY UNREPENTANT

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, May 8.—Those who hoped that Germany might put her best foot foremost at Versailles yesterday were greatly disappointed. But the Brockdorff-Rantzau speech does not read anything like as badly as it sounded. In this last phase Germany has kept up her abominable record for misunderstanding the psychology of other peoples.

From the German point of view Versailles was agony, but it was also an extraordinary opportunity. It seems a pity that among all the seventy or eighty million Germans there could not have been found by the Ebert Government one man of understanding. No advantage was taken of the great dramatic moment to present divided and broken Germany in such colors as to appeal to the magnanimity of the conquerors. The spectacle of the greatest and strongest military power in a state of absolute collapse and helplessness, if staged with sincerity and frankness, would certainly have produced a favorable reaction among the large element which is ready to give her as much help toward recovery as circumstances will permit.

Germans Obviously Unrepentant.

Germany's spokesmen had not the faintest glimmering of the psychological situation, and proceeded to give force and effect to all the bitter criticism that had been passed on Germany's entire lack of human sensibilities. Those who desire in the interest of the world's future to heal the breach and put things in train for concord at the earliest possible moment had the ground cut from under them by the cold and unrepentant attitude of the German Foreign Minister.

There can never be genuine good relationship until Germany shows that she deeply realizes her wrongdoing by destroying her own power for mischief, and until this new outlook on international affairs is expressed with such force and sincerity as to compel conviction. Germany's attitude as expressed in the matter and manner of Brockdorff-Rantzau's speech is not compatible with her failure in her criminal attempt upon her neighbors.

No one has any clear idea of what may be expected from Germany. Such behavior as her reception of the peace terms and the spiteful messages which have been received from the Versailles delegates, protesting against delay and suggesting that if these are not ended it might be well to permit them to go back home—to which message they got a brusque reply—may not mean from Germany what it would mean from some other nation. It may be an indication, on the contrary, that she is going to accept the terms, but reserves the right to do so with a bad grace.

Some people had hoped that the Germans would accept promptly, saying in effect:

"We are the losers. The responsibility for the results rests on you. We shall do everything in our power to make the results successful, because in that direction lies our best hope. We shall carry out the terms with absolute good faith. As time goes on and the German people have an opportunity to show those points of industry and endurance which even their worst enemies concede them, a better atmosphere may be created, and possibly the Allies may discover the great identity of interest that has been concealed in the passion and confusion of the war.

"We shall not expect mercy to us, or any sacrifice of enlightened self-interest by the Allies. But the main point to be gained is the destruction of militarism in Germany and the adoption by the German people of a liberal and democratic method of government that will render impossible such wars as have heretofore exhausted Europe. The German people are more against war today than any other people, and, humiliating as is the method by which it is imposed upon us, we accept sure and swift demilitarization as the greatest single item on the credit side of this war. And we look forward to the League of Nations as holding out the greatest hope ever presented to the world for getting rid of the burden of war."

Final Test of German Sentiment.

While the majority believe the Germans incapable of generous emotion of any kind, there are many well-informed observers who believe that something like the imaginary confession quoted represents the real desire of the German people. There is no much confusion, however, and the German public is broken up into so many factions, and the whole situation is so discouraging, that it is difficult to put aside differences and unite public sentiment for a policy of rebuilding on bedrock. How much constructive ability there is in Germany and to what extent respect for moral forces has survived or replaced militarism will become clear from the manner in which the present crisis is met.

The departure and return of the Italian delegates has not been sufficiently explained in the general confusion of the last few days. So far as I can learn, there were no invitations or other arrangements for their return from Rome. Tuesday morning, while the Council of Three were hammering away in the Place des Etats Unis, the door opened and in walked Orlando. He settled down in his customary chair, the story goes, as if nothing had happened.

D'ANNUNZIO DEMANDS FIUME

Harangues Poetically an Excited Throng in Rome.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 8.—"Italians keep ever your spirit and admire your tricolor," said Gabriele D'Annunzio today from the Capitol before an excited, enthusiastic crowd.

"We have won. We shall win again. If there is some one who hesitates he must listen to the cry coming from the shores across the Adriatic. The people will listen to it and convert it into law. It is inevitable, as victory was inevitable. Those who govern us had better bear it in mind."

The poet said he wished that the flag given to him by his friend and fellow-aviator, Giovanni Randaccio, who died a heroic death, should be consecrated on the Capitol before he took it to Trieste, where Randaccio had wished it to wave above the tower of San Giusto. "At Monfalcone," he concluded, "it covered Randaccio's body, at Aquila it covered his coffin. This, Romans; this, Italians; this, companions, is the flag of this hour. I kiss for you in its folds all the Dalmatian towns and Fiume, all the centres of Italian martyrs."

BELGIUM IS SEEKING AFRICAN MANDATE

RECONSIDERATION ORDERED

PARIS, May 9.—After Paul Hymans, head of the Belgian delegation, had discussed the rights of Belgium in German East Africa today, Premier Lloyd George telegraphed Viscount Milner, British Secretary for the Colonies, to come to Paris. On his arrival here questions concerning the East African mandate will be considered again.

The Belgian delegation yesterday issued a note relative to Great Britain being appointed mandatary for German East Africa, saying that it was "unable to believe that this action had been taken by the Council of Four."

"In view of Belgium's important military operations in Africa, her sacrifices to insure the conquest of German East Africa, and the fact that her situation has given her rights on that continent," the note says, "Belgium is unable to admit that German East Africa could be disposed of by agreements in which she has not participated."

The Belgian delegation called at American headquarters yesterday and made energetic representations regarding the mandate for German East Africa. The members also complained strongly of the omission from the peace treaty of a provision indemnifying Belgium for the 7,000,000,000 marks of German money forced into circulation in Belgium during the German occupation, which has depreciated to one-fourth of its face value.

HOLD THIRD EMPIRE SECRETS.

Documents Demanded from Germany Belonged to Napoleon III.'s Minister.

PARIS, May 8.—The clause in the peace treaty calling upon Germany to return to France papers taken in 1870, belonging to Eugène Rouher, a prominent French statesman under the Empire, has caused much speculation as to the nature of the documents. Rouher, who was a Minister of Justice when the Franco-Prussian War broke out, had secreted a great number of private and official documents in his château. These were seized and carried away by the Germans when they invaded France and were never restored.

The treaty does not say to what questions the official papers relate, but it is recalled that Rouher was violently opposed to Thiers in 1867 on the questions of German unity and Italian unity, as well as on the question of confiscating the property of the Orleans family.

Rouher was a refugee in London during the Franco-Prussian War and was among the followers of the former Empress Eugénie. He returned to France in 1871, but Thiers had him conducted to the frontier. Afterward he became a member of the Chamber of Deputies and was active in attempting to reorganize the Bonapartist Party.

BRITISH LABOR MEN CRITICAL.

Think Treaty Opposed in Some Points to Wilson's Declarations.

LONDON, May 8.—After meeting to consider the terms of peace imposed upon Germany by the allied and associated nations, the National Executive Committtee of the British Labor Party tonight issued a manifesto declaring the treaty in some essential particulars "opposed to the declarations of President Wilson, of the interallied labor conference and the Berne conference, and very defective from the standpoint of world peace."

"It bears evidence of a compromise by capitalism and imperialism which still dominate European States," the manifesto declared. "Any permanent denial of Germany of an opportunity to become a mandatary under the League of Nations must cause jealousy and unrest leading to further international disputes."

Other points criticised were the failure to give Germany representation on the Reparation Commission and the omission of provisions for a progressive limitation of armaments by the other signatories to the treaty. The manifesto protested against the permanent separation of the Sarre Basin from Germany, and advocated a plebiscite in Malmedy and other contested territories between Belgium and Germany.

Referendum Blocks Dakota Legislation.

Special to The New York Times.

FARGO, N. D., May 9.—Governor Lynn J. Frazier today fixed June 26 as the date for a special referendum election in North Dakota, when the whole industrial program adopted by the Legislature will go to the polls for review at the hands of the voters. By fixing this early election day, Governor Frazier blocks an attempt to initiate four new laws, three of which are modifications of the industrial program put forward by the Nonpartisan League.

KOLCHAK RALLIES ALL ANTI-RED RUSSIA

HIS ARMY NEAR THE VOLGA

Embassy in Washington Says Hour Long Awaited by Patriots Has Come at Last.

PARIS, May 8.—The movement for the recognition of the government of Admiral Kolchak at Omsk by the Allies and the United States as the de facto government in Russia is supported so generally in Paris that announcement of such action any day would not be surprising.

The Russian factions in Paris are apparently coming together on a platform providing for the support of any movement that guarantees a Constitutional Assembly elected by universal suffrage. Premier Kerensky, who is now in Paris, opposes the government of Admiral Kolchak, but the Admiral's repeated promises of a Constitutional Assembly have apparently satisfied most of the Russian radicals here.

It appears likely that Admiral Kolchak will be asked by the Great Powers to restate his program, giving assurance that the future of Russia will be decided by a popularly elected body, before recognition is granted.

Meanwhile encouraging reports have been received of the progress of Kolchak's troops against the Bolsheviki. According to dispatches to the Russian committee in Paris, Samara, an important point on the Volga, has been evacuated by the Bolsheviki, and Kolchak's forces are moving rapidly toward the Volga in pursuit of the retreating Bolsheviki. From east of Samara northward the Bolsheviki are being pushed back. On the extreme northern wing the Bolsheviki are retreating rapidly a few miles east of the important railway and manufacturing town of Viatka.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The strength of the Omsk Government has reached such a stage that a formal declaration made today by S. Ughet, chargé d'affaires ad interim of the Russian Embassy, begins:

"The hour which Russian patriots and democrats have been waiting for during long months has come at last." The statement indicates that the details of the establishment of the Government at Omsk as the All-Russian Government have been completed.

Thanks are given to the United States and the allied nations for their assistance, especially to the Czechoslovak republic, whose soldiers stemmed the flood of Bolshevism at the most critical time, before the Omsk Government could be organized.

"Russia is coming back to life," concludes the statement, "and the near future will see her a great organized State built on broad democratic principles, with equality before the law for every creed and nationality. Russia's constitutional, social, and national problems will be solved through the All-Russian Constituent Assembly."

LONDON, May 9.—A dispatch from Omsk, under date of May 1, says that since the capture of Cristopol, on the Kama, by the forces of Admiral Kolchak, the Siberians have been advancing at an average rate of seven miles a day and have reached the Shenala River. The enemy's resistance has been broken in the Bugulma-Bogoroslan area, (Samara district,) and a similar rate of advance is being maintained in that region.

Five rifle regiments of the Reds have capitulated on the Samara front, and it is reported that there is a great lack of discipline among the enemy.

NORTH RUSSIA REDS BEATEN BY ALLIES

Fail in Two Infantry Attacks, Following Bombardment with 5,000 Shells.

ARCHANGEL, May 9, (via Montreal.)—Major Gen. Ironsides, Commander in Chief of the allied forces on the Archangel front, reports that on May 5 the enemy bombarded the allied position on the Vaga River with 5,000 shells and subsequently launched two infantry attacks. The allied casualties were slight.

From Murmansk General Maynard reports that the forces under him have occupied Korelska Maselga on Lake Segozers. This occurred May 8. All the villages on the lake are clear of the Bolsheviki.

On the railway the enemy has retired to a point ten miles south of Mesalskaya.

CHINESE DELEGATES TOLD NOT TO SIGN

Peking and Southern Governments Cable Opposition to Shantung Settlement.

PARIS, May 9, (Associated Press.)—The Chinese delegation has received cabled instructions from Peking not to sign the treaty of peace because of the Kiao-chau-Shantung settlement.

Instructions to the same effect have been received from the representatives of both the Northern and Southern Governments in the Chinese Peace Conference at Shanghai.

The Chinese delegation to the Peace Conference has issued a statement saying that 5,000 students marched to the American and British Legations in Peking to ask the Ministers to urge the Council of Three to reconsider their Shantung decision. The police prevented the admission of the crowd to the Legation Square. The students then set fire to the residence of the Minister of Communications. During the disorders the Chinese Minister to Tokio, who is in Peking, was seriously injured.

The foregoing statement confirms Peking advices sent under date of May 5 and received in this country Thursday by The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Ambassador Morris, at Tokio, in an official dispatch received today at the State Department said that there was a very strong feeling among the Chinese against the Japanese as the result of the disposition of Shantung provided for in the treaty of Versailles. Mr. Morris told of the recent disturbances at Peking, in the course of which the Chinese Minister to Tokio was attacked by students who believe he was favorably disposed toward the Japanese claims.

TYPHUS HITS AMERICAN WORKERS IN MACEDONIA

KAVALLA, Macedonia, April 10, (by Mail.)—Typhus, which laid low more than 600 Greek refugees from Bulgaria in this city alone, also hit heavily the small group of Americans here. Edward Walker of Blacksburg, Va., a lieutenant in the American Red Cross, died of the disease; Miss Clarissa R. Blakeslee of Drexel Hill Pa., was dangerously ill; Miss Florence A. Stone of Plainfield, N. J., Kenneth A. Thomas of Bridgeport, Conn., J. L. Taylor of Paterson, N. J., and Gustave C. Schmunck of 640 Manhattan Avenue, New York City, also were stricken. All were American Red Cross workers.

Professor C. Vasiliou and Mr. Skaloudis of the International Red Cross Mission, who visited Kavalla, caught the typhus at the same time and both died.

With virtually all its personnel at Kavalla ill with the disease, the American Red Cross rushed another expedition of doctors and nurses under Major Samuel J. Walker of Chicago, Ill., to co-operate with the Greek doctors in a fight against the epidemic, which threatens to become widespread if it is not promptly checked.

Conditions during the height of the epidemic were alarming. Hundreds of refugees housed in a four-story tobacco warehouse were in open revolt. Groups of dead were removed from this warehouse daily. From here the disease spread to the city and to the army barracks. Finally 200 sick in the warehouse broke from all restraint and fled into the open country, carrying the disease with them to infect other centers of population.

Typhus in Macedonia can be traced to the arrival of 2,280 Greek refugees who landed at Kavalla on Jan. 25 after coming by sea from Varna, Bulgaria. When they reached Kavalla sixty of their number were down with typhus.

TWO OUNCES OF MEAT BAR TO BOLSHEVISM

It Is Salt Pork at That, but Has Saved Vienna Thus Far, Investigator Finds.

MISERY OF PEOPLE GREAT

No Milk, Sugar, Butter, Salt on Hotel Menus, Nor Bread for Native Patrons.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, May 8.—I have just finished breakfast. There was no milk, no sugar, no butter, no salt. If I were a genuine Viennese, there would have been no bread either, but as I am an eccentric foreigner belonging to a victorious nation and of enormous wealth, I have a piece of bread. As far as I can ascertain, it weighs a few grams over an ounce. It is of dirty brown color and of semi-liquid consistency. If I lift it about a foot in the air and drop it on the table, it makes a feeble effort to bounce, and then sags out soggily all round, like India rubber with the elasticity left out. That is my breakfast.

My lunch consists of lentil soup, really rather pleasant to the taste, though not altogether satisfying. It is followed by Amerikanische Pücklefleisch, which is American pork. I should estimate that it weighs about two ounces. It is not very nice; but it is a very wonderful two ounces of meat, for it alone prevented Vienna from going Bolshevist any time this last fortnight. I mean it represents one man's share of the twelve Entente food trains which are daily coming into Vienna. Without it, Vienna would starve to death in a week; and as Vienna knows it and knows that the Entente does not like Bolshevism, and would stop the food trains if Vienna turned Bolshevist, Vienna does not turn Bolshevist.

There are some gemischte Gemüse (mixed vegetables) with the salt pork. They are mostly a rather sweetish sauerkraut, and something that I think must be a limp kind of vegetable marrow. There are no potatoes. My dessert is what is known as Mehlspeise, which is a bit of jammy cake made, I think, from rather overglutinous plaster of paris.

That is my luncheon, and the cost of it, including half a bottle of rather good red wine and a cup of Ersatzkaffee—made of inferior acorns mixed with dried liver of a horse that must have worked hard in its time—is 38 kroner. To a wealthy foreigner like myself this only means a little over $2.25, but to a real Viennese a kroner is still worth 20 cents, and his luncheon would cost him well over $7.50.

Estimates vary as to the number of people out of work in Vienna. With their families, I suppose there must be well over 250,000 of them. They cannot afford $7.50 apiece for their luncheon. I suppose there must be another million who are making on the average 10 kronen daily. They cannot afford $7.50 for their luncheon, either.

The meals that I described vary very little from what you get in Berlin, Breslau, and Budapest, and 100 other Central European cities. I have been in Central Europe something like two months now, and I can say in all honesty that I have not seen any bread that the down-and-outest tramp in England or America would condescend to look at twice. I have seen eggs four or five times, but never costing less than 3 crowns or marks apiece. I have seen a farmer's wife actually burst into tears with gratitude when I gave her a piece of soap. I have tried to buy a white shirt in Vienna, and been asked 160 crowns for one of the poorest quality. I have seen in fashionable boot shops footwear offered for sale at 60 and 80 crowns with wooden soles and uppers made of some kind of paper.

Retirement When Peace Comes Not Connected with Italian Crisis.

PARIS, May 9, (Associated Press.)—Thomas Nelson Page, the American Ambassador to Italy, has made known his intention to resign after the conclusion of peace, it was stated in high quarters in Paris today.

Ambassador Page has contemplated this step for the last two years, but it now has become definitely known that it has no relation to the recent tension over the withdrawal of the Italian delegation from the Peace Conference.

The Ambassador's efforts to restore relations have led to the circulation of reports that he differed with President Wilson, but it is stated in authoritative circles that these reports are unwarranted, and that his intention to resign has not been caused by any question that has risen in connection with the Italian issue.

Mr. Page arrived in Paris this afternoon, accompanied by Camille Barrère, French Ambassador to Italy.

SEES FRENCH GAIN IN TREATY CLAUSES

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

tion is perfect. Alsace-Lorraine comes back to us as a purely French province, without charge, without any international restrictions or qualifications. We get it completely, with no expense for railroad, mining, or any other developments the Germans have made there during the last forty years. With the French public—workmen, peasants, and farmers—that is the main point.

"The people will also be content with the Sarre Vallley settlement when they fully understand it. We consider the future of that valley settled. It surely will be French territory.

"The third great point for French satisfaction is the definite agreement we have with the United States and England whereby they will support us against any attack on our territory. Therein lies the great Clemenceau victory. The whole policy of the French Premier throughout the Peace Conference has been to avoid every tendency that might lead to a break with America and England. That has been his cardinal point. The future historian must emphasize that in all chapters on Clemenceau. Today the French people are fully in accord with Clemenceau in what he has so successfully done in maintaining this entente with your country and England.

Complaint About Indemnities.

"So much for what the bulk of the French people are satisfied with. Concerning the financial settlement, it is a different matter. Our people are far from satisfied on the question of reparation and indemnities. The settlement of those vital problems is not in accord with French needs after the war nor with French ideas of justice. With that one big exception, France as a whole will hail the peace as a good peace. In the case of the French upper classes, as a rule, the satisfaction is not so general, for these people, familiar with history and politics, will not only join the masses in resenting the financial settlements, but will be skeptical as to the practical working out of the treaty provisions. They will also surely share with Marshal Foch his bitter disappointment concerning the settlement on the left bank of the Rhine.

"The criticism of the French statesmen in general is that the treaty is too much the work of theorists, and that practical business men had too little to do with it. Take the case of Poland, for example. It is true the Polish State has been born, and that is something, for before the war there was no Poland. I will not say that Poland is stillborn, but the birth has not been very happy or under the safest conditions for the future. In Danzig there is grave danger for the new State, and for all Europe as well. Belgium surely is not satisfied, and has ample reason for dissatisfaction. The cases of Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Jugoslavia will not be finally adjusted till our settlement is made with Austria, but the outlook for all those States is extremely good. So far as purely Italian interests are concerned, Italy is sufficiently compensated already for her part in the war.

"Japan surely has everything she expected and more. But poor old China! The mystery of the Peace Conference to me is the striking contrast between Wilson's attitude toward France in the Rhine Valley and his ruling against China.

"However, despite these shortcomings, we have got a peace the net results of which will be good for the world as a whole, if we can avoid the pitfalls which it provides."

Dubious on Financial Clauses.

PARIS, May 9.—In the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday the peace treaty generally was approved by the Deputies, but some reservations were made concerning the financial clauses.

Raoul Peret, President of the Budget Commission, said that France apparently would have to bear all her war expenses, and it probably would be necessary to ask for 10,000,000,000 francs in taxes from the French people in the next fiscal year. M. Peret questioned if the people could pay such a sum.

The Socialist press criticises the peace conditions severely. One newspaper, for example, under the caption of "A Peace of Oppression and Injustice," said yesterday:

"The capitalist and imperialist world as it exists could produce only a capitalist and imperialist peace, which prepares the way for another war. Between President Wilson's Fourteen Points and certain stipulations communicated to Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau there are hiatuses and contrasts which are too striking."

precedent to guide and sustain him if he agreed to a similar disposition of the Fiume question.

But it cannot be too strongly emphasized that the American peace delegation rejects the view that the President is a party to any proposal to Italy which contemplates a compromise over Fiume. From the very best American sources of information—sources closest to the President—direct statements were obtained that the President understood that Orlando was returning unconditionally. In Italian quarters, the statement is made today that Orlando is returning because it would be embarrasing to the other Allies to arrange peace with the Germans without the participation of the Italian plenipotentiaries.

Vatican Organ for Compromise.

ROME, May 9, (Associated Press.)—The Osservatore Romano, the organ of the Vatican, in an evidently inspired article today, deals for the first time with the Adriatic question before the Peace Conference. After reviewing the history of the negotiations, the newspaper expresses the hope that a compromise will be reached at Paris by which Fiume will be assigned to Italy in exchange for concessions to Jugoslavia in Dalmatia.

Once Great Britain, France, and Italy agree to this compromise, adds the newspaper, "there will only remain to be overcome the opposition of President Wilson, but we trust that the eminent chief of the great republic, disregarding the utterances against him which the majority of the Italians have deplored, will with his approval of the compromise insure the final success of the great work of universal peace to which he has dedicated so much study."

JUGOSLAVS THANK WILSON.

Councils at Fiume, Zara, and Susak Urge Him to Disregard Italy.

BELGRADE, May 9, (Havas.)—The National Councils at Zara, Fiume, and Susak have sent telegrams to President Wilson expressing gratitude to him for defending the Jugoslav people. (Presumably the Jugoslav representative bodies in these towns are meant.)

They beg the President to disregard the desires of the Italians with reference to these places, and they demand their incorporation into the Serbian, Croatian, and Slovenian States.

PRICE REGULATION PROGRAM IS ENDED

COMPETITION TO GOVERN

Natural Forces of Supply and Demand Left to Readjust Business to Normal Levels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce came to an end today as a result of the failure of the Railroad Administration and the steel interests to agree upon rail prices at their conference in New York City, and it was announced that, so far as the Department of Commerce was concerned, the laws of supply and demand would from now on be permitted to govern the problems of industrial reconstruction.

In accepting the resignations of the members of the Industrial Board, however, Secretary Redfield asserted that he believed much had been accomplished to develop standards of public co-operation which will be of permanent value.

What the outcome will be in regard to the relations between the steel interests and the Railroad Administration Mr. Redfield was not prepared to predict. He was asked whether he thought the Government would take legal action, alleging constraint of trade, if the steel industry clung to the price schedules which had been approved by the Industrial Board, and replied:

"I do not know. I don't think so."

Attorney General Palmer, he said, had made a ruling to the effect that the action of the Board was not authorized by law.

"But the point," said Mr. Redfield, "is that the board has known that it has had no authority in law. It never expressed the desire for any such authority—never sought it. I do not understand that by his ruling the Attorney General held that any action taken by the board was illegal."

In referring to the general industrial situation, Mr. Redfield said that it might be interesting to know that at least four other industries had been prepared to make concessions in behalf of the advancement of reconstruction, but that negotiations now were, of course, to be abandoned. These industries, he said, were coal, cement, hard wood, and soft wood.

Washington Is Optimistic.

Official Washington was greatly interested today in the effect the abandonment of the Government's program, as represented by the Industrial Board, would have in the period of reconstruction. The feeling was general that with the conclusion of the treaty of peace the demand to "speed up" would be so determined that a basis of purchase and sale would have to be reached quickly by the industries and the buyers.

It is admitted that a temporary hesitation may be brought about if the steel interests stick to the schedule of prices agreed upon with the Industrial Board in submitting bids for contracts and the bids are rejected, as it is predicted they will be in that event, by the Railroad Administration. But that a deadlock which would threaten the advancement of prosperity could exist for any length of time in view of the general condition of the nation is not being seriously contemplated.

Reports here are to the effect that large quantities of steel will be needed by a number of the industries which have held back work and filled only absolutely essential orders pending a settlement of the differences which have developed. It is not felt, however, that this situation can long be maintained, but rather that industry and consumer will get down quickly to a basis which will result in the satisfactory resumption of production. The fact that Congress soon is to reassemble, it is felt, also will lend confidence to the interests involved, as it will ease up the governmental financial situation.

Secretary Redfield referred to T. C. Powell, representative of the Railroad Administration on the Industrial Board, as the only member who had "failed to co-operate" in the effort to work out the board's policies.

"We are satisfied," Mr. Redfield said, "that we have done our best."

"Does this end the Government's efforts at reconstruction work," he was asked.

"It ends this reconstruction effort," replied Mr. Redfield. "I do not know what the other departments are doing about it."

Chairman Peek of the Industrial Board left his offices today, stating that he was going on a vacation. The other members have returned to their homes.

Redfield Commends Board.

> At my desire the members of the Industrial Board have retained their official positions until the outcome of the conference between the Railroad Administration and the steel industry, which took place on the 8th instant, should be known. That conference was arranged at my suggestion by the Industrial Board with the approval of the Director General of Railroads. It appears from the statement issued by the Railroad Administration that the conference has failed to bring an agreement and the further assistance of the Industrial Board is not desired. In view of the announcement made by the Railroad Administration I have regretfully concluded that it is not proper longer to detain from their respective affairs the gentlemen who comprise the Industrial Board.
> That board was conceived in the spirit of unselfish public service and has so acted from the beginning. I repeat what was said yesterday: That there has been no change in its viewpoint, policy or attitude from the beginning. No statement nor inference to the contrary has a basis of fact. It has had the widespread support of industry and commerce throughout the country. It has sought merely to serve and has been ready to consider all figures, to respect all facts, and to reconsider any statement or conclusion in the light of further knowledge.
> Its mind has been open and its purpose was directed not to winning a controversy but solely and simply to serving the country. I believe it has developed standards of public cooperation which will be of permanent value.

Mr. Redfield in a letter to Mr. Peek, Chairman of the board, and in another letter to the different members expressed his appreciation of the work accomplished by the board.

LENOIR APPEALS SENTENCE.

Seeks to Escape Death Penalty Fixed by Paris Court-Martial.

PARIS, May 9, (Havas.)—Pierre Lenoir, who yesterday was convicted by court-martial of having had dealings with the enemy and sentenced to death, today formally appealed from the decision of the court.

Lenoir was tried with Senator Charles Humbert, Captain Georges Jiles Ladoux, and Guillaume Desouches. Humbert and Ladoux were acquitted but Desouches was convicted and sentenced to a term of five years in prison.

MOSS'S QUESTIONS ENRAGE WHITMAN

Cotillo vote for the confirmation of Mr. Perkins.

Senator Cotillo, at his own request, was permitted to take the stand and make a statement regarding this incident, and from this it appeared that the suggestion had come, not from Mr. Whitman, but from William A. Orr, who was the Governor's secretary, and that Mr. Whitman had taken favorable action, even though Senator Cotillo did not vote to confirm Mr. Perkins.

The questions bearing on the fight over the confirmation of Mr. Perkins were prefaced by Mr. Moss with quotations from a statement made in the Senate at the time by Senator Henry M. Sage of Albany, who charged that improper influences were at work to bring about the confirmation of Mr. Perkins, and that the latter had a first mortgage on Governor Whitman because of liberal contribution to the Whitman primary campaign of the preceding year.

Senator Burlingame, after Mr. Whitman had objected, ruled the questions out.

"If there was corruption, as may be inferred from the statement of Senator Sage, which was widely published at the time, it is the concern of this committee under the resolution which created it," objected Mr. Moss. "It is incumbent upon this committee to call upon Senator Sage to substantiate his statement, just as much as it was to call upon Senator Thompson to substantiate his."

"You were interested in the confirmation of Mr. Perkins?" asked Mr. Moss.

"I nominated him," said Mr. Whitman curtly.

Denies Promising Aid to Marshall.

"Did you have any conversation with Senator Marshall of Malone while the nomination of Mr. Perkins was pending?"

Mr. Whitman objected and was sustained, but Mr. Moss persisted, saying he wanted to prove out of the mouth of Mr. Whitman that Senator Marshall had been told by him that if he supported the confirmation of Mr. Perkins, even though it was against the wishes of his constituents, he would be provided with an ample campaign fund to insure his re-election against any such opposition.

"I will answer that question, no," replied Mr. Whitman.

Mr. Moss tried to carry his line of questioning further, but was told by Chairman Burlingame that he must be bound by the answer of Mr. Whitman, unless he intended to call Senator Marshall as a witness.

"You are creating a very bad public impression by making these insinuations in that form," admonished Senator Burlingame. "I want you to understand that the committee, as a matter of good faith, expects you to sustain any charges of this character that you make."

Mr. Whitman made vehement protest from the witness chair that the insinuations were a base slander on Mr. Perkins, and that the line of examination was against all the rules of evidence.

Senate Leader J. Henry Walters, who was at the hearing, interrupted here and said he had favored the confirmation of Mr. Perkins and that he was well aware no improper means had been used to obtain his confirmation, nor were any such charges made.

"Did you say to any Senator that you would pardon a man in whom he was interested if he would vote for the confirmation of Mr. Perkins?" Mr. Moss then asked.

Calls Question an Insult.

"I object to that question as an insult," he said, turning to Chairman Burlingame. "What do you mean—a Governor of the State of New York pardon a man for a vote?" he cried.

"That is what I said," said Mr. Moss.

"I did not!" said the former Governor.

"He denies it," said Chairman Burlingame. "Can you in any way prove it?"

"I will talk about that later," said Mr. Moss.

"No, we will talk about it right now," said Chairman Burlingame. "Can you in any way prove or sustain the subject matter of your question?"

"I had a reason for asking it. The Senator I had in mind is a member of this committee—Senator Cotillo."

By this time there was great excitement among the spectators. Chairman Burlingame suggested that the committee go into executive session and that Mr. Moss and Senator Cotillo both be sworn, and Moss actually was holding aloft his right hand waiting to have the oath administered. This led to the proposal for an executive session. The secret session was of short duration and was followed by instructions for Mr. Moss to continue his examination of Mr. Whitman.

During the afternoon session Senator Cotillo, at his own insistent demand and over the objection of Chairman Burlingame, was permitted to make a statement before the committee regarding the pardon. From this it appeared that Senator Cotillo had been interested in the restoration of citizenship to a doctor in the Bronx, and that an application was pending before the Governor at the time the confirmation of Mr. Perkins was before the Senate.

"I had no conversation with Governor Whitman about it," said the Senator. "I did have a talk with Mr. Orr, the Governor's private secretary. Mr. Orr said to me: 'Senator, you are a good fellow; can't you give the Governor some help on the confirmation of Perkins? The vote is going to be very close, and it will do you some good. You have a pardon case before the Governor.'"

Whitman Takes Stand.

When ex-Governor Whitman took the stand Mr. Moss at once began to question him regarding his attitude toward the rate legislation which was before last year's Legislature. This was embodied in what was known as the Pratt bill. The Pratt bill was practically identical with the Carson-Martin bill of this year in connection with which the $500,000 slush fund report was started. Mr. Moss asked the witness if he had taken a position in favor of the Pratt bill last year, when Governor.

"I hardly know how to answer your question," Mr. Whitman then said. "I never said to any one that I would approve the Pratt bill and I did not say to anybody that I would veto it. I stated that it seemed inopportune to me to pass that sort of legislation at that time. I did not believe that the bill could have passed, but I am not sure what I would have done had the bill been acted upon favorably by the Legislature after careful consideration."

"Did you cause it to be known that you were antagonistic to the bill?" asked Mr. Moss.

"I hardly know how to answer that question," said the ex-Governor. "It is an improper question. I have no doubt some members of the Legislature reached the conclusion that I was not favorable to the bill, and it is true I was not. But I never stated that I would not sign it."

Mr. Moss at this point changed his line of questioning to the retention of Mr. Whitman's law firm, Whitman, Ottinger & Ransom, to act for the Interborough in rate matters. The suggestion that the firm be retained was made by General Cornelius Vanderbilt to President Theodore P. Shonts of the Interborough. Mr. Whitman said that the General had approached him before making the suggestion, asking if his firm was available.

"Was the Carson-Martin bill discussed between you and the General?" asked Mr. Moss.

"Never," said Mr. Whitman.

"In any conversation that you had with General Vanderbilt was any reason specified why he desired your firm in particular?" asked Mr. Moss.

"Perhaps it was because Judge Ransom was a member—Mr. Ransom was an expert on rate matters," said the former Governor.

Mr. Whitman testified that it was about March 20 that he first talked with President Shonts of the Interborough about a retainer. The conversation was at the latter's invitation, and a week later Mr. Whitman's firm was retained. Mr. Whitman emphasized in his testimony yesterday that when he talked to Mr. Shonts about being retained for the Interborough, he had said:

"You undersand I am not, and my firm is not, in a position to do lobbying or to influence legislation," and that Mr. Shonts had replied that that was thoroughly understood. Mr. Whitman said that reference was made to the Carson-Martin bill in conversation he had with Mr. Shonts a week later, when the firm was formally retained.

Said He Was in Favor.

"Mr. Shonts expressed the opinion that the bill could not pass," said Mr. Whitman. "I said that it might or might not pass, I was not sure. Mr. Ransom said he thought it was a good bill and Mr. Shonts said it was the only way the company could get relief. Mr. Ransom said he did not think it was the only relief they could get."

"Did you express any opinion regarding the bill?" asked Mr. Moss.

"I did," said Mr. Whitman. "I told him I thought it was a very desirable bill."

"Was anything said regarding your attitude to the Pratt bill of the previous session, which was identical with his bill?"

"There was not."

"Did any one ask you how you could favor the Carson-Martin bill at this session and oppose the Pratt bill when you were Governor?" asked Mr. Moss.

"You are assuming that I was opposing the Pratt bill, Mr. Moss," said the former Governor. "I did not kill that bill. These gentlemen were responsible for that," said Mr. Whitman, with a sweeping gesture indicating the Senators of the Judiciary Committee, sitting on the rostrum.

"Was anything said with reference to your acquaintance with many people throughout the State?" asked Mr. Moss.

"No, sir," said the witness.

"There were no rate cases to be presented, pending the passage of this bill—there could not be in the nature of things," said Mr. Moss. "Were you taking $10,000 to do something which you did not know what is was, or what were you going to do pending the passage of the bill?"

"We had been retained to render legal services," said Mr. Whitman. "There was to be no lobbying, that was understood. The question is improper and I object to it."

"If you were not prepared to lobby for the bill, why did you ask Mr. Quackenbush who opposed the bill at Albany, as he testified here yesterday?" asked Mr. Moss.

"I did not ask—I think Mr. Quackenbush was mistaken in his recollection," said Mr. Whitman.

"When you testified here, did you intend to leave the committee under the impression that when your talk with Thompson occurred, no relations existed between you and the Interborough?" asked Mr. Moss.

"I did not," said Mr. Whitman.

"Did you attempt to apprise the committee that relations of counsel and client had been established between you and the Interborough?"

"I cannot recall that the question was asked," said Mr. Whitman. He added that he had told counsel for the committee over the telephone that he had been negotiating for a retainer, but that he had not received the check.

"Did you not attempt to leave the impression with this committee that your talk with Senator Thompson at the St. Regis was casual, when as a matter of fact you had told Mr. Quackenbush that you expected to talk to Senator Thompson about the bill on the Saturday you and he lunched at the St. Regis?" asked Mr. Moss.

This question Mr. Whitman objected to, and was sustained by Chairman Burlingame.

Brady is Examined.

Before Mr. Whitman took the stand Anthony F. Brady, the youthful traction and lighting magnate, who was one of the first witnesses called in the investigation and who testified again on Thursday, was recalled for further cross-examination by Mr. Moss. The counsel for Senator Thompson questioned Mr. Brady closely regarding the letter sent by him to Richard Henry Burke after his interview with Senator Thompson on March 16 when, according to the Senator's testimony, the bribe offer was made to him by Burke on behalf of the traction interests. Mr. Moss was trying to bring out evidence to show that the letter, which on is face was not startling, embodied some sort of cipher, but he did not make any progress in this direction.

Charles G. M. Thomas, Treasurer of the Consolidaed Gas Company, and Ex-Judge Samuel A. Beardsley, counsel for the New York Edison Company, were examined briefly before Mr. Whitman took the stand. The Ex-Governor was followed on the stand by Mr. Shonts of the Interborough, whose testimony was in corroboration of the testimony given by Governor Whitman regarding the retainer of his firm.

The final witnesses of the day were James L. Quackenbush, General Counsel for the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, who has already testified before the committee, and Harlow C. Clark, Secretary and Treasurer of the New York State Electric Railway Association. The last named organization was instrumental in having the Carson-Martin bill drafted and introduced in the Legislature and also in considerable publicity work done in its promotion. Both witnesses were called at the request of Mr. Moss, who was anxious to ascertain how much money the Interborough and the Association had spent for publicity and to hire lawyers.

A detailed statement introduced by Mr. Quackenbush showed that the Interborough had spent $6,830 for publicity and $28,618 for counsel fees from Jan. 1 last year up to April 1 this year. Mr. Clark testified that his association had spent for publicity during the same period $11,719.

At the request of Moss, the committee then adjourned to meet at the City Hall again next Wednesday forenoon at 10 o'clock. Mr. Moss told the committee that the re-direct examination of Senator Thompson, yet to come, and the questioning of other witnesses summoned at the request of the Senator, would occupy only two, or, at the most, three days more.

BRITISH SQUELCH PLOT FOR ARMY-NAVY MUTINY

Soldiers and Sailors Were Circularized in Scheme to Start Anarchy in England.

LONDON, May 9.—A conspiracy to induce British sailors to mutiny and soldiers to demobilize themselves by marching out of their barracks has been discovered, according to The Daily Mail. The premises of various persons have been searched and documents seized.

The stations involved, the newspaper says, include four in France and several in England, while the sailors in naval ports have been circularized with a view to inciting them to seize the ports and invite the soldiers and police to join them.

The object of the plot, it is said, was to compel the Government to use force if the projected disorders should occur, the organizers believing that this would precipitate anarchy.

BANKING GROUP TO AID CHINA

Thomas W. Lamont Represents Americans in Project.

PARIS, May 9, (Associated Press.)—Plans for the establishment of a new banking consortium to assist in the industrial and financial development of China will be discussed at a meeting in Paris on May 12 as a result of negotiations of the United States Government with the allied foreign offices.

Thomas W. Lamont will represent the American group, including thirty banks; M. Odagira of the Yokohama Specie Bank will represent Japan, M. Simon of the Indo-China Bank will represent France, and Sir Charles S. Addis of the Bank of England will represent Great Britain.

The consortium in China consisted of British, French, Japanese, Russian, and German bankers, but the Germans and Russians have now been eliminated and the American Government is willing to have Americans take the place they surrendered at the Government's request in 1913. The chief object of the new consortium will be to finance the railways of China and encourage industries.

CARRANZA TELLS HIS STAND.

Monroe Doctrine Not Adequate, He Asserts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 8.—Mexico does not recognize the Monroe Doctrine and does not consider it as more than a statement made for the benefit of the United States. No small powers have been consulted as to whether they are willing to accept it. Mexico considers that an alliance should embrace all American countries.

President Carranza made this statement today to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent.

When asked if the Monroe Doctrine did not help Mexico in 1865, Carranza answered that it would have had the same ending as to the French if no note had been sent by the United States, as the French were exhausted. It was only a question of a short time when the Mexicans would have driven the French out.

"Mexico considers that all countries should have the same rights," said the President, "not according to their strength, as the strong countries can and do impose their will upon the weaker nations."

He added that while Mexico would welcome a League of Nations which would equalize the strong and the weak countries, he thought this was not possible at present. He said the Monroe Doctrine was not adequate for present conditions, as only the United States could object to the entrance of a foreign power.

CROWN PRINCE NOW POTTER

Invests in a Tile Factory Issuing a Portrait of Himself.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The former German Crown Prince has gone into the pottery business, according to official dispatches today from Holland, which said a new company, just organized to use the calcareous sands on the island of Wieringen, in the North Sea, "has named Mr. Frederick William Hohenzollern as the director manager."

He was a large investor in the enterprise, the dispatches received here said. A specially ambitious piece already put out by the new company is a tile portrait of the director manager, in outing costume, against a background of church and cottages.

It was reported this tile had been bought for $40,000 for presentation to Premier Clemenceau of France.

GEORGE GOULD TELLS OF D. & R. G. DEAL

CHARGES ANIMUS BY ANNA

Due, He Says, to Opposition to Her Remarriage—Why Mo. P. Stock Was Sold.

Letters from the late Jay Gould to George J. Gould, in which he disclosed his affection for and reliance on his eldest son, and letters between other members of the family which have a bearing on the effort of Frank J. Gould and his sister, Anna, the Duchess de Talleyrand, to have George removed as trustee and executor of his father's estate and to compel him to make good alleged losses of $25,000,000 to the estate due to his acts, are filed in the Supreme Court in the proceeding which comes before Justice Whitaker next Tuesday.

The papers also contain George Gould's explanation of the attack on him by his sister, Anna, and also his denial of the frequently expressed belief that he desired to head a great transcontinental railroad system, and for that reason caused the Missouri Pacific Railroad to acquire control of the Denver & Rio Grande.

One of the letters from George to Anna says that when the Gould estate unloaded its holdings of Missouri Pacific stock because of the threatened receivership Helen Gould, now Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, withheld her approval because she had not been informed, so that her friend, Mrs. Russell Sage, could take similar action. George Gould insists that his sister Anna's animus is due, among other things, to his objection to her second marriage.

Philip L. Miller, attorney for the Duchesse de Talleyrand, in his affidavit asking for the removal of George J. Gould, as trustee, refers to the acquisition by the estate of 2,500 shares of preferred and 5,000 shares of common stock of the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad, which resulted in a large loss to the estate, and says:

"This is one of a large number of investments, totaling millions, to which through the efforts of George J. Gould, the trustees committed the funds of the estate which were directly, or indirectly, connected with an endeavor which resulted in disaster, to build up around the Missouri Pacific and its subsidiary roads a great transcontinental system extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Calls It "Grandiose Scheme."

"Their stocks have been of a highly speculative character, subject to excessive market fluctuations, and either non-dividend or uncertain dividend paying. He knew this to be a fact, and in pursuit of the grandiose scheme of transcontinental expansion,' of which George J. Gould was the prime mover, the trustees committed the funds of the estate to enormous amounts.

"Patently they ran the risk of disastrous failure, however alluring may have seemed the rewards of their success. The project was known to George J. Gould to be a hazardous gamble for great stakes, requiring for success and consummation exceptional executive and financial ability, the power to secure and hold the backing of great financial interests, and unremitting vigilance and adroitness and resourcefulness in meeting the opposition of competitors, and, in addition thereto, the favor of fortune.

"The investment of the funds in this project was gross negligence, unlawful, and in manifest abuse of the powers and discretions of the powers of the trustees."

The affidavit of Walter B. Walker, attorney for Frank J. Gould, answering the statement of George J. Gould as to the animus of his client, says that in some respects the statements are false and in others the statements and the letters of Helen Gould Shepard are irrelevant. He denies that George Gould did not know of Frank Gould's second marriage until long afterward, because he says releases of dower by Edith M. Gould, wife of Frank, were prepared and filed after the marriage.

Mr. Walker asserts that in May, 1911, when Frank Gould went abroad, George Gould sent him this wireless message: "So sorry not to have seen you. Pleasant voyage to you both. Hope to see you in Paris."

Mr. Walker submits a letter from Mrs. Shepard to Frank J. Gould, dated July 4, 1916, in which she said:

"A development in the M. O. P. situation: At the last meeting George told us of the prospect or possibility of getting the Denver stock held by the M. O. P. at much less price than when the estate originally sold the railroad. He offered the estate to take half, costing two and one-half million, and he the other half. A great deal of money probably would be made out of it. If the road would do this, he believed in turning in all the estate securities under the reorganization plan. I saw Ed. afterward for a few minutes. He said George was not sure of the result of the next Denver election and this was his way of assuring control for him and Jeffery. I told Ed. I did not think it was fair to hold up the railroad reorganization plan, involving large interests of ours and other people for such a reason.

"Since then Ed. has wired me that he has put his securities under the plan and I wired expressing the hope that we would follow suit with the estate holdings. His reply puzzled me. He said he could not vote for any plan that favored one of the executors. I thought he meant me, as I had clung to my poor ruined stock. Perhaps he meant George."

Charges Personal Animus.

George J. Gould, in reply to the petition of the Duchesse de Talleyrand for his removal, says she is actuated by personal animus. He says:

"My sister Anna has long been unfriendly toward me. Her state of mind is explained by the following features:

"1. In 1896 she complained of investments by Helen and myself as her guardians. These investments were made in accordance with our father's desires to lend aid to the Missouri Pacific system. We charged her nothing for services. She later executed full releases to us as guardians.

"2. She at one time, with Frank Gould, threatened suit against the executors unless they would forthwith distribute to the life tenants interest on the International and Great Northern loan which she executors withheld because of certain questions raised. She and Frank forced the distribution of which the guardian now chosen by her for her children now complains.

"3. My opposition and that of my sister Helen to Anna's second marriage aroused in her a bitter feeling. She employed counsel and caused a complaint to be prepared as the basis of a suit to test the validity and application of the seventh paragraph of the second codicil of our father's will. These proceedings ended because we finally gave our formal consent to her proposed remarriage.

"4. After the beginning of this suit, and before my examination commenced, I understand Anna expressed her purpose to array herself against me. She and Frank refused to accept the guardians suggested for their children. In 1916, when the suit was filed, there was no indication that it would be other than a friendly accounting to get the estate operations which have been covered by yearly settlements in permanent shape by this court accounting."

George J. Gould further states that the amount of interest he paid to the estate after complaint was made that he retained estate moneys in his own account without giving the estate the benefit was $343,108. This is the sum fixed by the accountants, although Mr. Gould believes it is larger than it should be.

Tells of Railroad Purchase.

In justifying his purchase of the Denver & Rio Grande control in behalf of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, Mr. Gould denies that it was part of a transcontinental scheme, and says:

"The welfare of the Missouri Pacific seemed to demand it. Had the estate not owned the Missouri Pacific and its allied lines, it would not have been investing in railroad stock. The Missouri Pacific was an inherited condition, and not a theory. It represents too great a property interest to the estate to be jettisoned casually in the course of administration. Able business men, including John D. Rockefeller and his counselors, were of the opinion that the acquisition of the Denver control was wise and prudent action in behalf of the Missouri Pacific.

"While the transcontinental control was urged by bankers and through newspapers, it was not the moving consideration for Denver control, which was to build up the M. P. business. No hazardous gamble was designed by the persons who counseled Mr. Rockefeller and the executors to secure D. & R. G. control. I have no doubt that Mr. Rockefeller's action, and I know that the action of my brothers and myself, was with an eye single to the benefit of the M. P., and quite apart from the idea of a transcontinental line.

"One of the reasons I urged the sale of Manhattan stock at $193 and placing the proceeds in Government bonds was to furnish an immense backlog of liquid assets to the estate for the protection of the railroad interests. Subsequent developments show that had the estate been thus fortified these immense properties so laboriously built up, in spite of unfavorable action by the Interstate Commerce Commission and State Commissions, would have avoided the recurring charges of bankers for financing and would have been ours and a prosperous investment today.

"The business of the estate may be likened to that of a department store. Some of the departments show losses, but their continuance is nevertheless necessary to insure the success of the whole. The executors could not wait to finish one part of a general project before starting another. Had this been done competitors would have sensed the ultimate object, and by blocking one phase the whole plan might have been destroyed. This throws light on many transactions which, standing alone, might, as Mr. Walker has asserted, seem to involve questionable investments of funds."

Mr. Gould insists that for several years prior to the panic of 1907 he owed the estate nothing.

"I stood between the roads and the estate bearing a large personal risk," he says. "I often asked my brothers and Helen to assist me in the support of the roads, but they were unable to do so at the time. Edwin needed all his ready cash to support the Southwestern and the Bowling Green Trust Company, which he did. Howard was improving a large estate on Long Island. Frank was interested in racing. Helen was interested in her charities, and Anna's income was tied up by the creditors of her husband. They were in no position to help out with their individual funds.

"The burden fell wholly upon me. My co-executors knew this, and also how I came to owe the estate from time to time, and because thereof, they made no demands upon me of any kind. They then appreciated the situation, but time has caused some of them to forget. My personal fortune was such that I could always have settled with the estate at any time. Any amounts I came to owe the estate were paid in full."

Quotes From Jay Gould's Letters.

Mr. Gould expressed his pride over "the esteem in which my father held me after twelve years of close daily observation." His father wrote him on March 18, 1892:

"My Dear Son: Do not work hard. Take plenty of outdoor exercise and plenty of air. I dare not think what would happen, if anything went wrong with you. So, my dear boy, for sake, comply with the foregoing."

Jay Gould wrote his son again on May 13 of that year (the year he died):

"My Dear Son: What you do will never be questioned. I have always tried to impress upon you to take all responsibility upon the spot in everything."

Referring to Attorney Walker's charges that Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard really knew little about her father's railroad interests and could not comprehend the acts of George J. Gould concerning them, Mr. Gould says he has a bundle of letters written by Mrs. Shepard, after taking trips over the Gould roads, one of which, sent in 1895, he quoted as a sample. It reads:

"I send you a few suggestions which I gathered on the Western trip in July. With the great competition in railroading, I presume it advisable to do as much as possible to diminish operating expenses in the way of lessening grades and having good equipment. It seems a pity to have the Missouri Pacific relegated to a second place, would it not?"

Attached to the letter is a memorandum containing suggestions as to a number of extensions and branch lines in the territory covered by the railroad with ideas for the purchase of competing lines and the building of new depots in St. Louis, Memphis, and Little Rock.

Mr. Gould says that his sister Helen always recognized her father's policy with respect to the roads. He submitted the following letter from Helen to Anna, written in 1896:

"George has let me know that you feel dissatisfied with our conduct as guardians and particularly that some of your money should be used in protecting the property in which you hold so large a financial interest. My dear sister, I do not think you fully realize the conditions. Not only was it our father's desire that we stand by the properties that he had built, but the loss to you, as well as ourselves, would be very great if we should not sustain our interest in these bad times. The last three years have been unusually hard on railroad properties, and many have been forced into the hands of receivers because of insufficient backing."

Sale of Railroad's Stock.

"Some weeks ago the railroad situation was looking so uncertain that Ed and I, in consultation with Howard, decided to sell the Missouri Pacific stock held by the estate, and have let all go except one share. It looks as if we might drift into a receivership and, if the road does, there is no telling where the stock might go to. I was induced to recommend the above policy to the boys partly on account of notes coming due June 1, and because of the impossibility of getting banking houses to underwrite their extensions or to buy the Iron Mountain bonds under the notes. I knew, as we had a big block of stock, every one would lay down on us and expect us to do the extending or paying the $25,000,000 notes. As we stand now we are the biggest creditor and can afford to take chances with the rest. Helen I don't think approved, and I know she did not like the way the sale was made. She thinks Mrs. Sage and a lot of others should have been taken in, but that was impossible."

CZECHS FIGHT WAY TOWARD BUDAPEST

TAKE TOWN NEAR CAPITAL

Denial from Paris That Entente Supports Rumanian Advance in Hungary.

COPENHAGEN, May 8.—Superior Czecho forces, after a bitter and fluctuating struggle, have gained footing in the town of Nagyszecseny, the Hungarian Supreme Army command announces, says a message from Budapest today. Nagyszecseny is on the Eipel River, about forty miles north of Budapest, in the district of Neograd.

PARIS, May 8, (Associated Press.)—It is learned on high authority that there is no foundation for reports that the Entente Powers either instigated or are supporting the Rumanian advance against Hungary, which was undertaken solely on the initiative of Rumania to forestall projected combined operations by the Hungarians and Russians against that country.

It is understood that the Government of Bela Kun, in Budapest, entered into intimate relations with Nikolai Lenin, the Bolshevist Premier of Russia, and that the projected Russo-Hungarian attack was delayed only by the necessity of organizing the Hungarian Red Army. Rumania decided to take the offensive against Hungary, the nearest and least formidable of her enemies, with the object of securing a good defensive line on that front and occupying lines of communication between Russia and Hungary across the Dniester River and in the eastern Carpathian Mountains.

The Rumanian advance was facilitated by the disorganization of the Hungarian Army, one whole division of 5,000 men, with thirteen guns, surrendering in a body to the Rumanians on April 29.

EXPRESS STRIKE MAY EXTEND UP-STATE

The strike of express workers spread yesterday when 300 men employed at the terminals went out, further crippling express business here and at nearby points. Officials of the company admit that the tieup is fairly effective, but that some express matter is moving in wagons of the consignees. Quantities of perishable freight which had accumulated in New York City stations have been sent to Philadelphia, Boston, and other places where it can find a market.

The strikers say the situation is more acute than the officials will admit. Chairman Benjamin Muldrew of the Strike Committee said that word had been received that the express workers in Albany and Buffalo were planning a strike for the same concessions the New York men have demanded, and he predicted that unless the demands were granted 100,000 express workers soon would be on strike in this State.

For the first time the strikers yesterday laid their grievances before Vice President Cowie of the express company. A committee of four waited upon the Vice President in his office at the Grand Central and told him of their demands for more pay, change in hours, and overtime charges. Mr. Cowie told them that their demands would be forwarded to Director W. S. Carter of the Division of Labor of the Railroad Administration, and that they must wait for a decision.

"Made in Our Own Shops"

YOU have noticed that the line "MADE IN OUR OWN SHOPS" appears in all our men's and boys' clothing advertisements. It is a slogan that marks our rare distinction.

Few, if any, of the exclusive custom tailors can make a like claim. This may surprise you—but it is true.

Foundling in Cathedral Vestibule.

In an unused statue niche in the vestibule of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue, last night a male foundling, about a month old, was found by the assistant sexton, Michael Troy, whose attention had been directed to the sleeping child by a woman who disappeared in the excitement that resulted from the discovery. The baby was well dressed in long white clothes, trimmed with blue ribbon, and wore blue woolen bootles. Troy called Patrolman Thomas Vearry of the East Fifty-first Street Station, who took the infant to the police station, and later carried him to Bellevue Hospial. No marks of identification were found on the clothing.

GEORGIA SENATOR TO SWING SUFFRAGE

Harris Said to Have Informed Wilson That He Will Support the Amendment.

WOMEN SAY RESULT IS SURE

Assert That the Latest Poll Shows That Their Measure Will Pass at the Coming Session.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Information reached Washington today that William J. Harris, the new Senator from Georgia, who is now in Europe, has told President Wilson that he will vote for the equal suffrage amendment resolution, which failed at the last session of the Senate by one vote. Former Senator Thomas W. Harwick, whom Mr. Harris succeeds, voted against the measure.

Suffrage advocates even declared that Senator Harris's vote was not necessary to insure passage of the resolution, as a poll of the new and holdover members of the Senate showed more than the two-thirds majority required. His declaration in favor of the measure, however, was received with general satisfaction by supporters of the amendment, who expect to press for its passage early in the extra session of Congress.

The National American Woman Suffrage Association made its first statement on the subject today, asserting that it has "definite assurances" that the suffrage amendment to the Constitution will be passed at the coming extra session.

Incidentally the statement announced the suffragists' code of action, which, it is declared, has brought the movement in sight of victory. All woman suffragists were enjoined to continue to observe the code.

Some of the rules are: "Don't tell all you know; don't tell anything you do not know; don't repeat even a small thing told you in confidence; don't lose your temper; don't nag; don't threaten; don't boast."

The statement claims the defeat of Senators Weeks and Saulsbury, opponents of the amendment, as an achievement of the suffragists.

LEGION ASSAILS CHICAGO'S MAYOR

MINNEAPOLIS IS CHOSEN

Questions Considered of Political Nature Sidetracked by Leaders—Seattle Council Barred.

ST. LOUIS, May 9.—Efforts on the part of leaders in the American Legion to prevent questions considered of a political nature coming to a vote in the caucus, a vigorous attack on the patriotism of Chicago and its Mayor William H. Thompson, and the selection of Minneapolis as the next convention city were among the developments in today's session of the soldiers', sailors', and amrines' organization, which is holding its first national caucus here.

For the time being, at least, the matters of the caucus' attitude on prohibition and on the charges of National Guard officers that they have been unfairly discriminated against in favor of regular army men, were set aside. The prohibition question was killed in a special meeting of the National Resolutions Committee, and the National Guard question also was temporarily laid aside. The move is understood to have the backing of Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Colonel Bennett Clark, and other leaders in the organization. Backers of resolutions regarding these two questions insist they will force the caucus to take some action.

Chicago and Mayor Thompson were bitterly denounced as unpatriotic when the question of the next convention city came up. The Chicago delegation had decorated the Convention Hall with signs boosting that city, but after a speech by J. F. J. Herbert of Massachusetts delegates tore down many of them.

"Massachusetts will not agree willingly to having a convention of soldiers in the great war go to a city that has as its first citizen by vote one who cannot measure up in any small part to the test of 100 per cent. Americanism," said Mr. Herbert when Chicago was suggested.

"The hall is placarded by signs saying: 'The American Legion, Chicago Wants You in November.' If these signs said 'Chicago Soldiers and Sailors Want You' we could consider it, but our reply now must be: 'Chicago cannot have us now or any other time until Chicago has an American for Mayor.'"

The applause following the speech lasted several minutes and then, led by the Oregon delegation, the delegates began tearing down the signs. The Nebraska delegation in casting its vote said it wanted it known the action was accompanied by the sentiment "To hell with 'Big Bill' Thompson."

John P. Cummings of Chicago replied to Mr. Herbert urging the delegates not to impugn the patriotism of 650,000 Chicagoans who rallied to the flag because the city had a "Mayor of which it was ashamed."

The Soldiers and Sailors' Council of Seattle, Wash., was barred from the organization on the ground that its membership contained I. W. W. and other so-called radicals.

Colonel Henry D. Lindsley of Dallas, Texas, director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, yesterday was elected chairman of the organization, to serve until the next convention. Colonel Lindsley's election came only after the delegates for several hours had tried to force Lieutenant Colonel Roosevelt to accept the nomination. The latter, in declining office, said he had been accused of "being a politician," and trying to "make a grandstand play." He declared today that he had no ambitions to be a candidate for office at the next election.

The caucus today elected Private P. C. Calhoun, a marine of Bridgeport, Conn., Third Vice Chairman, and passed several minor resolutions, including one urging support of the Victory Liberty Loan.

The more important questions did not come to a vote because of the time taken by the anti-Chicago demonstration. The caucus is scheduled to close tomorrow.

WILSON RELAXES AT RACES.

British and French Premiers Also Seek Recreation from Work.

PARIS, May 8.—President Wilson's visit to the Longchamps races today was by way of relaxation from the hard work with which he, in common with Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau, have been engaged during the past few days. On them alone devolved virtually all the work of completing the peace treaty, and after turning over to the Foreign Ministers the problem of the new Austrian territorial boundaries the three leaders spent the afternoon in much-needed recreation. The British Premier went into the country to play golf, while Premier Clemenceau took a long motor ride on the brightest, clearest day of the season.

Mrs. Wilson accompanied the President to the race course, as did Rear Admiral Grayson, the party witnessing the reopening of the superb track where cows had been pastured since the last Grand Prix was run, in 1914. They took great interest in looking over the beautiful grounds, which bear few scars now of their rough wartime usage, and they watched with evident pleasure two American-owned horses romp home ahead of their fields in the first two races.

One of these horses, W. K. Vanderbilt's McKinley, confirmed in dashing style the opinion formed of him here last year, that he was one of the crack racers of his generation, and caused him to be set down as the probable favorite for the forthcoming French Derby and the Grand Prix.

U-BOAT COMMANDER IN TOWER OF LONDON

Admiralty List Had Name of Lieutenant Werner, Who Had Not "Expiated His Crime."

LONDON, Thursday, May 8.—The captain of a German submarine arrived in London from Spain today and was placed in the Tower. The Star understands that he was the commander of a U-boat which sank several hospital ships.

On Sept. 6, 1918, the British Admiralty printed a list of 150 submarine commanders who were dead, prisoners, or interned. In the last group were five: Helmut Lorenz, Heinrich Metzger, Hans Niemer, Walther Schmidt, and Oscar Steckelberg.

The list did not pretend to be complete, but it was stated that "black marks" had been placed against three "who had not yet expiated their crimes." Among the three was the name of Lieutenant Wilhelm Werner and the note, "who excels in the sinking of hospital ships."

Circumstances would seem to point to Werner as the man indicated by the star, if it could be proved that he was the commander of either the U-48 or the U-23 which had been interned at Ferrol, Spain, after the sinking of the British hospital ship Llandovery Castle, with a loss of 233 lives, off the Irish coast on June 27, 1918, and the British ambulance transport Warilda in the English Channel, with a loss of 120, on Aug. 3.

While both of these vessels were supposed to have been sunk by the same submarine, the British Admiralty in its complaint against the illegality of the acts never mention the name of the boat or the commander.

TRIAL OF TEACHER ENDS.

Glassberg Denies Bolshevism Charge—Refuses to Answer Questions.

The trial of Benjamin Glassberg, teacher of history in the Commercial High School, Brooklyn, charged with saying that the Government suppressed the truth about conditions in Russia, and that no teacher was allowed to tell the truth about Bolshevism, was concluded by the Board of Education yesterday.

Mr. Glassberg, in his defense, read a statement denying the allegation. To many questions asked him by Assistant Corporation Counsel Mayer on cross-examination, he answered: "I want very politely to refuse to answer on the ground that it interferes with my personal, political, social, or economic views."

On several occasions Mr. Mayer asked the board to direct Mr. Glassberg to answer. One question he said he would not answer, although the board told him to do so. President Somers asked him to think this matter over. Mr. Glassberg did so and then answered the question.

BRING LUSTGARTEN HERE.

Army Will Turn Him Over to the Civil Authorities.

William Lustgarten, former President of the Tax Lien Company, who is wanted here for alleged misappropriation of securities and cash belonging to the concern he was associated with, arrived yesterday from St. Nazaire, France, in charge of Sergeant Moses R. Jones of the military police, A. E. F. He was taken from the ship to Camp Upton, where he will be dishonorably discharged from the United States Army and then turned over to the civil authorities for prosecution.

Lustgarten had enlisted in the A. E. F. under the name of Allen H. Wilson, it was said, had been promoted to corporal and was serving with the 309th Sanitary Train in France when his identity was disclosed and his arrest followed.

AGREE TO ARBITRATE WITH THEIR TENANTS

MANY FAMILIES PUT OUT

Some Take Up Quarters in a Church —Legislative Committee to Formulate Plans Today.

The Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering yesterday entered into an agreement with the Brownsville Landlords' Protective Association through which all disputes arising between tenants and landlords of the Brownsville District will be referred to the committee for arbitration, and the decision accepted by the association, which includes practically all the landlords in the neighborhood. According to Nathan Hirsch, Chairman of the committee, this arrangement gives promise of alleviating the situation in the district.

There were 168 dispossess cases in the Seventh District Court in Brownsville yesterday in which judgment was rendered for the landlords, the tenants being ordered by Justice Ferguson to pay their rents by next Tuesday or to move.

The city-wide strike of "schleppers," the men who carry property of evicted tenants into the street, saved a number of families from being dispossessed. Captain Charles A. Goldsmith of the Mayor's Committee visited many families, assuring them that the city would store their furniture if they were evicted and would find shelter for them. At the Williams Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, at Williams and Atlantic Avenues, extra preparations were made to house the dispossessed tenants. Dr. Roy E. Manne, the pastor, said that thirty army cots had been brought from the State Arsenal at Thirty-sixth Street and Seventh Avenue, Manhattan, and installed in the church. Shelter for evicted persons was also provided by the Herkimer Street Methodist Episcopal Church at Herkimer Street and Russell Place.

It was announced by J. W. Gottlieb of the Rent Committee's Law Committee of Kings County that Chief Rabbi Finkelstein, who lives in Brownsville, had informed him that there were twelve large synagogues in which cots might be placed, thus affording a temporary shelter for unfortunates who might be evicted.

It was announced yesterday that plans for the inquiry into the rental situation in this city by the joint legislative committee appointed by J. Henry Walters, President pro tem. of the Senate, would be made this morning, when the members of the committee will hold an organization meeting in the office of the Chairman, Senator Charles C. Lockwood, 511 Fifth Avenue. It is possible that public hearings will be held some time next week. The other members of the committee are Senators Peter A. Abeles and William A. Carson and Assemblymen Ida W. Sammis, Thomas A. McWhinney, Peter J. Hamill, James H. Caulfield, Jr., and Earl H. Miller.

Taking part yesterday in the negotiations between the Brownsville Landlords' Protective Association and the Mayor's committee were eleven members of the association, who were accompanied by their legal representative, Meyer D. Siegel. The landlords told Chairman Hirsch that they did not come as defendants, but in the spirit of co-operation and with a sincere desire to help. To Mr. Hirsch's suggestion that the committee wished only to discipline the unjust landlord, Mr. Siegel replied that the association would assist in every way. Mr. Siegel then insisted that much of the trouble had been brought about by the Tenants' League in Brownsville, in the organization of which Socialist Assemblymen and Aldermen had been active.

One interpretation of the rent situation was given to the Mayor's Committee yesterday by Jacob Groell, of 1,458 Union Street, Brooklyn, who said that he had been a builder for twenty years. He maintained that until lately the rents had been no higher than in 1904-5-6-7. By 1907 the Brownsville district had been overbuilt, he said, and that condition, along with the panic occurring in that year, which caused mortgages to be foreclosed on 75 per cent. of the buildings, had caused rents to drop, so that by 1918 the gradual recovery had only brought them back to the 1904 level.

Among those who received notice yesterday of an increase in rent was Justice Harry Robitzek of the Second District Court in the Bronx, who was the first of the Municipal Court Justices to come into prominence in dealing with rent profiteering cases. He was awakened at 7 o'clock yesterday morning in his apartment on the fourth floor of 830 East 163d Street, when the postman delivered a registered letter which informed him that the rental after Oct 1 would be $660 a year instead of $600 as at present.

The Boy Who Stuck His Foot In

A SMALL boy the other day walked up to one of those splendid marble pillars before the Victory Arch and stuck his foot in.

I went over and stooped down and felt of the crust. It was about an inch and a half thick.

Then I stood in the middle of the avenue, all New York boiling and swirling around me, and looked up at the Arch of Victory, massive, majestic, white, and heavenly, soaring against the sky---and my heart ached!

Something made me feel suddenly close to the small boy.

What he wanted to know with his foot was what this splendid Victory Arch he had watched his big, brave brothers march under and flags wave under and bands play through four hours, was made of; how much it amounted to, how deep the glory had struck in.

I thought what a colossal, tragical, honest monument it was of our victory over the Germans . . . Forty nations swinging their hats and hurrahing and eighty-seven million sullen, unconquered Germans before our eyes in broad daylight making a national existence from now on, out of fighting their bills! . . . Eighty-seven million Germans we have all got to devote ourselves nationally to sitting on the necks of for six hundred years! . . .

I am not sorry the small boy stuck his foot in. Millions of Americans, though in a politer way, are doing it all this week. We want to poke through to the truth. We want something more than a theatre-property Victory Arch, our soldier boys marching under it as if it were a real one!

We want four and a half billion dollars this week to make it honest to take down our lath and plaster arch and put it up in marble instead.

We make this week a wager to a world---a four and a half billion dollar dare or cry to God that we are not a superficial people; that the American people will not be put off with a candy victory, all sugar and hurrahs and tears and empty, watery words; that we will chase Peace up; that we will work Victory down into the structure of all nations---into the eternal underpinning of a world.

In the meantime this glorious, alluring, sneering, beckoning Victory Arch, all whipped cream and stone froth, a nation's gigantic, tragic angel cake, with its candy guns and its frosting on it, and before our eyes the grim unconquered souls of eighty-seven million Germans marching through! We will let it stand haunting us, beckoning us along to a victory no small boy, no Bolsheviki nation, can stick its foot in!

BUCHANAN REACHES SEMI-FINAL ROUND

SHACKELFORD WINS MATCH

ATLANTIC CITY, May 9.—As a result of the first and second rounds in the Spring golf tournament at the Country Club of Atlantic City today, the survivors in the first division had been reduced to representatives from three districts—H. C. Buchanan of the Metropolitan district, Edward Stiles of Philadelphia and Maurice Risley and W. E. Shackelford of the home club. In the semi-finals tomorrow morning Shackelford and Stiles will meet in the upper bracket and Buchanan and Risley in the lower.

The best match this afternoon from a competitive point of view resulted from the clash between Shackelford and Fred Knight, the Whitemarsh man, who won the tournament and medal here last Fall. After being 4 down at the turn, the local veteran seemed doomed to almost certain defeat. Knight went out in 38.

Coming back, the last named began to slip in his short game, taking 3 putts on several greens, so that Shackelford, after drawing level at the seventeenth, won with a par 4 at the home hole, the card reading as follows:

Shackelford, out	5	5	6	4	5	4	5	3	5—42
Knight, out	4	5	5	3	5	3	6	3	4—38
Shackelford, in	3	3	6	4	5	4	5	5	4—39	—81
Knight, in	4	4	7	4	5	5	4	6	5—44	—82

Buchanan, in defeating J. E. Johnson this afternoon, went out in 38 and stood 4 up at the turn. Had the bye holes been played after the match ended at the thirteenth the winner might have finished the round in 76.

Risley, after a narrow escape in the morning played at his best against James C. Parrish, Jr., of the National links, while Stiles went along smoothly enough in both his matches. In the early hours Knight had to win the home hole in a par 4 to defeat J. M. Gay, Jr., in their first-round match. At the outset Gay had a slight advantage, being 1 up at the turn. On the homeward journey he proceeded to give himself too much to do because of indifferent driving. A weak tee shot by the Philadelphia Country Club man at the tenth was discounted when Knight drove out of bounds, and the hole was halved in 5. Knight had 83 and the others 85 for the round.

What came near to being an upset was the first-round meeting between Risley and R. C. Maxwell of Trenton. On previous occasions the Atlantic City star has proved too much for the left-handed golfer, but it looked as if the time for revenge had arrived when Maxwell, by winning the ninth, tenth, and eleventh holes, became 3 up. From there on Risley, making few mistakes, managed to square accounts on the home green. He captured the match at the nineteenth, after his opponent got bunkered on his drive.

The summaries:

WILLIAMS GOLFERS WIN.

Defeat Columbia in Team Match by 12 to 3.

The Columbia University golf team went down to another defeat yesterday at the hands of the Williams College golfers in the intercollegiate team match played over the course of the Garden City Club. In avenging themselves for the defeat administered to them by Columbia last year, the Williams players scored a sweeping triumph, winning by 12 points to 3.

Williams won both of the foursomes without much difficulty, and also won three of the four singles matches. Captain A. L. Walker of the Columbia team saved his teammates by winning in the singles. He defeated Captain Hegardt, and in doing so played his best golf of the day.

The weather conditions were against good golf, and as a result the scores were below the average of all of the players on both teams. A drizzling rain and a high wind made all shots uncertain. In defeating Hegardt, Walker made the course in 83 and won the three points that went to the credit of his team.

The Williams team will play Pennsylvania at Philadelphia today and Columbia will meet the Penn golfers a week from today at the Merion Cricket Club.

The summary:

Four-Ball Matches.

W. G. Hegardt and W. Black, Williams, defeated A. L. Walker and J. T. Tunis, Columbia, 4 and 3.

A. Pearson and L. H. Coleman, Williams, defeated Rohdenburg and Van Raalte, Columbia, 3 and 2.

Singles.

DE ORO SUBMITS HIS CASE.

Alfredo De Oro, who recently lost his three-cushion billiard title to Robert Cannefax, and who has since protested the match on the ground of a foul committed on the second night, last night issued a statement of his side of the controversy. The protest will be reviewed by the proper authorities and decided on its merits, but meanwhile the former titleholder feels that he has been unduly criticised for, as he asserts, merely defending his rights. In his statement he says:

"During the second night's play Mr. Cannefax made a foul on the white ball, and instead of stopping he then made a second stroke, thereby placing the balls in an unfavorable position. Upon my claim that the balls should be respotted in their original position—which was very favorable—the referee, Mr. Cutler, refused to do so, saying, 'I know of no rule which allows me to do so.' I immediately stated there was such a rule, and called for the rule book. I continued to protest, and stated, 'I object; I protest.'

"The rule covering this point is as follows: 'Rule 29—If, after having made a premature stroke, he makes a second or glaring foul stroke, it shall be assumed that he does so to prevent his opponent from having a favorable position, and the opposing striker shall have the option of playing on the balls as he finds them, or having them replaced as nearly as possible where they were when the second stroke was made.'

"The referee being in error on this point of rules gives me the right to protest. This decision materially affected my chances of winning the championship, due to the manner in which my protest was received, and I only scored one point throughout the rest of the night's play, yet on the following night I clearly outplayed and outscored Mr. Cannefax. I have protested to the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, who are the final arbiters in all professional billiard matches.

"I feel it is an injustice to me to create the impression that my conduct is unsportsmanlike, as under the rules of billiards, as set forth above, I am merely protecting my rights and those of my friends."

HOPPE MAY PLAY SCHAEFER.

Representatives of Players Will Meet Monday to Arrange Match.

Whether William Hoppe, the balk-line billiard champion, will meet Jacob Schaefer or Welker Cochran, his two most persistent challengers, will probably be definitely determined Monday. At that time R. B. Benjamin, manager of the champion, and representatives of the other players will meet at the offices of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company to reach a decision.

There is little doubt that a match will be arranged between Hoppe and one of his challengers, since the champion has now closed his exhibition tour and is prepared to enter into a match in the Fall. But at present there is some question as to the date of the match, whether it should be played before or after the proposed championship tournament next October, and also as to which of the younger aspirants will have the first chance to meet Hoppe. In all probability Schaefer will be the opponent for the champion.

However, the match in any event will not be for the world's championship, as is generally supposed. Though Hoppe is the recognized champion, the emblem of the championship is now his personal property, he having defended it for the year required by the rules, and the title cannot come into competition. Before a championship match can be played there will have to be another tournament creating a new emblem. So, if Schaefer meets Hoppe before the tournament is played, he cannot hope to win anything more than a popular verdict. It has recently been erroneously stated that there was some controversy over this point, but both of the challengers realize they cannot play Hoppe for his title as things stand at present.

Benjamin is ready to post the required forfeit for Hoppe to bind a match just as soon as all the obstacles are cleared away, and Schaefer has ample backing, which is being handled for him by Tod Sloan, who is acting as his representative. Schaefer is in California at present.

BENEFIT FOR WAR CRIPPLES.

Empey Plans Baseball with Frills for Sunday Program.

A double header baseball game between some of the strongest semi-pro teams in Greater New York, a band concert, and the making of moving pictures is the program arranged for a benefit at Dyckman Oval tomorrow, which has been arranged to purchase artificial limbs for crippled soldiers. The motion pictures are to be shown in many theatres and will include pictures of the games and the crowds.

This is the first of a long series of events which will continue through the Summer for the purpose of raising funds to equip maimed soldiers with legs or arms, and a standing invitation has been extended to the various hospitals to send as many of the convalescent soldiers as they desire to attend the games each Sunday.

This method of aiding crippled soldiers has been devised by Guy Empey, who is financing the entire enterprise, and announces that every dollar of receipts above actual expenses will be devoted to the purchase of the artificial limbs so urgently needed by returned heroes who are unable to buy them.

PORES AFTER NEW RECORD.

Millrose Hopes to Beat Crowley's Mark for 15 Miles.

Officials of the Pastime A. C. will conduct a special fifteen-mile scratch race at Macomb's Dam Park, June 8, it was announced yesterday, when sanction for the race was obtained from the Metropolitan A. A. U. This race will replace the proposed local championship race at a similar distance which the A. A. U. contemplated holding on the same track May 24.

The purpose of the race is to give distance runners a chance to erase the record for the distance. The present mark is 1 hour 25 minutes 15 seconds, made in 1909 by Jim Crowley at Celtic Park. Charles Pores of the Millrose A. A., national five and ten-mile champion, and Runah Ohman, a Swedish runner, have both been seeking a race at this distance.

Pores is now running in excellent form. He demonstrated this last Sunday, when he captured the fast time prize in the Morningside A. C. six and one-half mile race. The diminutive Millrose star, starting from scratch against a field of 165 rivals, raced over the course in 36:55, eclipsing the former course record by almost two minutes. He finished twenty-sixth. Ohman has only competed in one race since arriving here several weeks ago. His performance came in the Boston marathon when he finished eighth.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 9.—Crack three-year-olds of the East and West will meet tomorrow in the forty-fifth renewal of the Kentucky Derby, which promises to produce one of the greatest struggles ever witnessed in this turf classic. Fourteen have been named as starters over the historic course of a mile and a quarter on Churchill Downs, and these include five horses which are distinctly entitled to represent the East, all of which have either formidable racing records or time trials that insure their making a good showing. The only drawback is the certainty of a heavy track, for rain is falling heavily, but this is not expected to affect the crowd, the interest being so great that a record-breaking attendance is expected.

The meeting over the Derby distance of Commander J. K. L. Ross's Billy Kelly and James W. McClelland's Eternal would be sufficient in itself to make tomorrow's race an epoch in turf history. These youngsters were the leading two-year-olds of last season, and after proving his wonderful speed and gameness in many hard-fought races, Billy Kelly had to succumb to Eternal in a special match race at Laurel last Fall. There are hundreds of turfmen who believe that defeat of Billy Kelly to be a fluke, and who confidently expect him to turn the tables on Eternal. Commander Ross believes implicitly in the superiority of his champion, and it has been reported that the Canadian sportsman has made a side bet of $20,000 with Mr. McClelland that Billy Kelly will beat Eternal.

Western sportsmen are, however, strong supporters of Eternal, and unless Commander Ross, who will be present, tries to corner the mutuel machines, it is probable that the McClellan entry, which has Sailor coupled with Eternal, will be the favorite, with the Ross entry, Billy Kelly and Sir Barton, a strong second choice.

Since Harry Payne Whitney's Vindex arrived here for his final gallops he has impressed the railbirds as the most likely candidate to defeat the two favorites. This son of St. Victrix earned many friends in his final trial yesterday when he covered the full route in 2:06 3-5 with his weight of 122 pounds up. It was the fastest work accomplished by any of the candidates, and W. Knapp, who had the mount, had Vindex well in hand at all times.

Eternal's serious work was completed some days ago, when he covered the mile and a quarter in about 2:08, but he was allowed to step the distance yesterday in 2:12 3-5. His stable companion traveled the mile and a quarter later in the day when the course was muddy, owing to a heavy rainstorm, and splashed through the mud in 2:12 2-5.

The Ross pair had their final trial on Wednesday, and this showed that even should Billy Kelly fail to show stamina, the stable has a strong second string in Sir Barton. Sir Barton, which has a pull in the weights because, though second in the Futurity, he is still a maiden, worked the Derby distance in 2:07 1-5, covering the first mile in 1:39 4-5. Billy Kelly lay behind Sir Barton all the way, and there is a strong suspicion among shrewd turfmen that the great gelding was only required to follow his stable companion and did not try to beat Sir Barton. Cornelius M. Garrison's Be Frank also went the route in 2:10 3-5.

Next to Eternal, the most formidable Western candidate is Gallagher Brothers' Regalo, which will be the only filly in the race. A week ago, Regalo won the Blue Grass Stakes, in which the field included five of those named to start tomorrow. The filly won galloping by three lengths, and ran the mile and an eighth in 1:51 3-5, turning the first mile in 1:38 3-5. In the last Derby, Willis Sharpe Kilmer furnished a surprise in Exterminator, purchased shortly before the race. He will try to duplicate this feat, and has purchased Frogtown, which has been going great guns in his trials.

OLD ROSEBUD TOP WEIGHT.

Vosburgh Gives Him Post of Honor in Paumonok Handicap.

Weights for the Paumonok Handicap at six furlongs, which will be the feature of the opening day of metropolitan racing at Jamaica next Thursday, were made known yesterday. The forty-nine nominations include every sprinter of note, and the resuscitated Old Rosebud, in spite of his recent defeat by Sweep On, is regarded as the best of the speed merchants by Handicapper Vosburgh. Old Rosebud will have to carry the steadier of 134 pounds, one pound more than has been allotted to Motor Cop, which has been successful in all of his races this season.

Harry Payne Whitney's Vindex is rated by far the best of the three-year-olds entered. He will have to carry 115 pounds, while Purchase and Hannibal, the next in order of his age, are in with 110 pounds. Papp, which recently ran a good second to Motor Cop in a race in which he had poor racing luck, has only 109 pounds to carry, while there are many other likely contenders at weights graded down to 90 pounds, which will be carried by Delaware.

Old Rosebud, 134; Old Koenig, 128; War Cloud, 127; Sunny Slope, 125; Hollister, 121; Lucullite, 119; Trompe La Mort, 116; Lanius, 114; Purchase, 110; The Wanderer, 109; Papp, 109; Wigstone, 108; War Paint, 107; Duke of Devonshire, 107; Abadane, 106; Normandie, 105; Penrose, 104; Toto, 102; My Friend, 102; Thunderstorm, 102; Efficient, 100; Panaman, 98; Routledge, 98; Fizer, 95; Delaware, 90; Motor Cop, 133; Naturalist, 128; Flags, 126; Dominant, 124; Jack Hare, Jr., 120; Jock Scot, 118; Vindex, 115; George Starr, 112; Hannibal, 110; Bully Boy, 109; Blue Laddie, 108; Lord Brighton, 107; Fairy Wand, 107; Sycamoor, 106; Elfin Queen, 105; Vexatious, 105; The Boy, 102; Rodgers, 102; Pigeon Wing, 102; Lion d'Or, 102; King Plaudit, 100; Cromwell, 98; Friendless, 97; Grimalkin, 95.

RICH STAKE FOR PANTHER.

Sir A. Black's Entry Wins Two Thousand Guineas at Newmarket.

NEWMARKET, England, May 9.—The first important classic of the flat racing season—the Two Thousand Guineas—was run off here today and won by Sir A. Black's The Panther, ridden by Cooper, by a short neck from William Waldorf Astor's Buchan, with Smyth in the saddle.

Lord Glanely's Dominion, Smith up, was third, three quarters of a length behind. The favorite—Stephan The Great—was out of the running early in the race.

Twelve horses went to the post. The betting was The Panther 10 to 1, Buchan 100 to 8, and Dominion 100 to 6. Manser trained the winner.

PREAKNESS HOPES SHOW.

Balustrade Beats Other Eligibles in Woodbury Handicap.

PIMLICO, Md., May 9.—More Preakness candidates were in competition this afternoon in the Woodbury Handicap at a mile, in which the honors fell to Robert L. Gerry's Balustrade, an eligible to the big race, with Routledge and Natural Bridge, also probable contenders in the Preakness, second and third. The success of Balustrade was one of the big surprises of the day, and was not taken seriously as an indication of what is likely to happen in the Preakness. The race was run over a slow track, and Routledge met with considerable interference, while Natural Bridge, making his second start, ran a little greenly, and was going so fast at the end that he surely would have beaten the winner over a longer route.

There were many other Preakness hopes in the field of nine, perhaps the most disappointing showing being made by Translate, which H. Marshall bought recently for $10,000, with the idea of capturing the rich stake next Wednesday. Translate never was near the leaders, and landed in sixth place. It was his first start of the season, and there may yet be a chance for him to run up to the trials which caused his sale.

NEW AUTUMN MEET STAKE.

Many Thoroughbred Stars Entered in New Fixture at Belmont.

Scarcely a thoroughbred of note is missing from the list of sixty-eight names which Secretary A. McL. Earlocker yesterday announced as entries for The Jockey Club Stakes, to be run at the Autumn meeting of the Westchester Racing Association at Belmont Park. Entries for this event, which is a new fixture advocated and financially supported by The Jockey Club, closed on Monday, but the list was not complete until yesterday.

It is hoped that the stake will go a long way to deciding which horse is the champion of the year, as the condition call for weight for age over a distance of a mile and a half and will be run at a time when all the aspirants for the title will have opportunities to be thoroughly fitted for the contest.

PLESTINA THROWS TAYLOR AT GARDEN

Chicago Wrestler Wins Match from Canadian in Two Straight Falls.

Marin Plestina of Chicago defeated Jack Taylor of Calgary, Canada, last night in their wrestling bout at Madison Square Garden, gaining two straight falls. Plestina won the first fall in 1 hour 22 minutes and 33 seconds with a double wrist lock, with the aid of a body roll. The second fall came in 24 minutes 48 seconds, when Plestina applied a head bar lock and arm scissors.

Plestina demonstrated that he is a formidable grappler. He was hard pressed by the Canadian through the greater part of the match, but with superb defense quite easily stopped all of Taylor's dangerous holds. He allowed his rival to do the bulk of the work, remaining on the defensive, while Taylor worked industriously for an effective hold. This work tired the Canadian, and when Plestina gripped him in his two favorite holds Taylor easily succumbed.

In both falls Plestina was circled with a body roll. Shortly before the first fall Taylor picked his rival up bodily and slammed him to the mat hard. Plestina took Taylor down with him, and after a roll landed on top with his double wrist lock. Taylor soon succumbed.

Taylor seemingly had Plestina in a dangerous position before the second fall, when the Chicagoan suddenly shifted to the offensive and got Taylor's head in a bar lock. In trying to break the hold Taylor extended his left arm, which was quickly locked in a leg scissors by Plestina.

Then the Chicagoan slowly increased the pressure and forced Taylor's shoulders to the mat. Farmer Burns refereed the match.

At thirty-five minutes the men were struggling in a neutral corner, Taylor clutched in a headlock. In bridging out of the hold, the Canadian almost propelled himself feet foremost out of the ring. Plestina almost downed his rival five minutes later with a half Nelson, but Taylor squirmed loose after a dangerous two minutes.

Taylor was again in danger twenty minutes later, when Plestina applied a half Nelson. The Canadian broke the hold and, assuming an offensive, worried Plestina with a head-scissors. The one hour call found the men grappling in the centre of the ring with Taylor on top.

In the first half hour Plestina and Taylor failed to produce anything like an effective hold. About two minutes after the bout started, the men went to the canvas and then tugged and mauled each other all over the ring. The gallery yelled instructions loud and often, but the advice went unheeded.

Taylor was on top most of the time for this part of the bout, trying an assortment of holds which Plestina slipped from easily. Plestina paid particular attention to trying for a crotch or scissors hold. Taylor, however, was not in danger.

A crowd of about 5,000 was in the big inclosure when the first preliminary was put on. Great gaps of yawning seats were noticeable at the east and west sides of the Garden, where tier upon tier was empty. The gallery was filled, however, but on the floor many boxes and seats were untenanted. Bernhof Hansen, claimant of the light heavyweight title, opened the evening in a bout against Mike Matalich of Paterson, N. J. Hansen threw his rival in 5:43 with an arm and crotch hold.

In the second bout Jean Westgaard of Utica and Herman Gehrig of Staten Island went thirty minutes to a draw. The match was the most interesting of the preliminaries. Both grapplers worked hard and seemed on the verge of victory several times. Always, however, dangerous grips for holds were broken. Tommy Draak of Holland threw Harry Stevens of England in 16 minutes 33 seconds in the third bout. An arm lock and scissors hold won the bout for Draak. This bout was announced as "for the heavyweight championship of New York State."

STECHER THROWS ZBYSZKO

Defeats Polish Wrestler with the Famous Scissors Hold.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 9.—Joe Stecher of Nebraska defeated Wladek Zbyszko of Poland here tonight in 1:45:15. Stecher used the body, scissors, and bar arm holds.

It was stipulated that one fall should decide the wrestling match if it continued more than an hour and thirty minutes. The contest was advertised as for the heavyweight championship. Stecher was on the offensive virtually the entire time. He obtained several scissors holds on Zbyszko before the one that brought him victory, but the Polish wrestler broke them with apparent ease.

RUTGERS PLAYS TIE GAME.

Darkness Ends Ten-Inning Contest with West Virginia at 2 All.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., May 9.—Rutgers and West Virginia battled ten innings to a tie here today, the game ending with the score 2 to 2 when darkness prevented the teams from continuing. It was a battle between pitchers, Rule for the locals, and Lemley. Rule allowed only four hits, while Lemley was touched for seven, but kept them scattered.

Lemley made a bad start and Rutgers scored two runs in the first inning. After that he settled down and pitched airtight ball. An error, two singles, and a sacrifice fly accounted for Rutgers' tallies. A pass, a single, and a wild pitch gave West Virginia a run in the fourth, and in the sixth a pass and a double by Herrick scored another.

BROWN AT COLUMBIA TODAY

Blue and White Track Athletes in First Home Meet of Season.

Columbia will hold its first home track meet of the season today, when it faces the Brown University track and field men on South Field. The meet will be the first opportunity for Charley Shaw, the intercollegiate half-mile champion, to run before his college mates since he won the title at Philadelphia last Spring.

Because Columbia's preponderance of strength in the track events is offset by Brown in the field events, the meet promises to be closely contested. The Columbia team will number thirty men, while Brown will have thirty-three in the competition.

The track meet will be the feature event of a Columbia Day celebration, which will begin at 11 o'clock, when the sophomore-freshman cane spree will be held. The final game in the interfraternity baseball series will be played at 1 o'clock and will be followed by the track meet.

REDS BEAT ALEXANDER.

CHICAGO, May 9.—Grover Cleveland Alexander, in his first game since returning from France, was defeated today by the Cincinnati Reds, 1 to 0, in a pitchers' battle with Ray Fisher. Fisher held the Cubs to four hits and received splendid support. In the eighth a base on balls to Groh, Rehg's sacrifice, and Magee's double produced the one run.

SCHEDULE MONDAY GAMES.

Local Clubs Will Make Up for Postponements.

The inconsiderate weather yesterday caused the postponement of all big league baseball games in the United States except one. Both the Yankees-Washington clash at the Polo Grounds and the Giants-Brooklyn tilt at Ebbets Field were called off early in the afternoon. There are three busy days ahead for these clubs, for the Yanks and Washington play today, Sunday, and Monday here, while the Giants will play engagements at Ebbets Field on the same days.

Walter Johnson, the speed king of the major leagues, is slated to pitch for Washington against Huggins's men on Sunday. The club has made arrangements for a large crowd, and the opening American League contest here under the new Sunday law promises to draw as many persons as the game last week. Major G. H. Gifford of the 11th Engineers will throw out the first ball. The game, which starts at 3 o'clock, will be preceded by a band concert by Frank's Band beginning at 1:30. The gates will open at 12:30. At 2:55 the band will play "The Star-Spangled Banner," and the owners of the club, Colonel Ruppert and Colonel Huston, have arranged to distribute printed copies of the national anthem to all the fans.

Reserved seats for all games are on sale at the Yankee headquarters on Forty-second Street, and on Sundays the seats at the Polo Grounds will go on sale at 10 A. M.

The Sunday game at Ebbets Field between the Giants and the Dodgers will begin at 3 o'clock, and there will be special ceremonies before the opening. The first ball will be thrown out by Al Smith, the 18-year-old son of Governor Smith.

There will be a big racket at the Polo Grounds next Thursday, when the Giants and Chicago Cubs will celebrate Father Duffy Day in honor of the chaplain and members of the 165th Infantry. On the evening of the same day there will be a dinner for the regiment at the Hotel Plaza.

There will be a concert at 1:30, with Victor Herbert leading. There will be three or four brass bands.

The committee representing the trustees of the fund include Morgan J. O'Brien, James A. Farrell, Joseph P. Grace, George McDonald, James A. McKenna, Nicholas F. Brady, John D. Ryan, John Whalen, John G. O'Keefe, Daniel M. Brady, Major Thomas A. Reilley, Clarence H. Mackay, Thomas E. Murray, Victor J. Dowling, Bryan L. Kennelly, and Louis D. Conley. TENNIS STARS PLAY FOR WAR CHARITY

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Quebec, May 9.—Six of the most prominent men and women lawn tennis players of the world gave an exhibition match at the Montreal Indoor Tennis Club this afternoon for the benefit of the Children's Memorial Hospital. They were the guests of Lady Davis, who is arranging the program.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, national woman title holder, and Vincent Richards, the youthful national indoor champion, are two of the most prominent members of the party. The others who will show their skill to Montrealers are Miss Eleanora Sears, former national women's doubles champion, of Boston; Walter Merrill Hall, Middle States champion; Harold A. Throckmorton, former national interscholastic champion, and Nathaniel W. Niles of Boston.

The event was a great financial, social, and athletic success, and the big gathering of tennis fans and society people was thrilled and delighted with the exhibition, particularly with Richards, the boy marvel, who justified his title, and Miss Bjurstedt, who showed marked improvement over her play here a year ago.

Three sets of singles were played and resulted as follows:

Hall beat Richards 6 to 3; Hall beat Niles 6 to 4; Niles beat Richards 6 to 4.

In the two sets of doubles Miss Bjurstedt and Hall were victors in the first set by 6 to 2, and the second set by 6 to 1.

American stars are expected to engage in informal matches with the best of the Montreal players tomorrow afternoon, which will give an international flavor to the affair. A well-known local banker, who is a former tennis champion, is the challenger for the match and will likely select his partner today. A. J. Veysey, another local player, will be given a chance to display his skill against Vincent Richards. Veysey is generally conceded to be the best player in Canada, and has won the Canadian title on several occasions. Mr. Veysey is to be one of the umpires, and his game against Richards will be for one set only.

TENNIS STARS IN TOURNEY.

Hunter, just returned from the navy, Dr. William Rosenbaum, Harold Taylor, Allen Behr, W. C. Grant, J. H. Steinkampf, I. H. Hartman, and H. H. Manchester. Play begins at 2 P. M.

LAFAYETTE WEAK AT BAT.

Loses Close Game to Penn State by 3 to 2 Score.

EASTON, Penn., May 9.—Utter inability to hit the ball caused the defeat of Lafayette by Penn State on March Field this afternoon by the score of 3 to 2. Had it not been for the aid of two wild pitches Lafayette would not have scored the two runs that were creditted to her. All of Penn State's runs came in the third inning. Wolf reached first on a fielder's choice. Kork hit a smashing double to right, sending Wolf to third. Knapp singled, scoring Wolf. Mullins's single sent Korb and Knapp across the plate.

BRITISH AIRMEN THINK THEY CAN WIN

MAY START TOGETHER

Raynham and Hawker Now Say They Will Make Every Effort to Start on May 14.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., May 9.—The British fliers express today every confidence that they will get away before the Americans, despite the success of the first two seaplanes in reaching Halifax. They not only see no reason to draw the inference from their long delay here that the two land planes will still be lying in their hangars when the seaplanes take flight across the Atlantic, but insist instead that they can depart under conditions which will make it impossible for the Americans to get away.

They point out that the flying boats have one more element to consider than they have—the sea. If a drop is attempted in mid-ocean or even if the hydroplanes come safely to anchor at the Azores, a comparatively calm sea is essential, while the land planes can land in any storm through which they can fly.

The aviators here asserted this morning that while they would make every effort to get away in time to take advantage of the full moon on May 14, they regarded the full moon as more important to the Americans than to themselves on account of the need of light in landing.

Without committing themselves they made it plain that they do not intend to let the Americans get away first if it is avoidable, but the whole conduct of the two British expeditions thus far mitigates against the belief that they will be stampeded into any recklessness, though when they first arrived they were inclined to take all sorts of chances.

They believe the Americans may be in for the same sort of tedious wait they have endured and regard it as altogether possible that they and the seaplanes will take the air together, pointing out that all will have access to the same weather information and that all are likely to take advantage of the same favorable conditions.

Hawker, when he starts with Grieve in the Sopwith biplane will carry an American communicating phone which was dispatched to him from New York by a special messenger arriving here today. The transmitter of this apparatus fastens to the throat and the voice vibrations are thus transmitted directly without the use of the lips. This method is familiar to artillery men experienced in communication work, as they often find the voice thus transmissible over a badly working wire when talking in the usual manner will not carry.

The apparatus was tested on the rear platform of a train coming across the island and worked splendidly, shutting out all the travel noise.

The weather today was "dud" all the way across the Atlantic—to use the descriptive term usually preferred by fliers to describe adverse conditions. The prospect, according to the meteorological experts here, is bad for the next two or three days. The Furness liner Digby is reported less than 200 miles off the coast, and is expected to dock after midnight with the Handley-Page bomber, the third contestant for the Daily Mail prize. It will probably take two days to unload the big crates and transport them to Harbor Grace, after which it is estimated here that the work of setting up the machine will occupy a week. How soon after that she can start is entirely problematical.

KEPT IN TOUCH AT ROCKAWAY.

Through wireless messages received at Rockaway naval aviators are keeping in touch with the two seaplanes at Halifax and the crippled NC-4, being repaired at the Naval Air Station at Chatham, Mass.

A report that the navy dirigible C-5, which left Cape May under command of Lieut. Commander E. W. Coll, was under sailing orders for Newfoundland to accompany Commander Towers's squadron across the Atlantic was ridiculed at the Rockaway station. The C-5 arrived at Montauk Thursday night.

No information was received at the station to indicate that Lieut. Commander A. C. Read, navigator of the NC-4, intends to bring the plane back to Rockaway for repairs. The station at Chatham has all the facilities to make repairs, provided a cradle of sufficient size can be quickly constructed to hold the big hydroplane while it is being pulled up the marine railway.

"We understand through a wireless message received at about noon," said an officer, "that two of the motors faltered, but the message stated that no major repairs will be necessary."

The aviators at Rockaway discounted reports that the crews at Halifax were tired and needed a day's rest before continuing the flight. The dirigible C-5, compared with the Zeppelin type, is a toy balloon, and the aviators commanding the C-4, its sister ship at Rockaway, said last night that it would be most unlikely to attempt on over-ocean flight. The C-5 has a crusing speed of sixty miles an hour, carries a crew of six, and unless some unknown provision has been made for additional fuel tanks carries only enough gasoline to travel 800 miles. The balloon, shaped like a fat cigar, is 192 feet long, and has 170,000 cubic feet of gas. It is driven by two 120 horsepower Union motors and was patterned after the C-4, which has been flying over the Hudson in aid of the Victory Loan.

MONTAUK POINT, L. I., May 9.—Lieutenant Robert Donohue, commanding officer of the naval air station here, denied today that Lieut. Commander E. W. Coll, commander of the navy dirigible C-5, had received orders indicating that the airship is to attempt a transatlantic flight. "There is nothing unusual about this flight," said Lieutenant Donohue. "Lieut. Commander Coll will remain here for the present unless he receives other orders from Washington. It is not true, so far as I know, that he has sealed orders."

SEA GUIDES AT THEIR POSTS.

Last of Destroyers Has Left Halifax for Stations on Azores Route.

TREPASSEY, N. F., May 9.—Newfoundland will be linked with the Azores tomorrow by a chain of American destroyers, for the last of the guardships detailed for the third leg of the navy's transatlantic seaplane flight left here tonight for their stations.

Navy officers here expected the aviators would push through from Halifax today because of the unusually favorable weather. It is believed the stay here will be cut to a minimum because of a desire to take advantage of the help expected from the moon, which becomes full May 14. Night flying will be necessary on the third leg of the air voyage, which will take the planes to the Azores.

It was expected Commander Towers would get his two planes at Halifax into the air early tomorrow for the 475-mile jaunt to Cape Broyle. Weather indications were fairly favorable tonight and the planes should make the trip in about eight hours. Extra parts and all other means for refitting are already available for the seaplanes on the station ship at Trepassey Bay, where a small flying boat also is stationed for the testing of air currents and assembling final data.

FIRE WARNINGS FROM AIR.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Patrol of national forests by army airplanes to give early warning of forest fires will begin June 1 with the establishment of two patrol routes from March Field, near Riverside, Cal., according to announcement here by the forest service of the Department of Agriculture. On the same day observations covering a large part of the Angeles National Forest will be started from a captive balloon stationed over the army balloon school near Arcadia, Cal.

Two airplanes will be used on each of the patrol routes, which will be about 100 miles long, and each route will be covered twice a day. Warnings of fire will be transmitted either by means of parachute messages dropped over a town or by the aviator descending and communicating with the forest supervisor.

ANOTHER BRITISH COMPETITOR

HALIFAX, N. S., May 9.—Captain John Alcock and a party of aviators and mechanics arrived today on the Mauretania to prepare for an attempt to fly across the Atlantic.

It was said that a Vickers-Vimy bombing plane would arrive on a later steamship and be taken to St. John's, where Captain Alcock expects to begin his flight.

REPAIRING NC-4 HELD AT CHATHAM

CREW NEVER IN DANGER

HYANNIS, Mass., May 9.—The Navy airplane NC-4, in command of Lieut. Commander A. C. Read, was forced by engine trouble to come down at sea on Thursday afternoon after passing one of the patrol destroyers. The seaplane proceeded under its own power on the water until reaching Chatham bar. There aid was sent from the Chatham naval air station and the seaplane was towed to the station, reaching there at 7 A. M. on Friday.

CHATHAM, Mass., May 9.—Trouble due to overheating developed in one of the four engines soon after the NC-4 left Rockaway Beach yesterday morning, but Lieut. Commander Read continued his flight with three motors while efforts were being made to repair a defective oil pump. Soon after passing the air station here another of the motors became disabled, and at 2:50 P. M. the plane, then about 100 miles northeast of Cape Cod, landed on the water.

The radio transmitting apparaus also was out of order, which accounted for the fact that nothing was heard from Commander Read during the night. The fliers were able to hear destroyers and shore stations and knew that a search was being made for them, but were unable to reply. The sea was calm and the NC-4 was in no danger.

When the seaplane was sighted from here soon after daylight it was about a mile and a half off shore, and a motor boat put off and towed the plane over the bars into the station here.

Members of the crew said that they were at no time in any danger and that they suffered no hardships as a result of the mishap. They said the overheating of the engines made it necessary to proceed cautiously, and rather than take a chance of burning them out completely Lieut. Commander Read determined to abandon the flight temporarily.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Navy Department today issued the following statement concerning the NC-4, the navy seaplane which was delayed after starting from Rockaway with the NC-1 and the NC-3 on the first leg of the transatlantic flight:

"The third plane, the NC-4, which was forced to make a landing about midafternoon yesterday on account of engine trouble, arrived at the Chatham air station on Cape Cod at 7:50 this morning. A radio received from Commander Read told of the arrival of the plane there, and stated that after repairs to two motors were made the NC-4 would proceed on her way.

"The first information received by the Navy Department regarding the NC-4 since the last communication with her yesterday afternoon between 2 and 3 o'clock was received this morning about 6 o'clock. The dispatch stated that the NC-4 was sighted at 5:15 about one mile and a half off Chatham light and was trying to cross the Chatham bar."

It was estimated by Lieut. Commander Read, commanding the NC-4, that it would take two days to make repairs to the two motors, trouble with which forced him to descend. When repairs were completed, he reported, he would proceed to Trepassy to join the NC-1 and the NC-3. He expected to start again on Sunday. It was thought here that the motor trouble was caused by disarrangement of the oil pumps.

FILM WAS NOT CRITICISED.

The Select Pictures Corporation, distributers of the motion picture, "Bolshevism on Trial," yesterday issued a statement that the Secretary of Labor, in writing recently to the Attorney General to protest against "dangerous advice" for advertising the film recommended in an article in the Moving Picture World, did not express any criticism of the film itself. The statement included a letter to the President of the corporation from David K. Niles, Chief of the Motion Picture Section of the Department of Labor, in which Mr. Niles said:

> Upon investigation I am convinced that neither you nor your company was responsible for the advertising suggestion. I have reviewed the picture and there is nothing to which, in my opinion, we can properly take exception."

soon as possible and enter upon the flight to the Azores. This is by far the most critical segment of the journey, and upon its completion depends the whole future of transatlantic aviation and a new form of commerce.

To reach the islands, the planes must cross 1,300 miles of open sea, with uncertain wind conditions, and part of the trip must be done at night. It is the most gigantic undertaking in all the annals of aeronautics. No supply ships are on the line of flight between Newfoundland and the Azores. Should the planes be forced to alight upon the surface, they would probably be broken up by the force of the waves, and so could not ascend again.

Many destroyers, however, will be constantly upon the watch and will send succor to the aviators should the need arise. A number of American warships are waiting in the Azores. It is expected, computing from the time made by the planes between Rockaway and Halifax, that the flight will occupy twenty-one hours from the Azores to Portugal.

The planes will be in the air eleven hours, and the final and crucial leg of the flight will take eleven hours, a total of sixty hours actual flying time between New York and Plymouth.

One feature of Thursday's flight that has not received sufficient prominence is the fact that it was the longest flight across clear water in the history of aviation, a distance of 220 miles from Chatham, Mass., to Seal Island, Nova Scotia.

No planes have ever attempted an overseas journey on such a large scale. Strong head winds at a velocity of thirty miles an hour were encountered during the entire trip. The speed ranged from fifty to seventy miles an hour, averaging sixty.

The navigator of one of the planes told THE TIMES correspondent tonight that some people might think flying over water an easy job, but that it was quite the reverse and that the men who were attempting to fly across the Atlantic would have a hard time because of wind currents. He said that a plane was so much a part of the air that it was difficult to navigate.

Instruments had been constructed which could tell the drift of the wind with a fair degree of accuracy, and it was necessary to observe them constantly. Clear water presented more difficult problems, as it was impossible to anticipate the direction of the gusts of wind. If a plane were steering north and there was a drift wind of thirty degrees to the right, the plane would have to steer thirty degrees from north.

The two planes were in view of one another until a few hours before the arrival at Halifax. They lost communication with the NC-4 100 miles from Chatham. They had learned of her engine trouble by wireless. It was feared here tonight that the NC-4 would be obliged to abandon the flight because of the mishap. If she should reach Newfoundland before her sister ships have left she may yet be able to continue the journey with them, but it is evident that too much is at stake to risk further delay and varying weather conditions by awaiting her arrival.

The crews of the NC-3 and NC-1 have benefited greatly by their twenty-four hours of rest. They are eager to set out again upon their great adventure, and regard the exploit with courage, calmness, and confidence. The first day's flight, perhaps the most exacting and fateful test, surpassed their expectations, and they are greatly elated thereby.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The departure of the naval seaplanes NC-1 and NC-3 from Halifax for Trepassey Bay, N. F., on the second leg of their transatlantic flight, has been postponed until tomorrow, the Navy Department was advised just before noon today in a radio message from the supply ship Baltimore at Halifax. The message from the Baltimore read:

> Planes will not start from Halifax today because of renewal of four propellers. Will be ready to start Saturday morning.

The postponement of the flight did not dampen the enthusiasm with which officers here regard prospects for a successful accomplishment of the transatlantic air journey by the seaplanes. The postponement was due to a desire to replace four propellers, but no details of the repairs decided on were contained in the message from the mine layer Baltimore at Halifax.

It was assumed by officers here that propellers on both the NC-1 and the NC-3 showed signs of wear, which prompted Commander John H. Towers, in command of the squadron, to wait over a day at Halifax. Possibly it had been decided to change to a slightly different type, it was said; but at any rate it was certain that only minor troubles had been developed in the machines in the five-hundred-mile dash yesterday from Rockaway to Halifax.

Arrangements for the flight were said today to be working out smoothly, and, while the machines are on the way to the region of Cape Broyle, from which the actual flight for Europe will be started, the stage is being set for the over-ocean journey. Naval vessels were moving today into their stations along the path to be followed under a regular schedule and nothing would develop, it was said, that would make a prolonged delay in starting for the Azores necessary unless the machines encounter further accidents.

DRAMA

A Rube Show in Town.

Frank Galloway	Al Dayton
Tidy Tillingwater	Dorothy Allen
Donald Brown	James Gleason
Oliver Dash	William E. Meehan
Mr. Mole	George B. Miller
Mrs. Twiggs	Olive Oliver
Mr. Sharp	John McCabe
Elsie Kirkwood	Josephine Stevens
John Kirkwood	William P. Carleton
Peter	Harold Beigh
Porter	Jack Ellis
Daisy McAllister	Dorothy Hammack

About this time of year, when theatre leases come easier, it occasionally happens that a play which has been produced on the road, for the road only, takes a chance with the public of Broadway. "It Happens to Everybody" opened last night at the Park.

It is a business play with a plot of the Saturday Evening Post type, in which the bright young hero outwits a captain of industry and marries his daughter. But beyond the fact that it tells its story in a way to pique interest and sustain it, it has none of the quality of even this rather shopworn order of fiction. Such character as it contains is of the most conventional order, and the incidents are so mechanical and forced as to make the whole thing preposterous. Compared to it, "Cappy Ricks" is a masterpiece of psychology and documented realism.

The house was filled last night, and few of the witnesses departed until the last word was said and the central mystery of the plot elucidated; but the thing that held them was only in part the story. It was largely amazement at the crudity of rube shows in general and fascination at the incredible eccentricities of this one. Those are the words—amazement and fascination. For the skill that does bad things efficiently is none the less skill.

The essential of this sort of production is pace; and what happens to everybody happened thick and fast. Ira Hards, who staged the play, was careful to give nobody the least time to think. In the same way, the cast was equally competent. As the young hero, James Gleason, was always on the job, registering eager and humorous resourcefulness. Josephine Stevens was a sweet and loyal heroine every minute.

The "character" parts were in the hands of actors who might have done much with better material. George B. Miller was a grumpy old clerk, and Dorothy Allen a boarding house slavey. William E. Meehan, who was seen to much advantage in "Turn to the Right," and in "The Big Chance" played a Broadway writer of songs.

BELASCO TO WORK TO END.

Denying Report of Retirement, He Tells of Many Play Projects.

"I am only beginning my work," was the reply made yesterday by David Belasco to a report published in a weekly theatrical paper, that he is to bring his career as a producer to an end. Mr. Belasco, according to the report, had been working for more than a year on the production of a spectacular Japanese play of which he was the author, and following the presentation of this piece, it was said, he would retire.

"I am not ready to quit," Mr. Belasco said. "That report must have been started by a some one who wants me to quit. Why, I am more ambitious than ever. I am just beginning my career. Work is my religion and I shall die in harness. I pledge you my word that I shall not quit until God calls for my passport."

In support of his denial Mr. Belasco said that he has contracted for a long list of plays, and that even if he added no new ones he had a sufficient number to engage his attention for four or five years. Among the authors whose plays he has accepted, he said, are Sacha Guitry, Henri Bataille, Granville Barker, Edward Sheldon, Eugene Walter, Philip Moeller, Avery Hopwood, William J. Hurlbut, Achmed Abdullah, Fred Ballard, Maurice V. Samuels, and Hubert Osborne. He did not deny that he is preparing a huge spectacle of his own authorship, but said that this would be Pershian in character rather than Japanese.

A play from the French, entitled "The Girl with the Pink Cheeks," is also among Mr. Belasco's prospective productions, and the producer declared that it is still his intention to make a series of Shakespearean productions. David Warfield, Lenore Ulric, and Ina Claire are among the Belasco stars who will be seen in new plays next season.

Ledger-Litton Wedding Today.

Ledger, British Vice Consul at New York, and Miss Elsie Litton, which was postponed on account of the illness of Mr. Ledger, will take place today at 12:30 o'clock in St. James's Church, Madison Avenue. WORKING FOR THE WORLD.

The Winter wheat crop is shown by the May report to be above the standard, being 100.5 per cent. in condition on the largest acreage ever sown. The Winter killing was the minimum, hardly worth mention, a fraction of a million acres abandoned where usually there is total loss of several millions. There was actual improvement of prospects where usually there is deterioration, and there is promise of a Winter crop exceeding both Winter and Spring in many good years. The indicated crop is 899,915,000 bushels, to which will be added the Spring crop, not yet all planted; and the guarantee price is $2.26.

Here are two billions and more of new wealth, which will fill our banks and railway cars with both bulk and value. It is like gilding gold to add that the hay crop shows an increase of 25,000,000 tons, to make good a shortage of present stocks of some three million tons, compared with either of the last two years. Hay means meat and milk, which all the world needs, and it is hardly appreciated even by Wall Street farmers that the humble hay crop is itself a billion-dollar crop. No longer ago than 1915 the total value of farm products was but a little more than ten billion dollars. Last year the Department of Agriculture estimated the value of all farm products at more than twenty-four billions, a gain of three billions over 1917 and more than the total of our Liberty loans. It is premature to estimate this year's increase, but it must be admitted that they erred grievously who thought either that the United States itself was in danger of hunger by the increase of population over crops or that it would let other nations starve so long as it had plenty.

With all this plenty, why should food be so dear? If food were not dear, crops would not be so valuable. But that is compensation rather than explanation for the high cost of living. Food is so dear because those hungrier than we buy it away from us, partly through our benevolence in plain out-and-out charity, and partly through our getting good prices from those able and willing to pay. A few days ago ten thousand tons of barley were bought for shipment to Scandinavia from San Francisco, and a million barrels of flour were bought by our Grain Corporation for export. Mr. HOOVER's distributions are by millions of tons, and our total exports are almost above belief. The wonder is not that our food is so dear, but that it is so well kept down by the price-control system which now is underselling the millers, and importing wheat from Canada. The President of the Housewives' League petitions the President to reduce the high cost of living; politicians who are fonder of economic theory than of the President lend their support to a campaign of nagging, rather than assist in the great task of feeding the world under conditions which confront hundreds of millions unable to help themselves. There are many who lament departure from principle and theory, and yet who clearly see that products which are produced but once a year cannot be cheapened by removing the price control under famine conditions. Mr. BARNES broke the price of corn when the speculators gave an example of what they would do with the quotations if control of the market were removed. Hogs never were so high as since control of their price was stopped. Silver rose when the control was taken off. If there were no control we might eat more of our own food, but we should pay more for it, and should lose what credit we have gained for giving and managing so that not we alone eat the abundance which Providence has sent us in the very time of the world's need. The cost of living is high. But so are wages, so were profits and security prices, and so soon will they all be again, not excepting our moral as well as pecuniary standing before the world. When costs fall it will be because abundance has overtaken famine and subdued it, and that is not yet.

THE AMERICAN SEA FLIGHT.

The overseas flight of two of the United States Navy planes began auspiciously. It was no mean achievement for these great machines to fly with a crew of several men from Rockaway to Halifax, 540 miles. Such a dual flight had never been accomplished. It must be admitted, however, that the mishap to the NC-4, the third plane, that fell out of the formation on account of engine trouble, and had to become a marine craft off Cape Cod, is something of a damper upon enthusiasm when one considers that Fayal in the Azores is 1,200 miles from Trepassey in Newfoundland. Engine trouble is always a nightmare to the aviator, and well-behaving motors that can stand the test of a long flight have been the exception. They are highly prized.

The second leg of the flight, from Halifax to Trepassey, 460 miles, has no terrors for Commander TOWERS, also no illusions. If the engines of the NC-1 and NC-3 function smoothly, hopes of a fair passage to Fayal, weather permitting, will rise to an altitude of anticipated triumph. There is already a precedent in a way, the twenty-hour flight of a naval plane at the Virginia Capes carrying five men. It is true the pilot had perfect weather and never was in danger, but the American naval men have cool heads and steady nerves; with them it is mainly a question of a good engine; propellers and fabric also figure in the equation. It is to be noted that a little repair work, a touch here and there, had to be done on one of the planes at Halifax.

America will not be limited to two planes, in all probability. As an early start from Trepassey is not to be expected, the NC-4, with the mechanics working on her engines, should soon be able to rejoin Commander TOWERS. At Trepassey the weather problem will impend. May is a foggy and sinister month for aviation on the Atlantic. Clear coastal weather is infrequent, and perverse winds in mid-ocean seem to be the rule. The Americans with their pontoons and chain of destroyers can afford to take greater chances than the British party using land planes.

No matter what the weather is, a few days must elapse, one would suppose, before the Americans are ready to launch out across the Atlantic. It will not be necessary for them to have perfect weather. The British fliers must have it. On the other hand, the American machines are very heavy and by comparison slow. They will need a start of almost a day over the Sopwith or Martinsyde plane.

POLAND'S GAINS.

Germany, or rather Prussia, must cede to Poland 27,686 square miles, according to the treaty. Until the full text of the document is at hand, however, it is difficult to say just what Germany has lost and what she retains. In Section 2 of the summary the ceded territory is described as "the southeastern tip of Silesia beyond and including Oppeln, most of Posen, and West Prussia." In Section 4 it is "the greater part of Upper Silesia, Posen, and the Province of West Prussia on the west bank of the Vistula." Whether Poland gets all or only most of the Province of Posen, all or only part of West Prussia, remains to be seen.

The "free city of Danzig," with some seven hundred square miles of territory, takes in the small delta between the Vistula and Nogat Rivers, where the Polish population is very small, as well as some land to the west of the Vistula where the Poles are considerably more numerous. In essence, however, this territory will be a part of Poland, with a very large degree of home rule. In the territory running back from the coast, just to the west of Danzig, there is a wide belt of Polish population; all this so far as the western boundary of the Province of West Prussia is apparently to go to Poland.

Part of West Prussia is east of the Vistula. A plebiscite is provided for the inhabitants of this district south of the territory of Danzig, and including the districts of Marienburg and Marienwerder; presumably the rest of West Prussia east of the Vistula, with Graudenz and Thorn, is to go to Poland. A plebiscite will also be taken in the southern part of East Prussia, including, apparently, the whole governmental district of Allenstein, and a small strip of territory to the east. If Polish statistics are accurate this section will vote to join Poland, particularly if the inhabitants carried off to work in German factories are allowed to return and vote; as to the other district which is to take a plebiscite, there is more doubt.

Poles are in a decisive majority in the Province of Posen as a whole; if any part of it is detached it will probably be the extreme western districts, which were colonized with Germans in the eighteenth century. The population of the southeastern part of Silesia is almost wholly Polish, and presumably the boundary here will follow the frontier of linguistic majority so far as possible. In any case it will give the Poles some of the most productive coal mines in Europe, which should be immensely valuable to the rising Polish industries; these mines lie in territory inhabited almost entirely by Poles.

So far as can be judged from the summary, the racial claims of Poland have been substantially satisfied. There will still be regrets, and not among Poles alone, that Danzig was not ceded to Poland outright; and there is still the troublesome question of East Prussia. The German sections of it, with some two million inhabitants—dominated by the most antiquated representatives of the Junker landlord class—will be cut off from the rest of Germany. This recreates a situation which was the cause of Prussia's hostility to Poland until FREDERICK the Great put an end to it by bringing about the partition; it makes Poland's corridor to the sea practically indefensible, by Poland alone, in case of war. But the annexation of East Prussia, even with a great measure of home rule, would have made internal trouble for Poland and would have embittered German feeling still more. And if Poland is again threatened by Prussia she will have at her side the defenders who failed her in KOSCIUSZKO's time.

"WHO WOULD BE FREE."

There begins to be the semblance of government in Russia. The Kolchak movement furnished the nucleus around which has grown all that is practical and enforceable in the movement for a real Russia as against the dismal tyranny which a minority set up after the overthrow of the helter-skelter government of KERENSKY. That was better than Bolshevism, but it was hardly more really representative of all Russia than Bolshevism. The difference is that it was not tyranny, not a despotism, not an autocracy. All this time there have been innumerable Russians crushed under the tyranny, yet, in their disorganization and helplessness, seeing no way out.

At first their hope was in the Allies, and there is no doubt that if we had gone to their assistance as we should have done the period of agony for Russia would have been shortened. Ambassador BAKHMETEFF pleaded with us; Colonel BOTCHKAREVA of the women's regiment came here to rouse our sentiment; Grandmother BRESHKOVSKY has been here trying to rouse what remains of sensible radicalism; and all in vain. There were innumerable others. But we hesitated, and perhaps the British hesitated; we know that the French and Japanese did not hesitate. The time went by when outside assistance could have saved Russia.

Finally she rose of herself. She had been deprived of the assistance of the Czechoslovaks; but resolute men in Siberia raised the banner of rebellion, and from all over Russia men flocked to KOLCHAK's flag. It is nominally a Siberian, really an all-Russian, army that he leads on his now triumphal march. His steady sweep westward has made it plain that Russia has become capable of striking the blow necessary for her redemption. They "who would be free," as BYRON saw and said, "themselves must strike the blow." These words are as true of Russia today as they were of Greece, or any other country groaning under the heel of a despotism. Finding themselves left to their own resources, the Russians came to their own rescue and floated their own banner.

We read yesterday that Admiral KOLCHAK had captured the last place where the Bolsheviki could make a stand before Samara. What is more important, the Archangel Government has recognized the supreme authority of the Omsk Government as the Provisional National Government of All Russia. That completes the political liaison between Siberia and Archangel. There has always been a military understanding between Omsk, and the Cossacks of the Don and DENIKINE. This liaison has been completed, and from the Don and Orenburg to the region about Samara KOLCHAK commands the forces opposed to Bolshevism in Siberia and Southern Russia. The Archangel recognition extends the agreement to Northern Russia.

In other words, all of Russia that is opposed to Bolshevism is now united from the Arctic to the Don and from Samara to Vladivostok. Russia, thrown back on her own devices, is working out her own salvation. We Americans may regret that our helping hand was not extended to them at a time when it was needed, may regret the blood that flowed in consequence of that hesitation; but perhaps it is best after all. It is better that a nation should work out its own salvation than that it should have it won by alien hands.

PRESIDENTIAL SUFFRAGE FOR WOMEN.

By means of a timid or an obliging Legislature State after State confers upon women the right to vote at Presidential elections. If the State Constitution forbids the Legislature to indulge in these pleasant little gifts to the feminists, so much the worse for the State Constitution. Apparently Vermont is the only State where a Presidential Suffrage bill has happened to encounter a Governor with courage enough to stick to the Constitution which he has sworn to support, even against the entreaties of the charming, wheedling women folk.

The Constitution of Vermont prescribes the qualifications of voters for Presidential electors. The Legislature, forgetting that prescription, changed and added to those qualifications. The Governor reminded the members of the Legislature that its powers were derived from the State Constitution, which distinctly denies to them the "power to add to, alter, abolish, or infringe any part of this Constitution." He vetoed the bill and the veto was sustained. According to The Boston Herald, some of the members who changed their vote after the veto did so through "their fear of confusion and a disputed vote of the State at the 1920 election."

Our Boston contemporary mentions a number of States, Indiana, Minnesota, North Dakota, Wisconsin, where there seems to be a violation of the State Constitution by the Presidential Suffrage bill; and there are other such States. "What is going to happen," asks The Herald, "if it should chance that the result of the Presidential election of 1920 should turn upon the vote of one of these States in which the ballot has been put into the hands of women through the action of a single Legislature without a change in the State Constitution? Do we really want to precipitate another Hayes-Tilden contest?"

Small chance of that, it may be said; but what has been may be, and a "close" election is always a possibility. Irrespective of that, what justification can there be for Legislatures so eager to kotow to feminism that they pass Presidential Suffrage bills clearly unconstitutional or doubtfully constitutional?

AN AUDIT FOR THE I. W. W.

All Americans, of whatever political belief, who are sufficiently broad-minded to sympathize with the aspirations of radicalism will feel for the I. W. W., whose convention was so grievously perturbed on Thursday by the suggestion of a delegate that the finances were in a state of some chaos and required the scrutiny of an auditor. This impious proposal must have been made by a capitalist spy; it threw the meeting into a state of confusion which almost necessitated a call for the police. Class-conscious workers or won't-workers were righteously indignant at the idea that a member of the hated bourgeois class might have to be called in to straighten out errors; it was a betrayal of the embattled proletariat to suggest that it was not competent to handle any difficulties of finance or calculation.

This must have been the reason, of course, which led the delegates to assert, and to vote, that they could settle their own affairs without calling in an "expert." No one but a prejudiced reactionary would suggest that there was anything in the disposition of I. W. W. funds, or in the source of certain contributions, which the organization might not care to expose to an alien eye.

NEUTRAL MORESNET.

By the Treaty of Peace Germany is to recognize the full sovereignty of Belgium over "the contested territory of Moresnet." Thus a curious little blunder of the Congress of Vienna is rectified. Southwest of Aix-la-Chapelle lies the little triangular tract called Neutral Moresnet. In Napoleon's Empire the district known as Moresnet belonged to the Department of the Ourthe. The Vienna inexperts meant to parcel it out between Prussia and the Netherlands. On the map they drew through it a line about whose northern terminus, at a point where the Departments of the Ourthe, the Roeure, the Meuse come together, there was no difficulty. About the southern end their clients squabbled, and their descriptions in the treaty were at variance. Prussia swore by one article; the Netherlands founded its title upon another. In mid-Moresnet was a triangular strip of land occupying some 850 acres. The fortunes of this strip depended upon which of the two articles prevailed. The Congress had larger questions and regions to dispose of. Between Moresnet of the Netherlands and Moresnet of the Prussians Neutral Moresnet was set up to be administered civilly by Prussia and Holland.

After the division of the Kingdom of the Netherlands in 1830 into Holland and Belgium, the latter took its undivided half in the Government of Neutral Moresnet. Till the war of 1914 the coins and stamps of both countries were good in Moresnet. The two nations administered it jointly, splitting the taxes between them. There were no railways, forts, troops. A Burgomaster, from whom lay appeals to Prussian or Belgian courts and who was subject to supervision by a Belgian and a Prussian Commissioner, was the potentate of Neutral Moresnet and its 3,800 souls. Of these about one-eighth, happy descendants of the inhabitants in 1814, paid no taxes higher than those of that year, and were not subject to military service. There was a Council of Ten, ambitious name; a Committee of Beneficence, and so on; but the Burgomaster was the mighty man of the district. A single policeman, facetiously called the Secretary of War, preserved order; not that there was anybody to disturb it, but Dogberry, as the representative of a brace of Kings, was necessarily a busy and an anxious personage.

A place of many tongues, if but few people. Dutch, Flemish, French, German, Walloon were spoken; and even a little Russian and Italian, for there were two Italians and one Russian in residence according to the latest census; nicked and scratched by its neighbors, the German of Neutral Moresnet was one of the queerest and most unintelligible dialects in the world. Neutral Moresnet was also called Vieille Montagne, Altenburg, Old Mountain, though it is but a humble hill. From time immemorial calamine, hydrous silicate of zinc, has been found and worked there. Kelmis, the capital, is named after calamine, and the favorite flower of the citizens of Kelmis is a certain yellow violet, which they deem the unerring token of zinc.

Queer little town of pink, brown, and yellow façades, where the charivari is a concert for the unmarried, and "the most popular music at these open-air concerts is that made by scraping a great scythe against the tire of a revolving wheel." And what a place for outdoor debate, eloquence, invective! Mr. ROBERT SHACKLETON, that fortunate Philadelphia lover of out-of-the-way places, remembers "hearing a morning quarrel with the milkman" in Neutral Moresnet; "and, such are the geographical advantages of the place, not only the Neutral Land, but Prussia and Holland and Belgium as well, listened perforce to the woman's side of the argument."

Tears Shed for Wilhelm.

It has long been recognized that in some circumstances it is expedient for one man to go to jail for a people who may be equally guilty but whom it would be inexpedient to send to jail. One might suppose that even the Germans would realize this sufficiently to regard the disposition of their former Emperor with some indifference; but it would seem that the old German sentimentality has been roused by the prospect of some punishment for this eminent picker of violets and lachrymose contemplator of the ruins of France. Professor THEODOR SCHIEMANN calls it a shocking disregard of "international and moral laws beautified by tradition." Since there is no evidence that anybody in Germany was shocked by the disregard of similar laws no less beautified by tradition on the part of the German army in Belgium, one may suspect that the German conscience regards the Kaiser as suffering vicariously for his people and resents the idea of trying him because a verdict of guilty will apply equally to the whole race.

Dr. SCHIEMANN ascribes the purpose to try the Kaiser to the bad conscience of the allied Powers, and then gives his own list of British, French, and Russian statesmen and editors who are responsible for the war. "The German peace delegation must demand their trial." It is a wonder that he omitted ADAM and EVE, LOUIS XIV, and ALFRED the Great. Herr ERZBERGER, in his recent and entertaining Utopian scheme published under the title of "The League of Nations," lays the blame on CHARLES DARWIN and the evolutionists for setting the nineteenth century on the wrong path. No wonder Germany weeps for a Kaiser compelled to expiate the crimes of HUXLEY and NORTHCLIFFE.

One Gangster Who Was Different.

Governor SMITH has restored to citizenship "MONK" EASTMAN, the gang leader and burglar, because of his gallant record in the army and because of the fact that his officers testify that he has made himself a new man. "Army life has made me over," says EASTMAN. His own testimony on that score might not be readily taken were it not backed up enthusiastically by those above him. "His conduct was exemplary, and he has never been reported for absence without leave or for any other offense, and I will give him character—excellent character—on his discharge," writes Lieutenant KERRIGAN, his immediate superior; and Colonel WARD of the 106th Infantry, 27th Division, indorses it. Besides, EASTMAN performed some extraordinary acts, such as escaping from a hospital while wounded, equipping himself from a salvage dump, joining his company, and remaining, as KERRIGAN puts it, "through the whole Hindenburg show," wounded as he was.

Let us not be carried away by enthusiasm. We have all known that some of these young criminals were merely bad boys led wrong by a love of adventure and finding its gratification only in crime. EASTMAN was evidently one of them, and every warm heart will rejoice in his regeneration under new influences. But most of them are young men without a vestige of honor or anything that could respond to those emotions which touched the heart of EASTMAN. Most of them are preyers upon women, victims of "dope," men predestined, not by society but by their own natures, to viciousness rather than vice. They are of a peculiarly loathsome and rat-like type, and the analysis of their natures would not bear description. Led before the enemy's guns, or even made to stand up squarely before a "gun" of another type held in the hand of a rival gangster, they would weaken and run. They shot from automobiles and cellar areaways, never giving the victim a chance for his life, and they could not be made to shoot even thus without being stiffened by "dope."

Every man with human instincts will be glad to extend his hand to "MONK" EASTMAN, the bad boy who had something in him; but that is no reason for amnesty to the morons with whom he associated and who are still among us.

DEMENTIA DIVINA.

Under the spell of this mischief-maker
Spring!
I'll wager that even Diana,
Frigid goddess,
Regilds bow and arrows,
Sirius and Aldebaran,
At a very rakish angle,
O Diana!

ROOSEVELT EXHIBIT OPENS AT COLUMBIA

LETTERS FROM EX-KAISER

Letters from the former Kaiser and other rulers and statesmen to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, as well as hundreds of his trophies from all parts of the world, were placed on exhibition in Avery Hall at Columbia University last night under the auspices of Columbia House. The exhibition is to remain open for a month as part of the campaign on Americanization.

Those who were present at the opening of the exhibit last night were persons who had been friends of Colonel Roosevelt for years, and many of them had known him since he was Police Commissioner in this city. The first view of the exhibit was limited to these friends, who had received special invitations to attend the opening. Colonel Roosevelt was eulogized by Hamlin Garland in an address.

The exhibits may be divided roughly into four sections, although none are placed in categories. One section comprises letters written to Colonel Roosevelt by persons in all stations of life, from emperors to patrolmen on the city police force, and by his children. In another section are trophies of his hunting trips in the Rocky Mountains, in Africa and in South America. A third group takes in several portraits and busts of the ex-President, and a fourth shows some of his manuscripts and some of the editions of his literary works.

The big game trophy section of the exhibit was arranged by Carl Akeley, the hunter and explorer who accompanied Colonel Roosevelt on his African expedition, and most of the heads and pelts were taken from the Trophy Room in the mansion at Oyster Bay.

The art collection includes practically all of the famous portraits of Colonel Roosevelt, as well as etchings and bronzes. One portrait is that of Melcher, showing Colonel Roosevelt in his hunting suit. In the literary section under the direction of Colonel J. B. Bishop, who was Colonel Roosevelt's literary executor, is a collection of scores of letters and manuscripts. Some of them were received by Colonel Roosevelt, and many others were written by him and now are put on view by courtesy of the recipients.

Some of the letters from rulers in all parts of the world refer to the success of the tour around the world of the American battle fleet. One of these, written in 1908 by Wilhelm Hohenzollern, then Kaiser, complimented the nation upon the tour of the squadron, and expressed the hope that the two nations would continue to develop their friendly relations, because, he said, they had so much in common. Kaiser Wilhelm also inclosed some snapshots of his family, including one of the son who was then Crown Prince.

There is a letter from the former Czar of Russia in English and one by the Emperor of Japan. One of the letters of King Edward speaks of the solidarity of the English-speaking races throughout the world, and concludes: "I entirely agree with you that the interests of the English-speaking peoples are alike in the Atlantic and Pacific, and I look forward with confidence to the co-operation of the English-speaking races becoming a most powerful civilizing factor in the progress of the world."

Many letters in a long correspondence with John Hay are shown, one by Mr. Hay being written just before the inauguration of Colonel Roosevelt and inclosing a lock of hair from the head of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Hay expressed the hope that the new President would wear the lock of the martyr President during his term of office.

Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia, has contributed the notes taken in a conference with David Jayne Hill, Albert Shaw, Dr. Butler, and others upon the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. Miscellaneous relics include Colonel Roosevelt's ranching and cowboy apparel, his rifles and many other trophies.

The exhibit is to be open to the public daily from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M. until Commencement at Columbia on June 4. Lectures on the life and work of Colonel Roosevelt are to be delivered daily at 4:30 P. M. and 8:30 P. M.

CONGRESS HONORS HERO.

Award of the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously to First Lieutenant William Bradford Turner of the 105th Infantry for gallantry at the battle of the Hindenburg Line was announced yesterday by Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan of the 27th Division. General O'Ryan received notice of the award yesterday, as did Colonel James M. Andrews, commanding the regiment, who recommended it.

"The acts which constituted the extraordinary valor and leadership displayed by this gallant officer are worthy of recital," said the announcement of General O'Ryan. "In the battle of the Hindenburg Line Lieutenant Turner led a small group of men to the attack under terrific artillery and machine gun fire, after they had become separated from the rest of the company in the darkness. Single handed, he rushed an enemy machine gun, which had suddenly opened fire on his group, and killed the crew with his pistol. He then pressed forward to another machine gun post twenty-five yards away and had killed one gunner himself by the time the remainder of the detachment arrived and put the gun out of action.

"With the utmost bravery he continued to lead his men over three lines of hostile trenches, cleaning up each one as they advanced, regardless of the fact that he had been wounded three times, and killed several of the enemy in hand-to-hand encounters. After his pistol ammunition was exhausted this gallant officer seized the rifle of a dead soldier, bayonetted several members of a machine gun crew and shot the others. Upon reaching the fourth line trench, which was his objective, Lieutenant Turner captured it with the nine men remaining in his group and resisted a hostile counter attack until he was finally surrounded by the enemy and killed."

Lieutenant Turner was 26 years old and served on the Mexican border as a member of Squadron A. He was commissioned in the 12th Infantry of the New York National Guard, and then assigned to the 108th Infantry. A few months before his death, on Sept. 27 last, he was promoted to first lieutenant and assigned to the 105th Infantry. The medal will be sent to his mother, Mrs. William H. Turner of 25 Hinkley Street, Dorchester, Mass. In announcing the award, General O'Ryan said that 5,000 of the men who had served in the New York National Guard had been commissioned in the American Army during the war.

PLANS A BUDGET SYSTEM.

Chairman of Senate Finance Committee Says Finances Are Chaotic.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, who will be the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee in the next Congress, announced today that he considered a budget system of such paramount importance that he would introduce a bill creating such a system as soon as Congress convenes. He declared that at present the financial system was "chaotic" and that often, through lack of knowledge of what each other were doing, Cabinet officers sent in estimates that overlapped, and that therefore there was waste and extravagance.

The Senator said the first task of Congress would be to pass the appropriation bills left over from last March. Discussion of the expenditures of the Railroad Administration would be necessary, he said, before revenues for the Government could be considered. Senator Penrose predicted that there would probably be a repeal of the luxury taxes in the war revenue bill.

"In my opinion, the establishment of a budget system is the most important question that will come before the Congress, and all others are ultimately related to it," said Senator Penrose. "Steps are being taken to formulate an inquiry looking to legislation on this matter.

"I want a budget system that will be administrative and legislative," continued Senator Penrose. "There is an almost complete absence of a budget system, either administrative or legislative, in the Government of the United States now, and this fact, together with the habit of extravagance and wasteful expenditures developed by the war, will produce a chaotic condition in the income and expenditure accounts of the Government unless a budget system is promptly provided."

On the question of possible reduction of taxation Senator Penrose said:

"The reduction or possible increase in taxation goes back to the budget system. It is no exaggeration to say that no official connected with the American Government at the present time is in a position to give even the vaguest intimation as to how great will be the expenditures which the Government will be called upon to make during the next year. A first step clearly is to find out the requirements. As it is now the different Cabinet officers submit their own individual recommendations without any concert of action.

"It would seem that we must find out the growing deficit which is being incurred by the Railroad Administration before we can discuss the amount of money which the Treasury is going to require. For myself, I believe economy and retrenchment should be the watchwords from now, and if care is exercised and waste abolished taxes, of course, can be reduced. They must be reduced or unfortunate business consequences will result.

"So far as revenue legislation is concerned, it is likely that the resolution will be pressed for repealing the so-called luxury taxes. The resolution repealing these taxes would have passed in the last Congress had it had consideration before adjournment."

Investigations of war expenditures and activities are favored by Senator Penrose, but, he added:

"I do not believe these investigations should be carried on in any partisan spirit, and full allowance should be made for the peculiar conditions prevailing in the crisis of the great war."

CAMP UPTON, L. I., May 9.—The swift machinery of demobilization of this camp was accelerated to such a degree today that all records for one day's muster out of troops were not only broken, but splintered. Between 8:30 and 4:30 o'clock 10,329 men and 100 officers of the 77th Division were discharged, paid off, and started for home. Tomorrow the remaining 4,241 men and 383 officers of the division will be mustered out.

The demobilization plan worked out by Major Joseph Klapp Nicholls, Camp Personnel Adjutant, was put into effect without a hitch. Men were paid off as fast as 1,400 an hour, and officers who took the places of enlisted men selling railroad tickets disposed of thirty every six minutes. The staff of Colonel G. H. Scott, Camp Surgeon, made 15,000 physical examinations in thirty-nine hours.

The 306th Infantry reported to the paymaster at 6 o'clock this morning. Today 1,300 men of the division took out citizenship papers, and 700 more will be naturalized tomorrow. Italians predominated, and many other nationalities were represented.

STILL PLAN 529,000 ARMY.

War Department's Policy Unchanged by Peace Progress.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Progress made by the Peace Commissioners at Paris has caused no change in the War Department's policy of a temporary army of approximately 529,000 officers and men, as provided for in the annual Army Appropriation bill, which failed of passage in the closing hours of the last Congress.

It became known officially today that the department is prepared to press practically the same bill at the extra session, to begin May 19, possibly the only changes being reductions in estimates for subsistence. It was explained that these were possible because of the demobilization of the war army.

QUIT HOME ARMY JUNE 15.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Commanding Generals of the Northeastern, Eastern, Southeastern, and Central Departments, and of Camps Knox, Bragg, Benning, Humphreys, Eustis, and Fort Sill, were instructed today that it is the desire of the War Department to have discharged by June 15 all men drafted or enlisted for emergency who are eligible for discharge.

The exception of the Southern and Western Departments from the order was understood to be due to the fact that units under the supervision of those departments are largely on duty on the Mexican border, and that it therefore might not be practicable to release the men by June 15.

DEGAS SKETCHES IN ART MUSEUM

COURBET'S TENOR PORTRAIT

Many acquisitions of general interest have been added to the Metropolitan Museum of Art collections this last month. One of the most important is a picture of the Courbet centennial exhibition now in progress at the Museum and which will form a permanent addition to the Museum's collections. This is the portrait of M. Gueymard, famous tenor of the Paris Opéra who is shown in the rôle of "Robert le Diable," sitting on a table, his glass raised as he sings: "Oui l'or est une Chimère." It is one of the best of the fine collection and is presented to the Museum by Mrs. Elisabeth Milbank Anderson. It will continue for the present on exhibition with the collection which, owing to the interest which as been shown in it, will remain on view for two weeks longer than the scheduled time, through Sunday, June 1.

There has been a lack in the Museum's modern paintings in the absence of a Degas, Bryson Burroughs, its Curator of Paintings, says in announcing the acquisition of ten delightful sketches by that artist. These were purchased by the Museum at the Degas sale last December and can now be seen in the Recent Accessions Room. The earliest of the sketches are of Edouard Manet, the painter, one standing taken evidently at the races which Degas and Manet frequented and two others show the artist sitting. There is a delightful portrait of Emile Duranty seated at a desk.

There is a vigorous sketch of a violinist, pastel, in colors, a part of a study for one of Degas's ballet paintings, probably; two are portraits of women entitled Mme. Loubens and Mme. Lisle, and there are a couple of characteristic studies of the nude. Above the Duranty are the crowded shelves of a library.

An interesting painting in the Recent Accessions Room is by Fantin-La Tour, "L'Atelier Aux Batignolles," and is the gift of Mrs. M. Loewel in memory of Charles W. Kraushaar.

A Spanish alb in the Recent Accessions Room, a recent gift from Mrs. Ansley Wilcox of Buffalo, is a beautiful garment, embroidered in gold with frills of maline lace. At first appearance the charm of the garment seems to be its simplicity. It requires the close examination of an expert to discover that it is a marvelous piece of needlework. It is a garment of full length, intended to cover the wearer, and apparently is made of an open-work linen. What looks to be an open mesh is really drawnwork, threads drawn in the linen forming the entire garment. It is a colossal piece of work. Miss Frances Morris, who is the textile expert of the museum, has estimated the number of stitches required to produce this lace-like texture. "About eight yards of twenty-seven-inch goods were required to make the garment," she says, "and to reduce this to 'fils tirés' of the exquisite quality here shown means an outlay of 1,071 stitches to the square inch, or over 41,000,000 stitches in the groundwork of the entire vestment." This is in addition to the embroidery, which is in pure gold thread, done in chain stitch. Biblical scenes are represented.

There is also shown in the Room of Recent Accessions a piece of furniture of unusual beauty, a dressing table made for the use, not of the belles but of the beaux of the latter part of the eighteenth century. It is raised high on four slender legs, a rather high mirror is at the back, and on either side tall compartments with doors, and just below the mirror are placed one oval and three round boxes for powder, &c., closed in by a curved pane of glass, with a cover which shuts down automatically. The gallants of those days were distinguished for their powdered locks, and the powder was carefully kept in this way. There are a couple of drawers in the front of the table and cross-supports below. It is of the style of Sheraton, influenced by Heppelwhite, and made by Seddon Sons & Shackleton, whose name appears in a conspicuous place on the front of the table inside the glass cover, showing that it was one of their masterpieces. This is the firm which made a famous dressing table for Charles IV. of Spain after designs by the Royal Academician, Sir William Chambers.

WOULD TURN BACK SHIPS.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Private operation of all merchant ships built by the Government during the war, except those necessary for the army, navy, or other Government departments, is proposed in a bill framed by Senator Jones of Washington, who will be the Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee in the new Congress. The measure provides that the vessels may be sold outright or chartered to American citizens and corporations.

In announcing today that he would introduce the measure at the extra session of Congress, Senator Jones said it was intended "to care for the present situation until conditions shall become more normal, and we can develop a wise and permanent shipping policy based upon normal conditions, and upon the experience that will give us reliable facts and data to guide us."

Two plans of sale are provided, one permitting payments to be complete in three years, and the other in twenty years. Charters for private operation would be for five years. The bill directs that the sale or charter be by the President, through the Shipping Board, and it extends the life of the board for five years. Foreigners would be permitted to purchase only steel ships of 3,500 tons or less.

The President would be authorized to announce where the Government desires new lines established for the development of American trade, and special consideration would be given to establishing routes in the Pacific and South America. Should private operators fail to operate over the designated routes, however, the President would be empowered to develop the lines with Government ships.

OLE HANSON HERE; SPEAKS FOR LOAN

WANTS LAWS ON BUSINESS

Ole Hanson, Seattle's fighting Mayor, who quelled the Bolshevist uprising in his home city, came to New York yesterday to plead for the success of the Victory Loan. Notwithstanding the rain which fell intermittently during the exercises at Victory Way, where Mayor Hanson made his first speech of the day, a large crowd turned out to greet him and cheered him to the echo.

Mayor Hanson spoke at four other Victory Loan rallies during the day, ending up at the Argonne Theatre in Times Square. New York's first view of the outstanding figure in the strike crisis of the Northwest showed him a white-haired man of medium height, compelling personality and emphatic manner. He has been several weeks on the way from Seattle, speaking for the Victory Loan in various large cities on his journey. He is accompanied by his wife and secretary.

"There's a new sentence I'm going to use in my speeches," he said, "and it's a good one, a really good one—'Congress must pass laws whereby business will know where it's going, how it is going to get there, and how long it can stay after it arrives.' I request that the great Government of the United States defend itself against the insidious attack of preachers of force and violence who are advocating and planning and attempting to overthrow this Government. I request their punishment. I request the deportation, after due investigation and trial, of the seditious alien. I request the stopping of all seditious publications in this country. Liberty does not mean license nor does free speech mean advocacy of the overthrow of our Government by force."

Sees Love Instead of Hate.

"Employers of labor must and will pay the workers a fair wage, establish and maintain good, decent conditions, treat labor more like a partner, and see to it that every child in this land receives a useful, first-class education. Then the world will witness a joining of the hands of labor and capital, and we will love instead of hate, seek coöperation instead of class war, and the two will unite and drive from this free country the red menace which is no menace at all if we try to practice even in a small measure the golden rule."

It was "Old Glory Day" at the Way, and in addition to Mayor Hanson the speakers included Major Gen. David C. Shanks, commander in chief of the Port of Embarkation here, and Captain Pat Smith, better known as Gypsy Smith, the soldier evangelist of Scotland. Corporal James Tanner, Past Commander of the G. A. R., spoke on the long distance telephone from Washington.

Mayor Hanson said in part:

"Just for a few moments I desire to speak to the New Yorkers of their duty. You are the largest city in this entire country. It is to you that the men on the highways and byways of this land look for example and guidance. I understand that you are only 50 per cent. American in the City of New York; that you have only subscribed to 50 per cent. of the bonds that you're supposed to subscribe for.

"I desire to say to you that when the boys marched down the street and you stood with waving handkerchiefs, with tears in your eyes, and bade them Godspeed that you promised them you would stand back of them while they were gone; you promised to pay the bills. You said to them, 'Boys, you go and fight; you go to France and Belgium and save the world and we will stay home and we will be true to you. We will stand back of you and when you come back we will take care of you.'

"Now this is the condition. The Government of the United States believes you. They spent $26,000,000,000 in order that we might win the war. Squander part of it? Why of course they squandered part of it. Who ever sat in a poker game without making some bad bets? And why did they squander it? They squandered it in order that the war might be shortened. This country always thought more of manhood and womanhood than it did of gold. What did we care for a million, five million, or five hundred million if we could shorten the war one single week, one single day, or save a single American boy's life?

Must Not Break Faith.

"Now if in this great city there is any man or woman to speak of repudiation, I say to them, if you want to break faith, break it, that is all. Leave it with the rest of the United States; the rest of the United States will raise the money if necessary for the City of New York and pay your boys' fare home from France, because we are going to bring them home; going to bring them home; we are going to bring them home to their sweethearts and to their wives. Now they are over there. A lot of you men say, We did this, we did that. Why, all that all of you did sinks into insignificance when you see but one cross shining in the moonlight in Belgium. You must keep the faith.

"I can't speak to you very long. It ought not to be necessary for any man to speak to the people of the City of New York—one of the first cities in this country, and a city that has gone over the top in the Red Cross drive and every other Liberty Loan.

"Let me tell you that over across there are still 1,600,000 boys, and you promised to pay their fare home; you promised to take care of the blind; you promised to take care of the widows; you promised to take care of the wounded; you said you would stand by them as long as we have a dollar. Are you New Yorkers hypocrites? Or are you real honest-to-God American citizens? Has money got into your veins, blood, and heart so that you do not realize that the people of the country, the people of the world have their eyes on New York? Go on, buy your bonds.

"Don't be a hypocrite; go on and do your work, and let the news go out within the next twenty-four hours that New York, the greatest city in this country, the greatest city in the world, had made good and kept the faith. Don't break faith with these 69,000 boys that will never come back from Belgium. Don't break faith with the gold-star mother; don't break faith with the people of this country, who look to the people of New York for leadership.

"Are you going to ask men to fight for you in the blood and the mud, and then refuse to lend this great Government the money that it needs to take care of the boys that have gone over there? I don't think so. I think the City of New York is going over the top, I think we are going to sell enough bonds to bring the boys back home and take care of them when they come back."

BROOKLYN AIMS AT PRIZE.

Last Day Loan Drive to Win Captured Cannon.

With a total of $65,013,300 subscribed to the Victory Loan, $5,000,000 more than its quota, the Borough of Brooklyn is going to put forth extra efforts today in an attempt to win one of the German cannon offered as a prize by the United States Treasury to cities reporting the largest percentage of oversubscription. According to the Brooklyn Liberty Loan Committee, the borough will win the trophy if hard work can accomplish anything.

E. Carlton Granbery, Vice Chairman of the committee, has received the "V" honor flag, and arrangements have been completed for the flag raising today at Borough Hall. The exercises will begin at 1 o'clock, and will include band concert, community singing, speaking, and parades. William Stanley Miller, Chairman of the Greenpoint district of the Metropolitan Canvass Committee, has secured an individual subscription of $6,000,000. The identity of the subscriber cannot be divulged, but the subscription is the largest individual subscription made in Brooklyn.

ment has so far sold notes to the amount of $35,000,000. The total subscriptions obtained by the Fire Department could not be estimated yesterday, but their efforts were rewarded by a number of big subscriptions, including $500,000 from the American Exchange National Bank, $500,000 from the Guaranty Trust Company, $250,000 from the Seaboard National Bank, and $100,000 from the Chatham and Phoenix Bank.

The plans call for a whirlwind finish by the patrolmen and the members of the reserve forces. It is confidently expected by Fourth Deputy Commissioner Wallis, head of the police drive, that the Department will go over its quota of $50,000,000. The police reserve women will tour Harlem, Bronx, and the Washington Heights sections this morning. The welcome home parade to Father Duffy in the Bronx tomorrow morning will be the signal for a borough-wide canvass. Women reservists will be stationed along the route of the parade.

Booth Record of $1,010,800.

The navy has already exceeded its quota in the Victory Liberty Loan drive, according to a telegram. By tonight the sailors expect to go over the top a second time. In his message Rear Admiral T. J. Cowie, navy Victory Loan officer, said:

"The navy challenges the country to beat this record. Its reported subscriptions to date (noon) are more than $16,000,000. All ships and stations in this country, and on all seven seas, are making a whirlwind finish which they wish the country to match. The Victory Ship is making full speed for New York City, the Harbor of Victory, on her epoch-making journey from San Francisco. She needs a big final push from the entire country to get her into port with colors flying."

The battleship New Mexico so far holds the record among the ships of the navy. Her crew has subscribed for $63,000 worth of Victory notes.

$3,314,870,450 Official Total May Be $3,800,000,000 on Unofficial Returns.

ST. LOUIS FIRST OVER QUOTA

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Subscriptions to the Fifth, or Victory Loan, jumped today to $3,314,870,450, or 73.66 per cent. of the minimum $4,500,000,000 quota, and every effort is now being made to obtain a large oversubscription before the close of the campaign tomorrow night. Today's gain was $496,309,450, establishing a new single day's record.

Official reports showed the feature of the day's campaigning was the jump taken by the New York district from fifth to second place. A gain of $234,000,000 was reported there, bringing the total for the district up to $1,204,000,000, the largest by far among all the individual district subscriptions.

Treasury officials pointed out that the total of subscriptions announced tonight for the entire nation really represented the campaign results of at least twenty-four hours earlier, and that the subscriptions actually taken today would not show in the official totals until tomorrow night.

When the campaign closes, they declared, another half billion dollars, representing today's work, will be on the official table. This would raise the total to approximately $3,800,000,000, and leave the remainder of the $4,500,000,000 loan, or about $1,200,000,000 to come from the final day's sales.

The official percentage quota for the Victory Loan was today carried ahead of the record in the Fourth Liberty Loan campaign for the corresponding day. On next to the last day of the fourth loan 65.97 per cent. of the quota of $6,000,000,000 had been obtained. The amount of money then subscribed, however, was larger, as it totaled $8,983,589,600.

For the third consecutive time the St. Louis district has achieved the honor of being the first to obtain its quota. Late reports tonight showed that district had a percentage of 100.11, and a big oversubscription was predicted there.

Victory Ship Speeding Here Tonight.

Indications now are that the Victory ship, Calhoun, one of the fastest destroyers, will steam into New York Harbor on Saturday night, a few hours before the campaign ends, thus concluding the relay voyage from San Francisco, and proclaiming to the world that the nation "finished the job" ahead of time. Instructions were issued tonight as a result of the sudden jump in subscriptions, to keep going full steam.

District.	Subscription.	Percentage.
New York	1,204,000,000	89.11

Colorado and Wisconsin obtained their quotas today. The city of Richmond also went over, by 10 per cent.

The Kansas City District jumped from seventh to fourth place in the official table, with a gain of $44,000,000, and the Philadelphia District from tenth to sixth place, with a gain of $67,000,000.

The Chicago District reported today that subscriptions were pouring in. Chicago is attempting to put its quota over without any bank subscriptions.

Baker Says Loan Is Final Test.

"The American Army of Occupation is patrolling the Rhine at Coblenz. The rest of our great expeditionary force is rapidly returning home, where it is being demobilized and restored to the industry of the country. We must pay our soldiers, and we must feed, clothe and transport them, until the last man is discharged. We must pay, too, for the great accumulations of stores provided for the use of the Army, and satisfy the debts of honor which our country undertook as its share of the great undertaking whereby the war was won.

"During the war we demonstrated the military, industrial, financial, and moral power of America. The eyes of the world are watching the success of the Victory Loan as the last conclusive step in that demonstration. We cannot fail. The great sacrifice was made by our soldiers who carried the flag of America to triumph in battle. We at home can do nothing which will equal the completeness and the glory of that sacrifice; but we can sustain and support the fighting men, and help to gather the fruits of the victory by showing the same sort of determination in the Victory Loan that the country showed in the Liberty Loans and the soldiers showed when they went over the top.

"This is the last great test. This loan is the last chapter in the story of America's supreme achievement. It must be worthy of the other chapters of that story, written by the soldiers at the front and the civilians at home, and together telling of heroism, sacrifice, and determination in a patriotic and righteous cause."

Confederacy's Daughters Subscribe.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy today subscribed to the Victory Liberty Loan, making a cash subscription representing 12,350 members directly to Secretary Glass.

The National Coal Association also voted to put all of its available funds, about $200,000, into Victory Liberty Loan notes. The subscription probably will be made in Philadelphia.

The navy officially went over the top today, reported subscriptions in the navy being now in excess of $10,000,000, whereas the navy's official quota had been set at $12,500,000. This figure was originally based both on the proportionate reduction in the nation's quota, and on the 33 per cent. curtailment of the navy's personnel since the last campaign.

The largest and newest dreadnought of the navy, the Idaho, is far and away in the lead in the battleship class, with a total of $75,000 subscribed on board to date, making a per capita subscription of $53. Seventy-one per cent. of the officers and men are on the Victory Loan honor roll, and the average subscription is $105 from the navy at large.

GARY SEES NO LOWER PRICES FOR STEEL

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of the United States Steel Corporation, said yesterday that it was his opinion that there would be no reduction in the prices for steel products for the reason, which has often been asserted, that costs are too high to permit of operations on a lower price level. He said his own company would adhere to the price level established after conference between the manufacturers and the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce, and expressed the belief that other companies would do likewise. Under such conditions competitive bidding for the order of 200,000 tons of steel rails which Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration announced would be placed might bring bids which were all at the same price level. Many of the other steel manufacturers expressed the view of Judge Gary that prices would not be reduced below what were the old stabilization figures.

The attention of Judge Gary was called to the statement made by Director General Hines, concerning the conference Thursday between representatives of the Railroad Administration and the iron and steel industry, and when requested to comment on the same, he answered as follows:

> We desire to avoid any controversy with the Railroad Administration or any other Government department. It is a time when all interests should co-operate in aiding to facilitate the movement for improved industrial conditions which is certain to take place if it is not already in evidence. The statement of the Director General, if it had been made after full acquaintance with the facts and figures, and had been accurate in all respects, would not, in my opinion, have any bearing upon the exact present situation.
> On the present basis the cost of production, as shown on the books of the manufacturers, verified by the Federal Trade Commission, would not permit any further reductions in the present selling prices without lowering the wage rates. Our subsidiary companies are strictly maintaining the scale of prices approved by the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce, and it seems to me that will be the attitude of other manufacturers for the reason, if for no other, that their cost of production will not allow any further reductions in selling prices. They have voluntarily made two substantial reductions since the armistice was signed.
> I regret that opinions between the Railroad Administration and the iron and steel industry should have differed. The business relationship has always been pleasant, and we should like to see it continued without interruption.

> There has at all times been an open market. An opinion to the contrary is a misconception of facts. There has been no effort to establish fixed prices. The fact that a seller cannot or will not reduce his selling price or that a purchaser cannot or will not pay the price asked does not modify the fact that the market is open.
> There is good business ahead. It is for the best interest of the whole country, producer and consumer, employer and employe, and the general public to take advantage of the extraordinary resources of the United States by standing together for greater progress and prosperity than we have ever before experienced.

There were other steel men yesterday who felt much encouraged by the settling of the controversy with the Railroad Administration, it being asserted that the industry was suffering severely from the prolonged effort to bring about stabilization. The announcement that the United States Steel Corporation would not cut prices below the stabilization standard brought out one perplexing question. It was pointed out that, while the Railroad Administration had refused to accede to the minimum prices, established by the steel producers and the Industrial Board, thep rice level was still inforced at the request of a Government department, there having been no request from the Industrial Board that the agreement with the manufacturers be canceled.

Some doubt was expressed as to whether the Railroad Administration would be able to obtain its rails as low as the stabilization prices. Some of the manufacturers may raise prices because of the narrow margin which they claim now exists between profits and operating costs. One of the most prominent of the independent companies, it was reported, did not earn its dividend requirements in March. As to the actual course of prices, it was believed there would be little that was significant until the Railroad Administration opened the rail bids.

Generally speaking, the steel manufacturers were inclined to be optimistic. Steel, it was said, is needed on a big scale not only for the railroads, but for private enterprise and for export.

GLASS REPLIES TO THE CALL

Denies That Loan Organization Was to Blame for Soldier Attacks.

The New York Call, which on May 2, through its business manager, Raymond Wilcox, addressed a telegram to Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, in which it was charged that the Victory Loan organization of this district was responsible for the hostile attitude assumed by soldiers and sailors who, it was charged, attacked the Call Building on Fourth Avenue, has received Secretary Glass's reply. Besides the alleged attack on The Call office there were anti-radical and anti-Bolshevist demonstrations in other parts of the city in which soldiers and sailors participated, following the publication of the facts in the mail-bomb conspiracy. This is Secretary Glass's letter:

> Dear Sir: I received your telegram of May 2, as follows:
>
> "Men employed by New York Government Loan Organization, as speakers for Victory Loan, organized mob of uniformed sailors and soldiers armed with sticks and clubs, broke into our new building, 112 Fourth Avenue, yesterday, during a reception and inspection by friends and readers of this newspaper. One woman is blind and several others are severely ill as a result of brutal attacks of the mob. Names of men were printed in today's issue of our paper and other New York dailies. We demand that you take action to protect lives and property by preventing further incitation to riot by speakers for Victory Loan and that you advise us of action taken."
>
> Governor Strong of the Federal Reserve Bank was promptly directed by the Secretary to make a full report concerning the occurrences to which you called attention.
> I have now received and read this report. I am not prepared to say that the ultimate responsibility for the disorders to which you called attention rests with the sailors and soldiers rather than with those incendiary publications which they resented. I am satisfied that the Victory Liberty Loan organization was in no way at fault in the matter.
>
> CARTER GLASS.

On the same date that he complained to Secretary Glass Mr. Wilcox also wired complaints to the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy. The telegrams were similar to the one addressed to Secretary Glass. It has not been announced whether or not the War and Navy Departments have replied to the telegram.

The investigation of the mail-bomb plot is continuing, and there will be no let-up, it was stated yesterday, by both Federal and local officials, until the persons responsible for and concerned in the conspiracy are identified. The entire Federal Secret Service force is at work on the case. Arrests may be made in the course of the next seven days, it was said yesterday.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—In a franked envelope marked "Official Business" the Post Office Department is distributing this statement through the mails:

> Communications received at the Post Office Department indicate that the business people of the country are becoming aroused by the disclosures as to the $72,000,000 subsidy brought out by the attacks of certain publishers made upon the Postmaster General. Protests are being made against the users of the mails being taxed $72,000,000 a year to pay the cost of transportation through the mails of printed advertising matter for the benefit of certain publishers, involving an unnecessarily high rate of postage on first-class matter which is most important to the business interests of the country.
>
> The president of a business institution has inclosed to the department under first class postage a copy of a certain periodical, which is transported for the publisher at about 2 cents a copy, but on which the charge when sent by first class was 64 cents, illustrative of the discrimination between the cost of ordinary mail commonly employed in business transactions and that enjoyed by publishers in the circulation of advertisements on which they make large profits. The one issue of this particular periodical amounted to about 2,500,000 pounds, transported through the mail at a cost of $150,000 to the other users of the mail.
>
> The letter to the department with which the copy of the periodical was inclosed said in part:
>
> "I am sending you herewith copy of the —— by first-class mail. You will see by the stamps attached how much the Government charges the business men of the country for carrying the same weight through the mails. If you will have one of your clerks look through this magazine, you will find that it contains 182 pages, 112 pages of which are advertising, seventy pages of reading matter, some of which is worth reading but very little of which is educational.
>
> "It is very hard for the business men of the country to understand why they are so grossly discriminated against in the matter of postal rates. Why the Government should subsidize such publications as this and hundreds of others which are even less worthy, is past finding out. Is it any wonder that the business interests of the country are finding fault with the administration for permitting such unjust and unbusinesslike matters to continue?"

POSTAL ANSWERS BURLESON

William J. Deegan, Secretary of the Mackay Companies, gave out a statement last night in which he assailed a statement by the Post Office Department that Clarence H. Mackay, President of the Postal Telegraph-Cable Company, had held up the inauguration of the eight-hour day. In his statement he said:

"The order which was issued by the Postmaster General in January covering certain wage and hour of service rearrangements was a schedule submitted by and adapted entirely to the peculiar organization of the Western Union Telegraph Company, which is different from ours, and we wrote to Mr. Burleson's committee that it would be very difficult to apply this Western Union schedule to our organization, but that we would be glad to confer with them with a view to bringing about some workable arrangement.

"That letter was never answered by Mr. Burleson's committee, and the consequence was that when the schedule was promulgated, we found it was absolutely impossible to literally apply it to our system without changing our plan of organization, and in this Mr. Union N. Bethell and other representatives of the Postmaster General agreed with us at the time and told us that we should 'do the best we could with it.' We did the best we could with it, and on March 5 we announced an increase in the wages of all our employes, which was more generous than the so-called Postmaster General's plan, because where he prescribed 5 per cent. we gave 10 per cent.

"The question of the hours of service, however, was very much involved, because about 40 per cent. of our operators work only seven hours and seven and a half hours, so that the application of the so-called Burleson schedule actually increases the hours of service of these men, and, of course, they are not going to be satisfied. Burleson and his assistants are so lacking in ordinary business ability that they complicate everything they handle.

"Why doesn't Burleson return the lines of the Postal Telegraph Company and thus meet the unprecedented demand from every section of the country for better service and reduced rates, which we are prepared to give? In whose interest is he holding onto the telegraph lines? That's the question to which Congress is going to demand an answer."

SMITH SIGNS AUTO BILL.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 9.—Governor Smith will veto the Kaplan bill, designed to end the kind of "fake" charities which caused scandals in New York City during the war. He made this known this afternoon at a hearing when the measure was opposed by several national charitable organizations. The bill sought to require all organizations seeking to raise funds to register with the State Board of Charities, and also to file statements showing receipts, expenditures, and the amount the beneficiary received.

The American Humane Society, the National Allied Relief Commission, the French Heroes' Fund, and the State Board of Charities opposed its enactment.

The Governor today signed the Sage bill appropriating $20,000 to permit the Secretary of State's office to carry out the provisions of the Knight-Wheelock act requiring automobile operators, owners, and members of owners' families to undergo a qualification examination before being licensed to operate an automobile.

The Governor disapproved the bill designed to permit appeals to the Court of Appeals in a capital case from orders denying motions for new trials on the ground of newly discovered evidence, made after the judgment of conviction had been affirmed by the Court of Appeals. The Governor held the measure might provide a method whereby execution of the death penalty could be forever postponed by successive motions for new trials.

Record New York-Brest Round Trip.

The United States naval transport Great Northern, which reached Hoboken yesterday morning with 2,971 troops, made a record round trip from New York to Brest and back in thirteen and a half days. Among the troops on board was the 125th Infantry from Michigan, one of the units of the 32d Division, under the command of Colonel Edward G. Heckel, a Detroit National Guardsman.

Prices Continue to Rise.

That the price trend of commodities is again upward is indicated by Dun's Index number on May 1, which reached $222,193, representing the cost of a year's supplies of a given number and quantity of staple commodities in the wholesale markets. This figure shows a 1 per cent. increase over the April 1 figures and 2.4 per cent. above March 1 figures.

SEES TROUBLE WITH BUDGET

Declares That Pay-as-You-Go Law and Direct State Taxation Would Halt Municipal Improvements.

Mayor Hylan sent to Governor Smith yesterday his veto of the bill passed by the last Legislature to amend the City Charter limiting the tax rate to $2.25 on each $100 value upon real estate in New York City, which rate would become effective in 1922. In his memorandum to the Governor the Mayor said that if the bill was enacted into law it would mislead property owners, builders, and investors, and the public generally who might be acquiring or making improvements upon real property and who would rely upon a limited tax rate. If the city, under the terms of the bill, should not be able to meet its obligations, he said, it would be necessary to have the law repealed. In his memorandum the Mayor said:

"The administrative officers of the city have no control over the direct State tax or the mandatory financial legislation imposed on the city which must be included in the yearly budget and tax levy. As an example, the Statewide teachers' bill, which, if approved by the Governor, would place a yearly burden upon the people of the City of New York of from fifteen to twenty million dollars, increasing the tax rate from twenty to thirty points, which increase in the tax rate, as the realty owners admit, would be ultimately passed along to the rent payer by increasing his rent. We are endeavoring to stop rent profiteering by landlords. To do that honestly and fairly we must stop imposing high taxes upon property by mandatory legislation to satisfy big salary grabbers.

"The operation of the pay-as-you-go law, which will be in full effect in the near future, will prohibit the construction of school houses, fire houses, or improvements to our charitable and correctional institutions because of the requirements of this law that the total cost of these improvements be included in the budget in the year in which they are made. With this pay-as-you-go law on the statute books mandatory legislation such as the teachers' Statewide bill, costing $15,000,000 to $20,000,000, and the direct State tax, which can be imposed by the State upon the city without limitation, the city would be hamstrung and could not build schoolhouses, firehouses, or make other public improvements that would be necessary because the entire cost of these improvements would have to be continued in the yearly budget, which would be limited to the tax levy of 2.25 per cent. on the assessed valuation of real estate.

"If the city were not able to meet its obligations because of the operation of this law it would be necessary to have it repealed. It can readily be seen that this would be unfair to those investors who purchased their holdings in good faith with the understanding that the tax rate would be limited to 2.25 per cent.

"Such a law would give the land sharks a great opportunity to fleece the honest investor in real estate, which would be on a par with some of the stock jobbing schemes of the public utility corporations. If the mandatory legislation which places a financial burden on the taxpayer and rentpayer by the State authorities is disapproved, and the city authorities allowed to administer the affairs of the city without a raid upon its treasury, we have hopes of a further relief to the taxpayers and rentpayers by a reduction in the tax rate for next year."

HEARST ASKED NO FAVORS.

Publisher Denies Report That He Has Broken with Gov. Smith.

William Randolph Hearst last night issued the following statement concerning the charge that he had broken with Governor Smith because the Governor had refused to follow Mr. Hearst's recommendation for filling the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Judge Shearn from the Supreme Court:

"I did not ask Governor Smith to appoint Mr. Palliser, Mr. DeFord or Mr. Limburg to the judgeship made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Shearn.

"I did not ask Governor Smith to appoint anybody to that position.

"As a matter of fact, I make a practise of not asking public officials to make appointments.

"I have been particularly careful never to ask any appointment or any other political favor of Governor Smith, for I have never been quite convinced of the sincerity of his professions of progressive principles.

"He has always been too close to Tammany and too close to certain public service corporations to make him an ideal public official from my point of view.

"I supported him because I felt that he was better than Whitman, or at least not as bad as Whitman, and because he made definite declarations in the nature of pledges for publication in my newspapers in favor of public ownership.

"But that does not mean that I must support any bad appointment that Governor Smith may make or condone any public act of his that might be a repudiation of his pledges to the public."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Sharp Advances Mark New Record Stock Trading—Steel Shares' Fresh Impulse.

Violent advances among stocks which have attracted a headlong speculative following occurred in early dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday and while the pace was so fast as to cause the reiteration of cautionary advice to traders, the reactions among these issues later were moderate. In fact, a number scored their highest prices of the day toward the close. It was the biggest session of the year in point of activity, which meant that the turnover was close enough to the 2,000,000 share level to cause wonderment over the extent of trading force after a long series of million-share days. Buying power had its greatest demonstration among the oil shares, especially among those which have recorded substantial gains in the last three weeks, and close observers of transactions expressed the opinion that while the favorites were being bid upward rapidly a vast output of realizing sales and sales for the short account were being put through in various parts of the list. As the result of this insistent pressure, the price list when the day closed was highly irregular, many declines being sandwiched in between gains which extended from 2 to as much as 17 points. Call money was firm at 5½ per cent. during the period when the bulk of the loans were being arranged or renewed, later easing to 5 per cent.

The firmness of steel stocks reflected the rather general satisfaction of the Street over the breaking of the deadlock which had existed so long between the trade and the Railroad Administration. Comment in stock market circles dealt less with the deeper economic possibilities of an "open" steel market than with the fact that a troublesome barrier had been removed from the growth of sentiment among steel consumers. The accumulated needs for steel in construction lines, in replacement work, which were heavy before the effort to stabilize prices was undertaken have since enlarged to greater proportions. Naturally, buyers seek to get their supplies as cheaply as possible, and it is likely that the period of give and take between producer and consumer would have made much progress by this time if stabilization had not been attempted. As the matter now stands, the process of dickering must be undertaken afresh, and no data has been presented to show whether the market will reawaken at a lower or at an actually higher level than the quotations presented to the Industrial Board. Chairman Gary of the Steel Corporation clings to his original stand that nothing should be done to prices which would necessitate a reduction of wages, and his statement of yesterday indicates a belief that the general level of quotations will not easily decline. Against this position of a leader in the industry is presented the known fact of reduced operations at steel mills—the average being probably not above 60 per cent. of capacity—and the precedent of other slack periods points toward price concessions in the van of a new expansion of business. In the end, of course, the attitude of consumers will tell the full story and this will be shaped in part by the growth of business in directions not directly connected with steel, by the enhancement of confidence over the future which now clearly shows signs of steady improvement.

Indications of active preparations for aiding the railroads with the assistance of Congress are seen in bankers' meetings, indications, by the way, which have not yet had expression in quotations for railroad securities. The impression prevails that the first thing to be urged before the special session will be the passage of the $750,000,000 appropriation bill in order to put the Railroad Administration in funds for current and pressing needs. Afterward the more difficult problem of deciding the railroad future is expected to be undertaken as a separate development.

Stabilization Plans.

After the failure of the Redfield stabilization plan as applied to the steel industry it would appear as if the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce has passed its usefulness. There is no question that the steel manufacturers have suffered greatly in the last six weeeks because of the controversy which developed over stabilization. In view of this, other industries would probably be very reluctant to enter into any arrangements with the Industrial Board.

Copper Demand Increasing.

Indications in the last few days have pointed to an increasing demand for copper. While the prevailing price has been 15½ cents, some sales have been reported at slightly better than this figure. The awakening of buying orders will probably eliminate the possibility of a further curtailment in mining operations. Just at present production seems to be about on a par with demand.

Steel Tonnage Figures.

It is expected that when the total of unfilled orders on the books of the United States Steel corporation is announced tomorrow, as applying to April 30, there will be another shrinkage shown. The tonnage has been steadily declining over a considerable period, and in view of the dullness that has prevailed in the industry recently a cut of as much as 500,000 tons is predicted. While holding this view, one steel man said yesterday that the present announcement would probably see the low mark in unfilled orders, with succeeding months showing an advance.

Spectacular Advances.

One of the noticeable features of yesterday's market was the manner in which many of the high-priced issues performed, chief among these being Texas Company. This stock has in the last three months enjoyed an advance of more than 100 points, most of which was gained in the last two weeks. The opening yesterday was at 290, or an advance of 20½ points over the close of the day before, and the net for the day was 17 points. Thursday the stock was bid up 20 points and the preceding days 16. Other high-priced issues which scored substantial advances were American Tobacco, which gained 5¼ points; Mexican Petroleum up 6¼ points, General Motors up 5¼, and United Fruit up 6⅞. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies at one time was up more than 8 points, but closed unchanged.

Some idea of the investment of American capital in Canada can be gained from figures which have been compiled by The Monetary Times. These show that there are 388 manufacturing plants in Canada which are directly connected with United States concerns. The average capital is estimated at $682,834, making a total investment of $264,939,592. A similar compilation in January, 1914, showed the number of plants to be 450 and the total investment about $135,000,000. The figures are considered a conservative estimate of United States investments in Canada, the fact that there are many Canadian shareholders being offset by the investment of United States capital in purely Canadian enterprises.

Schooner Space in Demand.

In the shipping world the continued demand for schooner tonnage to accommodate coastwise freight has caused some surprise among those who, before the scarcity of power bottoms, would ship nothing but coal or stone in the so-called "wind-jammers" of our coasts. On the other hand, there are those who have patronized the small sailing vessels, and have found them satisfactory for the transportation of a much wider variety of freight than coal and stone. The latter say that the demand for schooners will continue until the general tonnage scarcity abates.

Associated Dry Goods Up.

Associated Drygoods proved one of the more conservative issues which proved sensitive to a demand for stock in the trading yesterday. On a turnover of about 5,200 shares the price moved up to a high for the day at 49, and closed only half a point lower at 48½, with a net gain of more than 3 points. The company is reported to be enjoying an increasing volume of business.

American Woolen Gains.

American Woolen shares were also favored in the course of yesterday's stock market. The company, which did an enormous business in the manufacture of army uniform cloths during the war period, is reported to have readjusted itself to peace time demands, which are heavy, without particular strain. The stock advanced 5 points on increased buying.

The uncertainty surrounding the railroad situation was reflected in the railroad shares. With two or three exceptions the stocks in this group eased off to lower levels, and while there were a few temporary reactions, the general trend was downward. Rumors that bankers and railroad men were conferring on the problem did not tend to stifffen price values. On the contrary these reports, which were later verified, seemed to react on traders as a reason to get out of the rails.

According to the talk one hears, the market must be overbought, if by that term is meant a preponderance of longs, for one of the most difficult things these days is to find a person who is short of anything. Yet the market keeps on going up, and fairly boiling in the process. That some heads of brokerage houses are becoming fearful of a reaction is evident from the warnings and cautions which are going out of the offices, and the rising tendency of the call money market would make it appear as if bankers were not entirely satisfied with the course of events—and of prices.

Trading on the tape from a broker's office is a precarious business these days. The tape, on several occasions yesterday, got anywhere from five to fifteen minutes behind the market, and, while telephone clerks on the board did their best to keep their offices informed, it was physically impossible for them to send in quotations for everything and perform their other duties at the same time. Thus a good many clients were dealing in the dark, trusting to luck that they got the swings right and hoping for the best, which is about all any one can do these days.

The new commission rule, which, among other things, requires the payment of $20 for the execution of 100 shares of stock selling for $125 or more a share, may quite possibly work a hardship on some traders at some future date, but certainly yesterday nobody had any just complaint who was long of most of the "$20 stocks." Issues like Atlantic Gulf & West Indies, General Motors, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Company and United Fruit, all high-priced, were up anywhere from 5 to 22 points at some time during yesterday's session. If a man were long of 100 shares of stock and made a 20-point profit, he could hardly kick for being charged $20 to take his $2,000 gain.

Eighteen years ago yesterday the stock market went through the session which stands out above all others in the history of the Stock Exchange. The performance was quite different on the anniversary than on the ninth of May, 1901. Texas Company's 22-point rise compares—well, rather favorably, with the 20 to 40 point breaks in stocks like Atchison, St. Paul, Rock Island, Consolidated Gas, Louisville & Nashville, Manhattan Elevated, Union Pacific, Steel and others. Incidentally, there was an issue yesterday which, in reality, sold higher than Northern Pacific sold in the regular way eighteen years ago. General Motors, on the old basis of one share of old to five of new, was equal to $950 a share for the old, regular way, whereas while Northern Pacific sold for $1,000 a share for cash, the highest figure for regular sales was $700 a share.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RULING.

New Regulation Announced by Federal Reserve Division.

The Division of Foreign Exchange of the Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday that dealers in foreign exchange may purchase bills of exchange on the countries of Central and Southeastern Europe from the American Relief Administration, whenever it is in the market, for remittance to their banking correspondents to cover cables, demand or money orders, which they may sell directly to their clients in the ordinary way and without restriction.

This new regulation does not do away with the monopoly granted the Relief Administration, which was established by the order of the Division of Foreign Exchange on April 22, nor does it authorize remittances to Germany except through the Relief Administration.

A circular giving full instructions for exchange transactions with the countries in question will be issued within a few days, it was announced, and in the meantime exchange dealers may make applications for their requirements to the offices of the Administration, 115 Broadway.

BANKERS DISCUSS NEEDS OF CARRIERS

WANT PROMPT LEGISLATION

Sentiment Said to Favor Immediate Appropriation of $750,000,000, as Urged by Hines.

Conferences were held in the financial district yesterday between private bankers and railroad executives on the present financial situation of the railroads and the necessity for a replenishment of the Railroad Administration Revolving Fund as soon as the matter can be reached after the extra session of Congress convenes on May 19. Since the failure of the last Congress to pass the general deficiency measure which bore an appropriation of $750,000,000 additional for the revolving fund, the banks have provided more than half of the financial requirements of the carriers. It is understood that the conferences of yesterday had to do with the meeting of present needs and the care of the future through Congressional action.

The first meeting was held in the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. It was attended by J. P. Morgan, Charles Steele, and Dwight W. Morrow of that firm, George F. Baker of the First National Bank, and Thomas DeWitt Cuyler, Chairman, and Alfred P. Thom, General Counsel, of the Association of Railway Executives.

No statement was issued following the meeting, but it is understood that the bankers and the railroad men discussed almost exclusively the necessity for a replenishment of the railroad revolving fund at as early a date as possible in view of the fact that the banks are bearing a burden of railroad financing which is assuming large proportions. It is understood that all of those who attended the meeting are agreed that the incoming Congress should meet the financial needs of the Railroad Administration immediately.

The banking fraternity seems to favor the immediate appropriation of the $750,000,000 which Director General of Railroads Hines asked from the last Democratic Congress by the new body which will be Republican in majority. While bankers are not unanimous on this point it is understood that several of the men upon whose institutions has fallen the heavier share of the railroad financing which has been necessary in the emergency period favor such action. The former measure is acknowledged to be a Democratic one, but it was not opposed by the country and would have passed but for the last minute senatorial filibuster, and it is understood that the bankers who urge that it be adopted by the extraordinary session, do so to avoid unnecessary delay in replenishing the Railroad Administration's purse.

The emergency financing of the carriers which has been taken care of by the bankers amounts approximately to $150,000,000, including June 1 requirements. On April 1 the roads were in need of about $70,000,000. Of this amount $35,000,000 was provided by the War Finance Corporation in direct loans to the carriers. The remainder was provided by the banks.

The May 1 requirements were in the neighborhood of $60,000,000, half of which was again borne by the banks in addition to some $34,500,000 in secured notes and $6,600,000 in unsecured notes. Requirements of the roads on June 1 are approximately $46,500,000, and it has been generally believed that the banks would have to increase their railroad financing to embrace $30,000,000 in secured notes and $15,000,000 in unsecured notes which fall due on that date.

It is realized among railroad executives that the railroad problem is not the only one the private bankers have had to face in the last three months. Equipment companies have required the assistance of the bankers to an appreciable amount.

With the incoming Congress convening on May 19, hopes have been expressed in the financial district that the legislative body will make it possible for the Railroad Administration to reassume the burdens which have been widely distributed in the emergency period, and in some quarters it is believed that such quick action will be taken that private bankers will not be asked to help out in the matter of June 1 railroad requirements. On the other hand, it is understood that provisions have virtually been completed as far as the June 1 situation is concerned, and that if Congress provides the Director General of Railroads with funds to meet the requirements of the carriers for the rest of the year beginning with July 1, needs which amount to $113,000,000 and $34,000,000 secured and about $10,000,000 unsecured notes, bankers will be satisfied. Other conferences were held by bankers on the same situation yesterday, and it is expected that data will be presented as the result in the course of the next few days.

After its disappointing performance of Thursday, the cotton market yesterday turned strong, and on a rather surprising volume of buying rose 65 to 70 points at the maximum. May and July did not fare so well as the more distant months, which latter were favorably influenced by improvement abroad and by good buying from some of the domestic trade interests. The Liverpool market was strong, and apparently the reports of labor difficulties in England, which greatly aided the bears here on Thursday, were not taken so seriously by the Liverpool market.

Cold and rainy weather over most of the belt contributed to the strength here, and the fact that the spot situation was stronger helped the futures market. Most of the Southern spot markets were firmer, and the local market for spots was up 35 points on the day. However, probably the greatest factor in yesterday's rise was the rebuying by sold-out bulls, who had taken their profits earlier in the week and were anxious to get back into the market yesterday. This buying came mainly from local commission houses and from the so-called Wall Street houses. One theory advanced for this latter interest was that a good many stock houses are advising caution in stock speculation, and the warnings are thought to be turning operators into cotton.

The export situation also appeared better yesterday. The reports from abroad indicated a considerable decline in cotton supplies at Liverpool, while the exports reports of this week show something more than 140,000 bales to have gone forward in the last five days, nearly 100,000 of which moved out on Thursday and yesterday.

At the close the market was strong at near the best figures of the day. Last prices were up 39 points for May and 45 for July, with the new crop months up 65 to 67 points.

ANACONDA SHOWS REVENUE DECREASE

Total Income for 1918 Is $150,486,315, or About $8,500,000 Less Than for 1917.

EXPENSES SHOW INCREASE

Report to Shareholders Says Higher Wages, Freight Rates, and Cost of Supplies Cut Profits.

The Anaconda Copper Mining Company in its report for last year shows that total revenues amounted to $150,486,315, a decrease of approximately $8,500,000 from the preceding year. In this item are includes sales of metals amounting to $102,586,542, also $27,865,266 for metals in process and on hand. The total expenses, including depreciation and interest charges, amounted to $129,683,445, as compared with $124,620,487 in the preceding year. The balance for dividends of $20,802,870 was equivalent to $8.49 a share on the outstanding capital stock. In the preceding year the balance for dividends was $34,333,752, or the equivalent of $14.72 a share. After dividend payments the balance for 1918 was $3,318,495, as compared with a surplus of $14,518,127 in 1917.

Balance	20,802,870	34,333,752
Dividends	17,484,375	19,815,625

The balance sheet shows that quick assets at the close of 1918 amounted to $165,224,244 as compared with $154,529,407 in the preceding year. The depreciation reserve was $15,476,481, or about $5,000,000 greater than in 1917. The production of ore during the year was 4,918,468 tons, with 6,553 tons of precipitates.

In the remarks to stockholders the report says:

> As compared with the years 1916 and 1917, respectively, the year 1918 witnessed a marked reduction in the profits of your company, due to the following factors: The continuation of the fixed price of 23½ cents to July 2 resulted in a lower price being realized on the production sold than in the previous two years. The lack of future sales necessitated the carrying over of inventories of unsold metals at the end of the year, at cost; thus the gross income of the company was substantially decreased.
> The increases in wages, freight charges, cost of supplies, and of treating custom ores and refining metals reduced, by comparison with the two previous years, the net income realized on the business done.

EGGS.—32,137 cases. The market maintains a strong tone on high qualities of Northern goods and on storage packings. Sales are reported a little above recent quotations. On the regular packings of ungraded or only slightly assorted eggs the market shows no quotable change, with offerings about sufficient for the needs of the market. The express strike is still preventing any considerable deliveries of nearby eggs, and the recent accumulation of whites has been reduced. The demand, however, seems to be limited, and the light business reported is generally at unchanged prices. CURB BROKERS FIGHT TAX.

Oppose Proposed $200 License at Aldermanic Committee Hearing.

The Committee on General Welfare of the Board of Aldermen held a public hearing yesterday on the proposed ordinance, introduced by Alderman William F. Quinn, requiring Curb brokers to pay a license fee of $200 a year to the city. A half dozen Curb brokers were present, and Morgan J. O'Brien and Franklin Leonard, Jr., spoke in opposition to it. Mr. O'Brien declared that the ordinance would have a tendency to destroy the Curb market.

"If you impose this tax," he said, "the effect will be to have a monopoly on the Curb. It would lessen the number of brokers and men beginning their careers could not have a part in the work." As an idea of the business carried on by the Curb, Mr. O'Brien said that last year the State received more than $2,000,000 on the transfer of stock. Alderman Quinn said the brokers had no right to use the city street and not pay a license fee when they were under the protection of the Police and Street Cleaning Departments.

The committee took the matter under advisement and will probably report its findings to the board next Tuesday.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The trade reviews of the week report continuing improvement in many lines, with luxuries in heavy demand, while bank clearings show an increase.

Dun's Review says:

"With living costs remaining at extraordinary levels, there are nevertheless frequent reports of a record over-the-counter distribution, not only of staple commodities, but also of luxury articles. This condition obtains especially in the West and South, where the unusually remunerative prices received for farm products have strengthened the financial position of consumers.

"Record bank clearings for this period continue to be a very noticeable feature of the business situation at many important cities in the United States, the total this week at fifteen leading centres amounting to $6,194,516,447, an increase of 10.4 per cent. over this week last year and of 22.1 per cent. as compared with the same week in 1917."

Bradstreet's says:

"Chief in activity, both with manufacturers, jobbers, and retailers, is wearing apparel of all kinds, this activity being reflected in better buying of raw materials, such as wool, staple cotton goods, and leather, the latter responding both to good foreign and domestic buying. The so-called luxury trades—automobiles and accessories and jewelry—show no diminution of buying, and, indeed, the former lines are reported suffering more from retarded deliveries than from any other trouble."

"Steady" Weather Would Help.

If the weather would only "stay put," local wholesalers of cotton dress fabrics say they would do a record business in the way of duplicate orders. When salesmen went out with advance Spring lines, prices were high and many buyers held off from purchasing in the hope of obtaining the benefit of any decline that might come. The result was that stocks of wash and white goods in very many of the stores throughout the country were subnormal, proof of which was seen in the repeat business that has come in this week. A feature of this has been the fluctuation of orders from day to day with the rise and fall of the thermometer, indicating that many retailers are buying on a marked hand-to-mouth basis.

WANT TO DEFER B. & M. SALE

Trustees Ask Until 1921 to Dispose of Company's Shares.

A petition by James L. Doherty of Springfield, Mass., and the other trustees named in the Government's dissolution suit against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, to extend until July 1, 1921, the time to sell the stock of the Boston & Maine Railroad, was filed yesterday in the Federal Court. There are 251,480 shares of the preferred stock of the company and 250,254 shares of the common stock that must be sold, and the petition explains that since the trustees were appointed the financial situation forbade any hope that the stock could be disposed of except for a price that would mean an enormous and unreasonable sacrifice.

The opinion is expressed that it is not possible for this situation to change for the better between now and Oct. 1, 1919, when the order provided for the sale of the stock. It is explained that the other railroad stocks in possession of the trustees are mainly those of railroads leased to or operated by the B. & M. system.

In reference to conditions other than of a purely financial character, the petition speaks of the uncertainty of the returns of the railroads from Federal to private control, and the effect this uncertainty has in creating apprehension as to the value of the stocks.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The steel issues, to which most attention was given in the early dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday, yielded in prominence in the later trading to the shares of the oil and motor companies. Texas Company had an upward movement of about 20 points, while Royal Dutch of New York gained 5⅝, Mexican Petroleum 6¼, and Pan American about 4 per cent. General Motors and Studebaker were in material demand and both stocks were bid up rapidly. Trading continued on a very broad scale throughout the market.

Exports Are Picking Up.

Quite a little improvement in the foreign demand for American cotton goods was noticed here this week. Not only was business taken from the Far East in several varieties of goods, but a marked impetus to the demand from South and Central American countries was told of. The West Indies were good buyers, and despite reports of internal dissention in Mexico, several sizeable orders from that country were recorded. Scandinavian buyers were reported active again, and Greece also sent in some business. The orders in a general way called for everything from heavy unfinished sheetings to sheer dress cottons.

Are Feeling Encouraged.

Local opponents of the now famous Section 904 of the Internal Revenue Tax law, the section which imposes the taxes on luxuries, were much pleased by the dispatch from Washington in yesterday's TIMES that told of Republican Floor Leader Mondell's plan to have the measure repealed at the coming special session. As only the filibustering tactics of some of the Republican Senators prevented the section from being cut out of the law at the last session, Representative Mondell's intention to lead a fight on it in the House is regarded here as leading to its sure repeal.

As an indication of the retail clothier's desire to get his orders for Fall clothing in early enough to avoid a possible shortage of merchandise, a leading house reported yesterday that engagements to show their line run full every day to June 4. The sales manager of this concern, who usually travels from Maine to Virginia, has decided to stay in this city and make no trip this season in view of the buyers' readiness to come to the market here instead of waiting for his visit. Even at this early period in the season, many houses report that if the volume of Fall orders grows much larger the same cutting down and prorating of commitments as practiced by the mills will have to be used.

The prediction made by one of the leading woolen men in the market that in a year's time woolen prices, despite the decreases made after the armistice, would be back to war-time levels, seems to have a very good chance of proving correct. The increases asked on duplicate heavyweight orders are taking the breath out of buyers, hardened through the experience of the war to rapid-fire advances. In one case cited yesterday a dollar a yard more was asked on a fabric over the price of March 15. The principal difficulty of the mills seems to be in getting yarns.

Will Offer No Spring Goods.

Some of the men's wear woolen mills, it is understood, will offer no goods for the coming Spring season. Instead they will take a few more duplicates on the heavyweight lines, enough to carry them over to the opening of the next Fall season and make a fresh start with the heavyweight goods for 1920. This is said to be the intention of even some of the representative houses which believe that in this way alone can production catch up with the seasons. The Fall lines sold and now being produced were sixty days late and, if anything, time has been lost instead of gained since the opening. The manufacturing clothiers are expressing considerable concern over this latest development and are decidedly against the decision to omit Spring lines.

Meeting the Servant Problem.

An exhibit will shortly be started in a prominent local store showing just what economies the housewife can effect through the use of modern labor-saving devices for household work. In connection with this educational exhibit, the manufacturers of such machinery will offer a part payment plan for their products, so that they will be placed within the reach of all. The appeal of part payments will be made on the basis that less will have to be paid out in this way than it would cost to employ a servant. In other words, what would ordinarily go out in servant's wages may be paid to install machinery that will take the servant's place.

Gray Goods Show Little Change.

Not a great deal of change was apparent in the local gray goods market yesterday. Prices for printcloths were again more or less nominal, so far as the mills were concerned, while second-hand quotations on several constructions were a quarter of a cent under the mill levels. Among the business reported from the latter source were sales of 39-inch 68-72s at 13½ cents and 38½-inch 64-60s at 11¾ cents. Sheetings were more active, and the call for the heavier constructions was larger than has been the case of late. Prices were based on 13½ cents for 36-inch 56-60 four-yard sheetings. The real stars were sateens and twills, which again brought prices that would have been thought fantastic two or three months ago.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

A Feature This Week Was Again a Rise in the Foodstuffs.

The upward trend of the more important foodstuffs, with the exception of some of the dairy products, was again a feature of Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices. This week the advances in this part of the general list outnumbered the declines by three to one. A total of 55 revisions in a list of 313 articles was shown this week, of which 33 were advances. Last week there were 43 advances in 69 changes.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted this week on selected standard commodities. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Nearly half of all the changes listed this week were in the foodstuffs. In the local market there was no change in the price of flour, but in the Chicago market for the major provisions every article quoted in the list was higher. The rise took place in live beef, hogs, and sheep, and Middle Western lard. Mess pork and short ribs were also higher. The local dairy products showed more signs of weakness than for some time, though the declines, excepting in some of the under grades of cheese, were slight. The best butter dropped slightly, as compared with last week, and the same thing was true of the best renovated stock. The drop in cheese was 3 cents a pound. Fancy nearby eggs did not change, but there was a rise of 1½ cents a dozen in the price of best Western.

The fresh fruits in the list showed no changes, and the only revision in the dried ones was a rise in California prunes. Several of the prices for dried fruits, however, have been withdrawn from the list in a nominal state. A slight break in potatoes furnished the only decline in the listed vegetables, the advances having been recorded by cabbage, rutabaga turnips, and choice pea beans. Potatoes are now slightly more than twice as high as they were at this time a year ago, while the turnips are up an even hundred per cent. Cabbage is now held at $4.50 a barrel, against $1 a barrel at this time in 1918.

No. 7 Rio coffee again went up, but No. 4 Santos did not change this week. The tea list was bare of provisions, while in the spices the only changes were advances in Zanzibar cloves and white Singapore pepper. Black pepper went down. In the grains list a drop in rye was offset by higher prices on corn, oats, and malting barley. Of the fifteen changes in the list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils, only three were advances. Features were lacking. The naval stores changes were confined to turpentine and kiln-burned tar, both of which advanced.

The leathers in the list were again shown unchanged, but in the hides there were further advances in No. 1 native packers, No. 1 country steers, and No. 1 calfskins. Only one change was shown in lumber, it being a drop in No. 1 common mahogany. A slight rise in lead and an advance in aluminium were the only changes in the metals. In the miscellaneous fluctuations were advances in tallow, crude rubber, and raw silk and a decline in hemp.

Burlaps took on a firmer tone in this market during the week, for which continued bullish reports from primary centres were largely responsible. Several lines of cotton goods were also firmer, though a feature was the slowing down in printcloths and the consequent slight drop in the prices for several constructions sold by second hands.

When Is a Girl a Girl?

Many strange kinks in the luxury tax have been turned up as merchants studied this piece of legislation to discover, if they could, just how its provisions were to be carried out. But a bit of human interest in the law is brought up in the latest question, "When is a girl a girl?" Women, misses, boys, and men are specified in the enumeration of articles to be taxed, but no mention is made of girls. John W. Hahn, Executive Secretary of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, got word from the Internal Revenue Bureau that because nothing was said in the law to affect girls' apparel the bureau "would probably exempt such merchandise from taxation." Now the point is just what limit is there to girlhood. Mr. Hahn believes 12 years is the proper age. Others are yet to be heard from on this interesting point.

To Push Toys Harder.

The desire on the part of big retail stores to make toys year-around merchandise rather than goods to be pushed only at the holiday season, has apparently been increased of late by the success the specialty toy shops are having, and at least one of the big stores is going out after more of this business. From time to time much has been said and printed about the possibility of making toys, in a sense, as staple as shoes or stockings, but not a great deal has been done by the retail trade beyond wishing that the demand could be encouraged in a big way. Plans to do this are being laid out by the store in question, and the experiment will probably be watched with interest by its competitors.

Education Notes.

President Somers has sent a telegram to Governor Smith about the State-wide Teachers bill. In it he said:

"The Board of Education of New York desires to record its disapproval of the bill entitled 'An act to amend the education law relative to salaries of members of the supervising and teaching staffs in the cities of the State, apportionment of school moneys to cities and school districts, and making the appropriations therefor,' on the ground that inasmuch as a committee appointed by the Board of Estimate of New York and the Board of Education are considering jointly the entire question affecting teachers' salaries in this city, that committee should be permitted to work out a plan whereby reasonable increases will be granted. Inequalities in the present bill will give occasion for further agitation, and it is our opinion that the question can best be settled by local authorities."

The twelfth annual park fete of the Girls' Branch, Public Schools Athletic League, will be held at 3 P. M. on May 20 on the Sheep Meadow in Central Park.

The next regular meeting of the Teachers' Council will be held on May 16.

The teachers' delegates next Thursday will elect a member of the Retirement Board to succeed Frederick Z. Lewis, whose term expires.

To every dealer in Phonograph Records:

We have no quarrel with the release dates of operatic records. As third largest producers of records in this country, we are interested in popular records where 80% of the sales are made. In selling hits, you know as well as we do, that time is money—"The early bird gets the worm". The hit that is on the market first cashes in for you.

When the big buying waves start in you have a right to expect prompt action from the record makers you represent. To you dealers who have suffered through their inability to stock you promptly, we invite a careful study of the following table.
